Tells Friends How He Drew His Fire with Gaffney and That He Expects Reprisals.

READY TO GO TO THE PEOPLE

Gaffney Says He Doesn't Want Roads Job, but Pictures an "Ideal Commissioner" Resembling Himself.

Unless the break between Gov. William Sulzer and Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy can be patched up, there is likely soon to be a fight between the Governor and Tammany that will involve both branches of the Legislature and be fully as bitter as that between Charles E. Hughes as Governor and the recalcitrant Republican Legislature.

An effort was made yesterday to have the differences between the two patched up, when an emissary from Tammany Hall bearing an olive branch called upon the Governor at the Waldorf. The emissary was James E. Gaffney, the man over whom the trouble between the Governor and Mr. Murphy began. The Governor's friends said it was like the Tammany leader's colossal effrontery to select Mr. Gaffney as his ambassador. The Governor was not impressed by his visitor, and his friends predict that before many days Murphy will be making even more frantic overtures.

Gov. Sulzer, his friends say, is determined to "have it out" with Murphy and to appeal directly to the people in his efforts to pass constructive legislation, exactly as Gov. Hughes did. Murphy, on the other hand, with a municipal election coming on and with little or no help in the shape of patronage from Washington, is not at all anxious to have a "show down" at this time. Neither is he willing to have it appear that he is bending to the Governor's will, which explains his refusal to attend the Governor's dinner to-night.

The Governor came down from Albany to attend several dinners last night and the birthday dinner to himself to-night. About his first visitor yesterday was Mr. Gaffney, who talked to him for about fifteen minutes. When he emerged from the conference Mr. Gaffney said he had called simply to assure the Governor that he did not want the position of State Commissioner of Highways and to deny that Mr. Murphy ever had backed him for the job. Mr. Gaffney said he was wrapped up in his baseball team, the Boston Nationals, and would rather look after its affairs than become a State official.

"It would be impossible for me to accept the appointment, even if it were offered," said Mr. Gaffney. "My business interests wouldn't permit me to take the place. I couldn't spare the time to stay in Albany and attend to the duties of the office, as it is necessary for me to be on the road much of the Summer with my baseball team, and what little time I have in New York must be devoted to my business interests here. I had intended some time ago to go to Atlanta and watch the final training of the team, but delayed until after Easter in order to spend the week here with my family."

How Murphy was Circumvented.

Mr. Gaffney would not say anything more direct than this about being asked to call upon the Governor and explain away the ill-feeling existing between Mr. Sulzer and Mr. Murphy, and the Governor would not discuss the visit at all except to admit that Mr. Gaffney had called. To several friends who called upon the Governor later in the day to assure him of their support and to encourage him to keep up his fight on Tammany the Governor, however, unbosomed himself and told in detail just how it had been arranged to "put Gaffney over on him," and how he had circumvented the move. The Governor was very well pleased at what he called his victory, and told his friends that he felt encouraged to go on trying to defeat Tammany in other ways.

Gov. Sulzer told his friends he had received several significant hints from Tammany sources that Leader Murphy would like the appointment of Highways Commissioner go to Mr. Gaffney. The Governor decided to ascertain the public view of the matter, and appointed his advisory committee to recommend to the Legislature certain plans for the reorganization of the department, besides giving ideas on road building and contracts. This committee was asked also to submit fifteen names from among whom a Commissioner could be selected. Upon the Governor's advice the committee selected Mr. Gaffney as its Chairman. In this way the Governor expected to draw the fire of Mr. Gaffney's enemies and learn just how large a part of the public was opposed to his being appointed Commissioner.

According to the Governor, the plan worked exceedingly well. Opposition to Mr. Gaffney came from every direction and thoroughly convinced him that he would make a big mistake in appointing such a close friend of Boss Murphy. Shortly after the committee met, the Governor went on in his explanation, a vote was taken as to whom the committee would recommend for the appointment. The vote was 9 to 7 in favor of recommending Mr. Gaffney. The Governor then told his friends on the committee about the reports he had received from all over the State regarding the undesirability of appointing Mr. Gaffney, and the committee met at a luncheon in New York City, at which another vote was taken, and this time it stood nine to seven against Mr. Gaffney. The committee finally decided not to recommend any one.

Expects Reprisals from Murphy.

When Mr. Gaffney called upon Gov. Sulzer yesterday he was told that the Governor would like to have the report of the committee as early as possible—within the next few days, in fact. Just as soon as it hands in its report the committee will go out of existence, and the Governor will then make his own appointment. In this way he feels that he has effectively solved a difficult situation and convinced every one that Mr. Gaffney's appointment would have been a bad thing for the Democratic Party.

The Governor told his friends that both Mr. Murphy and Mr. Gaffney would come in time to see that he had done the very wisest thing for the benefit of all concerned and thank him for the stand he had taken. He also said that his action must have convinced Mr. Murphy that he was wise enough to know everything that was going on and that he could be trusted to make his own appointment, acting only for the best interests of the party.

Gov. Sulzer feels, however, that Mr.

ENGLISH ATTACK ON BRYAN.

London Paper Calls Speech on Saturday a "Blazing Indiscretion."

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 18.—The Morning Post, commenting editorially on Secretary of State Bryan's speech at the St. Patrick's Day banquet in Washington on Saturday, especially his references to the threatened abolition of the hereditary principle in the House of Lords and to the passage of the Home Rule bill, says:

"We cannot congratulate President Wilson on the tact of his Secretary of State. We do not suppose that Mr. Bryan had any desire to give offense to a large portion of the people of England. He was no doubt carried away by his emotional temperament, but he should understand that his speech is nevertheless regarded with keen resentment by many people in this country and that in their opinion it is a gratuitous and unwarrantable interference in the domestic affairs of the United Kingdom.

"We should very much like to know what Mr. Bryan would have said if at the time of his last defeat for the Presidency the English Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs had publicly expressed his gratification that the people of the United States had crushed the pretensions of a dangerous demagogue."

The Morning Post declares the speech to be a "blazing indiscretion."

SHE APPEALS TO WILSON.

Mrs. Longstreet Pleads to be Retained as Gainesville Postmistress.

Special to The New York Times.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., March 17.—Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet, widow of the Confederate General and Postmistress here, to-day addressed an open letter to President Wilson protesting against the proposed appointment of A. S. Hardy, editor of The Gainesville Eagle, as her successor.

Mrs. Longstreet says Congressman Bell is seeking to oust her for the payment of a political debt, and charges that he is aided by the "henchmen and hirelings of the Georgia Railway and Power Company."

Mrs. Longstreet says: "I cannot believe that the great American who has led the Democratic hosts to such a victory as they have never won before will sanction political warfare on women alone in the struggle of life in a Government which denies them the ballot while taxing them for its support.

"I have never had the support of the political bosses. President Roosevelt twice commissioned me in the Gainesville Post Office, not because of political strength, but in tribute to my qualifications. Will a Democratic President, born on the soil of the old Dominion, fail where a son of the great Northern Empire State dared to be true to the best traditions of the race, in spite of politics and politicians? I believe that he cannot fail, and by the deeds which he will do the world shall be made a wider and a better place for all women."

Mrs. Longstreet was an ardent supporter of Col. Roosevelt in the last campaign, and the regular Republicans tried to induce Mr. Taft to remove her, but he refused.

WHEN WILSON MUST PAUSE.

Red Card Attached to Letters Warns Him to Read Them Before Signing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The little red card, which has been used at the State Department to warn the Secretaries of State to read carefully every official paper to which it has been attached, is in vogue at the White House for the benefit of President Wilson. The mail of the President, which he has to sign personally, is so heavy that he does not have the opportunity of reading all the letters prepared for his signature, and the card is used to warn him that the particular paper to which it is fastened must not be signed until it has been carefully read and considered. The card is equivalent to the behest, "Stop, look, listen."

Incidentally, the mystery of the little red card supposed to have been attached to the original draft of the telegram sent by Secretary of State Bryan to Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson at the City of Mexico, congratulating Mr. Wilson on the way in which he looked after the interests of American citizens during the recent critical period in the Mexican capital, has not been cleared up. Nobody at the department has been really able to determine whether the card was or was not appended to this message, which Secretary of State Bryan endeavored to recall when he discovered, shortly after it was telegraphed, that it had not represented his views at all, in spite of the fact that it bore his signature.

WILSON RETURNS GIFTS.

Won't Accept Many Sent to Him by Persons Unknown to Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The President is returning all of the many gifts sent to him by persons throughout the country who are not known to him personally. Some of these presents were forwarded to Mr. Wilson in the hope that they would help the senders to obtain public office or some other favor, while others were sent for advertising purposes. A large number are forwaded purely out of goodness of heart.

Following the example of most of his predecessors, the President takes the ground that he has no right to accept presents from people he does not know. To-day he returned a razor strop and a cake of shoe blacking. President Wilson shaves himself and is perfectly satisfied with the strop he now uses, which has the remarkable quality of being able, through its varying conditions, to forecast the weather.

WILL GUARD MARRIAGES.

New Jersey Rector Demands Bill of Health Before Ceremony.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., March 17.—The Rev. Hugh Dempster Wilson, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church here, has announced that by virtue of his canonical prerogatives he will refuse hereafter to marry persons who do not show prior to the ceremony certificates from reputable physicians attesting their physical and mental fitness for marriage.

Mr. Wilson's announced belief is that misfit marriages and consequent miserable homes are the cause of considerable of the world's trouble, and that if society cannot regulate the quantity of births it can at last make an honest attempt to improve the quality.

Mr. Wilson believes that his Church will enact a law soon requiring medical certificates from persons who are to be married.

ACCUSE MUSICA & SON OF BIG BANK FRAUDS

LOEB ONCE ACCUSED THEM

And Son Was Sent to Reformatory—Bank of Manhattan and Bank of Montreal Among Accusers.

Antonio Musica and his son Philip, heads of the importing firm of A. Musica & Son, 67 Front Street, who were prosecuted by the Government on the charge of smuggling, and for which the son was sentenced to one year in the Elmira Reformatory on Oct. 29, 1909, and pardoned by President Taft on April 12, 1910, were being searched for last night by detectives on complaints of the Bank of Manhattan Company, 40 Wall Street; the Anglo-South American Bank, 60 Wall Street, and the branch of the Bank of Montreal, at 64 Wall Street.

Merchandise offered to the banks as security for credits by the missing men, it is charged by lawyers representing the banks, was examined on the docks of the Fabre Line in Brooklyn and found to be valueless, though it was represented as worth $600,000. Acting under instructions of the banks, the Burns Detective Agency, which represents the American Bankers' Association, took possession of the firm's business at 67 Front Street.

When an effort was made to arrest the elder Musica at his home, Third Avenue and Seventieth Street, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, it was found that he had fled. His wife, two daughters, and two sons, Arthur and George, had also gone, and Philip could not be found at his last place of residence, the Hotel Knickerbocker. William J. Burns had eleven of his men on the case in this country and Europe last night, and expected to make an immediate arrest.

The amounts involved on the technical charge of forgery against the Musicas is estimated at $300,000 to $500,000 on this side, and what may be added on the other side of the ocean is undetermined pending the receipt of information from European bankers.

Loeb Charged Firm with Frauds.

The Anglo-South American Bank places its claim at $134,687, representing eight drafts accepted from A. Musica & Son, on which payment was refused when presented in London. Suit for this amount was filed in the Supreme Court and an attachment asked for by the bank.

Following this action attorneys for the Bank of Manhattan Company, Rushmore, Bisbee & Stern of 40 Wall Street, applied to Assistant District Attorneys Embree and Perkins for warrants for the arrest of Antonio and Philip Musica, but they were told that such procedure was impossible before the accused men had been indicted, and for this more evidence would be required. The attorneys explained they were obliged to act hurriedly as the suspects were believed to be preparing to leave the country.

During the attack on custom frauds by Collector Loeb, Antonio Musica and his son, Philip, were charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government and of bribery of assistants of customs weighers on imports of cheese. At the trial, to save his father, Philip assumed the entire responsibility for bribery and of making invoices of false weights. Of fifty-four false invoices, twenty-eight of them had been signed by Philip Musica.

Antonio Musica, who was indicted with his son, was not brought to trial. Besides being sentenced to Elmira, Philip was ordered to pay a fine of $5,000. After he had served five months President Taft pardoned him and remitted the fine.

When the merchandise, consisting of human hair, valued, so Musica said, at $600,000, ready for shipment on the docks in Brooklyn, was examined at the request of the bankers it was found to consist of hair rubbish only. Ordinarily each case of hair goods weighs 200 pounds and is valued at $1,700 to $1,800. Some of the cases on the dock weighed only twenty pounds.

In Business Thirty Years.

For thirty years Antonio Musica had been in business here as importer of Italian products and human hair. He had been a customer of the Bank of Manhattan Company for twenty-five years and of the foreign banking house of Munroe & Co. for a similar period. Rushmore, Bisbee & Stern defended the Musicas in the Government trial after Munroe & Co. had introduced the importers to the law firm, and the investigation made by the attorneys seemed to clear the elder Musica of any part in the customs fraud. At any rate, the Government suit did not affect the firm seriously in its financial connections and subsequent business.

About a year ago the Musicas began to develop an extensive business in the importation and exportation of human hair, and reported to the banks that they were concentrating in that line. They organized a corporation called the United States Hair Company, to which they not only turned over their own business, but procured subscribers to the extent of $90,000 in cash and $600,000 in merchandise, the Musicas retaining the controling interest. On behalf of the banks, Mr. Rushmore made this statement of the events leading up to the charges against the firm:

"Their books were examined by expert accountants, who reported that the development of this new feature of their business showed large profits. In the organization of their business they were associated with some men of undoubted respectability. The Board of Directors had a special appraisal made of the merchandise turned over by the Musicas, and an expert valuation made by the same authority showed the value of this merchandise to be in excess of $610,000.

"The Musicas submitted these various reports to the banks. It seems that this human hair comes to this country largely from Italy and China. They explained to the banks that this hair required certain treatment before being made up for women's wear and that they were able to handle it in this country in its first state and then to sell it not only here, but abroad, as a finished product, ready for manufacture. They shipped their merchandise to London, Paris, and Naples, and exhibited to the banks contracts with houses at those places, and also credits opened in their behalf by banking institutions of undoubted repute on the other side.

Expects to Catch Them.

"They drew against these credits and had the bills of exchange cashed at the banks, which were secured by the bills of lading. All of these drafts were duly advised to the bankers abroad, and the particular credits against which they were drawn specified. This has been going on for six months, and all drafts have been promptly paid or accepted by the London and the Paris banks against which they were drawn.

"We have every reason to believe that the Musicas will be apprehended before they are able to leave the country."

FUREY'S WILL MAKES GRAY A MILLIONAIRE

Asphalt Magnate Leaves His Fortune to the Leader of Gowanus Democracy.

RELATIVES MAY CONTEST

Pointed Out, However, That Old Politician Gave Some of Them Homes Before He Died.

When the will of Robert Furey was presented for probate yesterday in Brooklyn it was found that he had made his friend, J. Morrissey Gray, Democratic leader of the Eighth Assembly District of Brooklyn, a millionaire.

Down in old Gowanus, where the canal reaches in from the bay, it was wash day, but the tubs and wringers and scrubbing boards lay idle, while the women, across airshafts or back fences, talked animatedly of the good fortune that had come to the "Duke of Gowanus."

Just what the fortune bequeathed to the Democratic district leader amounted to nobody seemed to know. Its value was estimated at from $250,000 to $5,000,000. Men acquainted with the business affairs of Mr. Furey expressed the belief that the estate amounted to at least $1,000,000.

No schedule of the property accompanied the will, and Attorney Edward J. Byrne of 190 Montague Street could give no estimate, he said, until he had examined the stocks, securities, and other holdings.

There was much talk that the relatives of Mr. Furey, who are a brother John and the children of his dead brothers James and William, would contest the will. Mr. Furey was said to have been estranged from some of his relatives for several years.

Gray and Furey had been close friends and associates in politics for many years. Furey was once a great power in Democratic politics in Brooklyn. He was for a long time the chief adviser of Hugh McLaughlin, for many years the county leader, and it was largely through Furey's friendship that Gray rose to political prominence.

"Bob" Furey, as he was called by his friends, died on last Wednesday at the Montauk Club, Brooklyn, where he had lived for several years. He was 80 years old and unmarried. Mr. Furey made most of his fortune in the contracting business. He was a member of the Cranford Company of Brooklyn.

He was known in the borough for his many charities. In the last year he gave $100,000 to St. Mary's Roman Catholic Hospital and a like sum to Bishop McDonnell for charitable purposes. It was learned yesterday also that although Mr. Furey had not mentioned any of his relatives in his will, he had given to several of them the houses in which they lived. These relatives are his brother, Brig. Gen. John V. Furey, U. S. A., retired, of 10 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn; Mrs. Nora Milde, a niece, of 251 Prospect Place, and Mrs. Mary McMullen, also a niece, of 200 Prospect Place.

Brig. Gen. Furey declined to discuss his brother's will. Mrs. McMullen said the document was a surprise to her, particularly because her sister, Mrs. Milde, was cut off with the rest. Miss Milde, she said, had always been a favorite with her uncle.

The will is dated September 13, 1912. The third clause reads:

"In making this will I have given due consideration to all claims which under proper conditions might naturally appeal to me and have concluded that the disposition herein made is just, fair, and consistent with my purposes and intentions."

James McMullen, husband of Mr. Furey's niece, speaking of the wealth of Mr. Furey, said that he was the chief stockholder in the Cranford Company, asphalt paving contractors, and one of the largest concerns of its kind in the country: a large stockholder in the Aqueduct and Gravesend race tracks, the Eagle Storage & Warehouse Company and other companies. He also owned, Mr. McMullen said, large blocks of other securities.

BURLESON IS ENJOINED.

Must Not Enforce Publicity Law Until It Is Proved Constitutional.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The Supreme Court of the United States to-day, without dissent or explanation, granted an order restraining the Postmaster General from enforcing the newspaper publicity section of the Post Office Appropriation act pending the settlement of the case on its merits before the Supreme Court. The order was granted on petition of The New York Journal of Commerce.

The offensive section of the act is under fire on the grounds of alleged unconstitutionality. In the previous administration, ex-Postmaster General Hitchcock was personally opposed to the provisions now assailed, and appeared before committees of the House and Senate to protest against them. When the law was enacted he agreed not to enforce it until the courts should direct otherwise. Postmaster General Burleson, however, directed that the law should be enforced, and to-day's Supreme Court order restrains him from denying the privilege of the mails to newspapers that fail to comply with the exacting provisions of the statute.

The section of the law to which the newspapers have taken exception compels the publication twice a year of the names of stockholders and bondholders of certain classes of publications, and of the sworn declaration of the paid circulation—whether sent through the mails or not—and denies the privileges of the mail—even as first class mail matter under seal—to newspapers failing to publish these private details.

MOTOR CAR BANDITS AND LEADER CAUGHT

Smiling Young Man, Well Dressed and Easy, Confesses to Being the Chief of the Band.

ELEVEN, ALL TOLD, IN TOILS

Robbery of Douglas Shoe Store, Popper Hold-Up and Waylaying of Silk Company Messengers Explained.

A slender young man, dapper in dress, clean-cut, athletic, and good looking, walked into Police Headquarters shortly before 9 o'clock last night. Only for the fact that several detectives were clustered about him none would have suspected that he was a prisoner. There was a smile in his brown eyes, and he chatted pleasantly with his captors.

He was still smiling when he was led from Second Deupty Police Commissioner George S. Dougherty's private office after 11 o'clock and reporters were admitted to hear Mr. Dougherty characterize the smiling youth as the head and brains of the motor car robbers, the gang of thieves and hold-up men who have committed street robberies and entered stores and shops holding up clerks and proprietors at the point of revolvers.

Joseph Taylor, as the leader called himself, according to Dougherty, admitted that he had planned and assisted in executing the robbery of the Douglas Shoe Store at Broadway and Thirteenth Street on the night of Feb. 8, when $310 was stolen; the hold-up of John Popper of Popper & Gray, butter and egg merchants of 411 West Seventeenth Street, who were robbed of $922 on Sept. 23, and the robbery on Dec. 27 of Edmund Wider and Charles Webber, messengers for the Silk Finishing Company of 33 Bethune Street, from whom Taylor and his gang got $1,198.

Mr. Dougherty said he was certain that other automobile robberies would be traced to Taylor and his band and in the arrest of the young he is satisfied that he has gathered in the ringleader of the automobile bandits. Four others besides Taylor were locked up in Police Headquarters last night and at midnight Dougherty announced that six other prisoners were on their way to Headquarters from various parts of the city. The Deputy Commissioner seemed to believe that the eleven constituted the whole band.

Betrayed by a Stolen Car.

The arrest of Taylor and the members of his band resulted apparently from Taylor's fondness for fast automobiles. All of his coups had been accomplished, he admitted, with the aid of stolen automobiles, and always these cars had been abandoned as soon as their immediate usefulness had ended. On last Friday night Taylor and his band stole a racing runabout of French make, capable of making better than sixty miles an hour, and so pleased was the bandit apparently with this machine that, instead of abandoning it, he repainted it twice, expecting that its different color would be sufficient protection against discovery. It was this machine which proved the undoing of the band.

The car, a low gray racer, belonged to H. K. and Robert K. Brown, restaurant proprietors, who live at 525 West 124th Street, and it was from in front of their home that the car was taken about 7:45 o'clock Friday evening. Robert Brown instantly reported the loss to the police of the West 125th Street Station and an alarm was sent out for he car, giving a description of it in minute detail, and adding that it was equipped with Diamond tires.

No trace was found of it on Friday night, however, but shortly after 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning Policeman Connelly of the Lenox Avenue Station was almost run down by a bright red racing runabout which bore down on him in Lenox Avenue, near 132d Street, at better than fifty miles an hour. The policeman dodged in time to avoid being hit, and when the motorists paid no heed to his shouts to halt, he made a note of the number on their license tag. It was M 1,385 N. Y.

Brown's number had been 43,714 N. Y., but though the numbers differed Connelly noted that the speeding car almost exactly fitted the description of the stolen auto so far as he could tell in the short glance he got of it. At any rate he reported the occurrence to his station and called attention to the similarity of the car with the description given of Brown's machine.

A Robbery With Speeding Racer.

At about the same time word was flashed to every police station in the city that Bert Newman of 144th Street and Eighth Avenue, had been held up and robbed a block south of his home at 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning by the three occupants of a Vermilion racing roadster, who had knocked him on the head with some weapon and snatched away from him a satchel which he carried. There was only soiled linen in the satchel, for Newman was on his way to a laundry. He has a cafe at 55 Reade Street, however, and he told the police he had no doubt his assailants knew of this and expected to find him carrying money in the bag.

Capt. Price, with Detectives Wyans, Sullivan, and O'Mara, learned on Sunday that a new black racer had been put to storage in a garage at 932 Jackson Avenue, the Bronx, and they went there to look at it. The first thing they noticed was that it was equipped with Diamond tires and that it conformed in other ways to the description Brown had given of his car, and so, despite the frantic appeals of the garage men, they took out their knives and scratched at the enamel of the car.

Their daring was rewarded first by a show of vermilion enamel beneath the black, and finally by a gray tone on which the vermilion had been laid. It was Brown's car which stood before them and Brown's car which had been employed to hold up Mr. Newman.

With this knowledge to work on the detectives immediately arrested Max Goldstein of 771 St. Ann's Avenue, whom they found in the garage and who, they say, admitted after his arrest that he had served a term in Elmira Reformatory. They also hunted out and arrested Edward W. Ford of 1,023 Simpson Street and Fred W. Vivar of 375 East 146th Street, the proprietors of the garage, as well as Charles F. Loeber of 567 East 158th Street, a chauffeur.

From them, it can be imagined, though Mr. Dougherty did not admit it, the police learned of Taylor, the brains of the gang, and at 7:30 o'clock last night Detectives O'Mara, Wyans, Quick, Sullivan, Brockman, and Flynn found their man at 125th Street and Third Avenue. They gathered around him and seized his arms, for they found, as they had expected, a loaded revolver stuck in his belt. Taylor fought as hard as he could, though he did not try to get his weapon, but he was no match for a squad of detectives together.

Once arrested, he seemed satisfied that nothing was to be gained by denials, and presently, according to the Deputy Commissioner, he confessed his whole share in the robberies.

After midnight the six other prisoners reported by the police uptown as being in their custody arrived at Headquarters. Five of them had been arrested in a furnished-room house at 204 West Thirty-fourth Street, and the sixth was picked up in Seventh Avenue, where he had a taxicab. This man, John C. Horth, was charged simply with being a suspicious person, but it was considered significant that he was a taxicab driver

The other five gave the names of Philip Cummisky, William Hanlon, George Thole, Edward Stewart and John Quinn.

BLACK'S CASE HOPELESS.

Ex-Governor's Physicians Abandon All Hope of His Recovery.

TROY, N. Y., March 17.—The condition of ex-Gov. Frank S. Black, who is ill at his home in this city, remains unchanged to-night, and all hopes of his recovery have been abandoned.

A specialist from Boston, who was called here by Mr. Black's son, examined the patient and could offer no encouragement. Mr. Black is suffering from valvular disease of the heart.

ALARM FOR H. M. FLAGLER.

In Serious Condition Following His Fall on Stairway.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 17.—The condition of H. M. Flagler, principal owner of the Florida East Coast Railroad, who fell on a marble stairway two weeks ago, injuring his hip, continues to be alarming. Mr. Flagler is under the care of Dr. Owen Keenan, who recently called into consultation Dr. Newton Shaffer, a specialist of New York. Inquirers at his Winter home are told that Mr. Flagler is doing as well as can be expected of a man of his eighty-four years.

YALE MEN IN THEATRE RIOT.

They Tear Down Signs and Two Students Are Arrested.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, March 17.—Trouble with the police resulted to-night from a March 17 celebration in which nearly a thousand Yale freshmen took part.

Early in the evening a small parade, headed by a huge Irish flag and torchlights, was formed in "Shefftown," the home of members of the Sheffield Scientific School. The parade was augmented by the addition of academic freshmen until nearly a thousand Yale freshmen were marching when the line reached a local vaudeville house.

The men entered the theatre, cheered a quarter of an hour, and tore down several large glass signs. Two freshmen were arrested during the celebration, but were afterward released.

BOY LOST IN THE SOUND.

Tried to Swim Ashore to Get Help for His Stranded Companion.

Capt. Bertram of the steam lighter Silex of New York picked up yesterday afternoon a small boy adrift in a rowboat in Long Island Sound nearly a mile above Glen Island. When the lad was brought aboard the lighter he carried an extra suit and underwear on his arm. He told Capt. Bertram that he was Earl Land, 16 years, living at 424 St. Nicholas Avenue, Manhattan, and said that with a companion, Fred Struve, 17 years, of 2,249 Second Avenue, son of Paul Struve, a wholesale liquor dealer, he had started out from Hanson's boathouse, at Hudson Park, New Rochelle, to row into the Sound.

They were caught in the windstorm and in changing places at the oars, lost one of their oars. After battling with the waves with their one oar, he said that Struve, in spite of his protests, stripped, jumped out into the water and started to swim for shore, 200 yards away, to obtain another row boat and return to the rescue. Land lost sight of Truve, who, he thought, had reached shore.

Struve was a member of the graduating class of the Stuyvesant High School, and was leader of a Bible class in the Calvary Methodist Church, 129th Street and Seventh Avenue, until he was succeeded by Land, who is a member of the graduating class of the High School of Commerce. They had been companions for years.

DOGS LED TO THEIR CAPTURE

Two Men Charged with Arson in Strike Trailed by Bloodhounds.

CHARLESTON, West Va., March 17.—A military court, operating under martial law in the coal strike district of West Virginia, disposed of two cases to-day. They were those of George Amos and Felix Terry, charged with distributing rifles to striking miners and sympathizers in the trouble zone. Eight strikers accused of beating a non-union miner also received hearings. The action of the military court goes to the Governor before becoming public.

With the aid of bloodhounds the military authorities captured two young men to-day, whom they charged with setting fire to a building of the Southwestern Fuel Company at Crown Hill. The men, Joseph Workman and Ray Ganoe, were traced through the mountains, the dogs stopping before their respective homes. They will be tried before the military court to-morrow.

Gov. Hatfield has under consideration to-day the evidence and sentence of the military court in the case of "Mother" Jones and forty-eight other prisoners charged with conspiracy to incite to murder and riot within the martial law district. It was intimated that the Governor would make a statement Wednesday.

CALLS OUR POLICE CROOKS.

Detroit Man Says He Had to Pay Detective for Return of Diamond.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, March 17.—"All that you have read in the papers about the New York Police Department isn't half what ought to be said," said E. N. Griffin, who returned to-day from New York, whither he went with Detective John Reid, to get George Petrovitch, who departed from Detroit with diamonds worth $2,000. "They are the biggest bunch of crooks in the world.

"I got back one diamond worth $175 and had to pay a member of the New York detective force $10 to get it. Then he called me a 'piker' and would have taken it back if I hadn't promised to send him a check for $40 more. The detective who got it said the money 'had to be split three ways.'"

Detective Reid had a row with the New York detectives before he got his prisoner. There were delays and hints and a proposition to arrange to have Reid telegraph back to Detroit that everything had been settled satisfactorily to the plaintiff, the hints being that the prisoner was to be released on giving up his plunder for the equal benefit of the detectives interested. Reid became angry and killed the plot by saying: "I came here to take that man back, and he's going back, straight, or there'll be trouble."

Detective Reid confirms Mr. Griffin's statements.

WHITMAN NEARS HIS GRAFT GOAL

WALDO'S AIDS INVOLVED

Confession to be Obtained To-night Expected to Shatter the Police System.

HARTIGAN STANDS FIRM

But District Attorney Hopes He Will Decide to Confess Before He Is Sentenced To-day.

The innermost ring of the police graft system, which District Attorney Whitman referred to not long ago as "the strongest power in the Nation," has been uncovered at last. In another twenty-four hours, it is expected, the mightiest grafters in this ring will face indictments at the hands of the Grand Jury which has been investigating vice and graft conditions for the last few months. The blow which is expected to bring about the annihilation of the system was struck yesterday, and, although much hoped for, came unexpectedly.

Two men representing an ex-Police Inspector, who has not been indicted but against whom indictments are expected to-day, were the principals in this, the most important disclosure which has come out of the graft investigation. They came directly to District Attorney Whitman and asked for terms for the man they represented. In return for leniency for their patron, it was said, these men promised to turn over to the District Attorney sufficient evidence to convict not only two other Inspectors over whose heads graft indictments hang, but three civilian officials at Police Headquarters.

At 11 o'clock yesterday rumors were heard in the Criminal Court Building that Patrolman John J. Hartigan, the former confidential clerk and messenger of Inspector Dennis Sweeney, who was convicted of perjury last Friday, would send a note from his cell in the Tombs asking for an interview with Mr. Whitman. It was through Hartigan that Mr. Whitman expected to obtain a detailed story of how $100,000 of graft collected from Harlem hotels each year was divided among members of the police "ring." But no note came from Hartigan. The prisoner, maintaing the iron nerve which he manifested throughout his trial, communicated with no one, having determined apparently to stand by "the system" to the bitter end.

Ex-Inspector Asks for Terms.

It was a surprise, therefore, when two men who said that they represented one of the three police Inspectors over whom indictments are hanging, begged to see the District Attorney.

"We will tell everything if you will give us our terms," the two delegates from one of the mainstays of "the system" are said to have told Mr. Whitman.

The District Attorney, who has pursued the policy of offering terms to the smaller grafters in the hope of getting a big grafter, refused pointblank to offer terms to a man so high in police circles as an Inspector. He told the go-betweens that he already had such sure cases against Hussey, Thompson, and Murtha that not one of them could hope to escape by merely "squealing" on the other two. As for Sweeney, who the go-betweens said they did not represent in any way, Mr. Whitman showed his callers a batch of thirteen indictments voted against this official by the Grand Jury.

It was at this point, it was said, that the agents of the ex-Inspector told the District Attorney that they would be willing to do more than deliver into the hands of the State two Inspectors. Mr. Whitman told them that he would not stop short of Police Headquarters. But under no conditions, he assured them, would he enter any agreement to offer immunity to a Police Inspector unless he could deal directly with that Inspector.

On this point there was a hitch, it was said, the go-betweens explaining that they had full authority to act for the Inspector. Mr. Whitman held out for direct negotiations with the principal. He pointed out that he had never done business in any other way, and that if this was not desirable he could do without the services of a "squealer." Again he held up the package of indictments found against Inspector Sweeney and again his callers backed down a step.

The District Attorney, it was said, suggested that the Inspector represented by the two men should come to the Criminal Court Building, send in his card to the District Attorney, and go through the formalities required of every visitor to the District Attorney's office.

Leading to the office of the District Attorney is a corridor filled with comfortable arm chairs and tables. All visitors to the District Attorney must pass through this corridor or ante-room. It is there the doorman intercepts each caller and asks him his business. It is there also, that half a dozen or more newspaper reporters can be seen at all hours of the day. They sit there to see who comes and goes from the District Attorney's office.

The two men who brought the offer of the ex-Inspector to confess, had seen these reporters on guard. They told Mr. Whitman that he should not expect their client to visit him under such conditions.

"Couldn't we arrange to have you meet him somewhere outside?" they asked Mr. Whitman.

Then Mr. Whitman recalled that such a course had been taken once before, when he made his midnight trip to the sick bed of Capt. Thomas W. Walsh and there got from the Captain a full confession. He told his callers that he would not object to meeting the ex-Police Inspector at some place to be agreed upon provided he could be assured that the ex-Inspector meant business.

Before departing, the two men arranged with Mr. Whitman for a secret rendez-

Tombs. It is expected that District Attorney Whitman will go there some time to-night with a corps of stenographers and that the ex-Police Inspector will come, too, prepared to make a full confession.

Headquarters Officials Involved.

The three Headquarters officials who it is expected will be involved in this confession are close to Police Commissioner Waldo. If Mr. Whitman can obtain corroborative evidence against them there is little doubt that the graft ring will be completely shattered.

Yesterday's developments were brought about by the conviction of Hartigan, who took an envelope containing money from Inspector Sweeney to Capt. Walsh. Hartigan was the first link in the graft chain which the District Atorney had reason to believe connected suspected Inspectors and an ex-Inspector with Police Headquarters. Mr. Whitman said in his summing up in the Hartigan trial that the $800 which Hartigan carried from Sweeney to Walsh was collected from a number of Inspectors.

Will Sentence Hartigan To-day.

At 10:30 o'clock this morning Hartigan will appear before Justice Seabury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court for sentence. He will have until then to decide whether to confess. If he does confess Mr. Whitman will expect him to tell whether the Sixth Inspection District offices in the West 125th Street Station were the clearing house for Harlem graft collections. He will also expect him to furnish a list of names of prominent police officials known to have made periodical visits to these offices.

If Hartigan does not confess in the meantime—and the District Attorney still hopes that he will, it is believed that Justice Seabury will give him a heavy sentence. It was recalled yesterday that Justice Seabury, in charging the jury on Friday, warned the jurors not to append to their verdict a recommendation for clemency.

"The crime of perjury," he said, "is a most serious crime. It is because of this crime that innocent men are sent to prison and on account of which the guilty are allowed to escape. The court will reserve for itself the right to deal out punishment if the crime of perjury has been committed."

Only one man was permitted to see Hartigan yesterday in the Tombs. His name appeared on the prison register as J. J. Martin. Hartigan's lawyer, James A. Donnelly, said that no one could see Hartigan. Mr. Donnelly denied that any overtures had been made to the District Attorney. He said he would be in court at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and that he would have nothing to say until then. Mr. Whitman said that he had received no overtures from Hartigan, directly or indirectly, yesterday.

"Don't you think Hartigan will confess?" he was asked.

"Wait," he replied.

One thing of which Mr. Whitman felt absolutely assured, it was said, was that he could expect no confession or help of any kind from Inspector Dennis Sweeney. The whole case of the District Attorney has been built around this "rock," as he called Sweeney in summing up in the Hartigan trial.

Notwithstanding the new developments in the graft situation yesterday, it was said that Mr. Whitman intended to adhere to his decision to try Edward J. Newell, the lawyer, next on the charge of handling the bribe money which kept George A. Sipp, the informer, from appearing as a witness against Policeman Eugene Fox, collector for Capt. Walsh.

John Kirkland Clark, Assistant District Attorney, appeared before Justice Seabury yesterday to press this charge, Newell's time for pleading to the felony indictment having expired. But Newell did not appear, and his lawyer, Terrence McManus, presented instead a letter signed by Dr. Austin W. Hollis, which said that Newell was too ill to appear in court. Justice Seabury, taking cognizance of Mr. Clark's argument that Newell had been well enough to quit St. Luke's Hospital on March 8, was not satisfied with the excuse offered for his failure to appear in court.

"The statement of the physician amounts to nothing," he said. "It is virtually a conclusion. Either have Newell here to-morrow or produce definite proof of his condition."

If Newell appears in court to-day the Assistant District Attorney will move for his trial. At the earliest, the trial cannot begin before a week from Thursday.

Deputy Police Commissioner Newburger made another visit to District Attorney Whitman's office yesterday. Neither Mr. Whitman nor Commissioner Newburger would say what they discussed. It was said that the Deputy Commissioner had again assured the District Attorney of his desire to co-operate with him in his graft investigation. When officials at Police Headquarters were asked as to whether Hartigan had been discussed at [illegible] meeting between Mr. Whitman and [illegible] Newburger, it was said that Hartigan [illegible] longer a member of the force, [illegible] been dropped under an order from Police Commissioner Waldo yesterday.

SULLIVAN INDICTED AGAIN.

Prisoner in Rosenthal Murder Case Said to Have Bribed Witness.

Jack Sullivan, who has been in the Tombs for more than six months under indictment as an accomplice in the Rosenthal murder, was indicted again by the Grand Jury yesterday. The indictment was returned at the very moment that his lawyer, Harford Marshall, was arguing for the dismissal of the murder indictment before Justice Seabury. Decision was reserved on the lawyer's motion. Sullivan, whose real name is Jacob Reich, faces the additional charge of having persuaded a witness to flee from the State after a subpoena had been served.

McCOMBS ACCEPTS MISSION.

Chairman Decides to Take Post Which He at First Refused.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—While he has not formally notified President Wilson to that effect, William F. McCombs of New York, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has decided to accept the office of Ambassador to France, which he refused when first offered to him by President Wilson. It is expected that announcement of Mr. McComb's acceptance will be made shortly. Whether he will receive a recess appointment as Ambassador and his nomination be transmitted to the Senate as soon as that body reconvenes on April 7 has not been determined, but it is likely that Mr. McCombs will not be named until after the Senate session has begun, as he is not anxious to leave the country for a couple of months. It is said that Mr. McCombs will not go to France with the idea of remaining there as Ambassador for the balance of President Wilson's term.

Prof. John Bassett Moore of Columbia University, New York, has at length accepted the offer of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan of the position of Counsellor of the State Department. Announcement to this effect was made to-day, but nothing was forthcoming as to when Prof. Moore would be appointed. Administration officials are delighted over Prof. Moore's acceptance.

Joseph E. Davies of Madison, Wis., Secretary of the Democratic National Committee, has accepted President Wilson's tender of the office of Assistant Secretary of War. He will not assume the duties of the position for some time.

It became known to-day that President Wilson was considering John Cadwalader of Philadelphia as Ambassador to Italy. Mr. Cadwalader was Surveyor of the Port of Philadelphia under President Cleveland.

There was an unusually long procession of callers at the White House to-day.

National Committeeman Fred B. Lynch of Minnesota urged the President to appoint F. A. Day as Commissioner of the General Land Office. He said Minnesota had only this request at present for Presidential appointment. He intimated later that Gustav Scholle, Secretary of the American Legation, at Madrid, would be indorsed for United States Minister to Spain.

Praises His Prison Work and Censure Gov. Gov. Sulzer for Removal.

ELMIRA, N. Y., March 17.—Col. Joseph F. Scott, the former Superintendent of State Prisons, was the guest of honor at a dinner given to-night by members of the City Club, of which Col. Scott is President. A resolution was adopted by the diners expressing confidence in Col. Scott's administration of the Prison Department and censuring Gov. Sulzer for his action in removing him from office.

SIMONS SAYS HE CAN'T PAY $350,000

Simons Explains He Borrows the Money to Make the Offer—Police Search Underworld in Vain.

Estimates made last night of the losses sustained by all concerned through the looting of Martin Simons & Son's treasure vault in the firm's pawnshop at Hester and Eldridge Streets placed the total amount at $350,000 or more. Because of confusion since the discovery of the robbery Sunday night, no headway was made in taking stock. The Simonses declare that their loss is confined to the amounts loaned by them. They presume the difference between the value of the articles stolen and the loans advanced must be borne by the owners of the pawn tickets. They place their loss at $250,000, and that of their customers at $100,000, approximately.

All day long the dragnets drawn through the city by detectives brought a mixed crew of thieves, stool pigeons, and other denizens of the underworld into Police Headquarters, but nothing turned up to justify immediate arrests.

Two experts will begin an inventory this morning of the jewels, gold ornaments, and securities which were left after the thieves had so filled their sacks that they could take no more. Until this inventory is completed, probably by Thursday at the latest, an exact statement of the losses will not be possible.

Indications as to the shoulders on which the burden of loss will weigh heaviest were given all day yesterday among the throngs which waited around the dingy pawnshop, whose grimy windows and general air of neglect belied the treasure trove which it had held. Women with shawls over their heads and clinging to pawn tickets pressed their faces against the door glass, straining their eyes to detect some one within who would admit them. The door glass was wet with tears.

On occasion women, and even men, whose losses meant unmeasured hardship to them became hysterical, and their lamentations threatened to stir the sympathetic crowds to riot. Because of this danger a strong guard of police surrounded the pawnshop.

"Come back in three days," was the reply made to all by a policeman who stood guard at the door.

Young Simons at Headquarters.

Shortly after 3 o'clock there was a stir as Detective Julius Cohen shouldered his way along the pavement escorting two women and two young girls to Headquarters to be questioned. A little later Max Simons, junior member of the firm, was summoned to Headquarters, where he remained two hours.

The early morning investigation of the crime was begun on the theory that it was an "inside job." The intimate knowledge of the place held by the robbers was proved yesterday by the discovery that in their tunneling they had cleared the lowest of the burglar alarm wires by just two inches. They avoided putting a boot on the cellar steps. The pressure of a foot would have set the gongs ringing. The trap door was always left unlocked purposely, inviting an opening by a tampering hand. Martin Simons had this to say when asked if he thought the robbers had "inside" information:

"Some one who knew intimately the building plans of our establishment, must have furnished information to the robbers. It is incredible, impossible, that this person is an employe. The roster of those engaged in our business consists of myself, my son, my son-in-law, my nephew, and a girl, the bookkeeper, who is a friend of our family. You can thus see it is a family working force and each member enjoys the unbounded confidence of the other.

"Ruined," Says the Elder Simons.

"But look at those people out there," the aged pawnbroker exclaimed, pointing to the crowded sidewalks. "Many of them are poor and I am ruined. I don't see how my customers can recover from me. All that is required of me from a legal standpoint is proof that I employed all reasonable means to safeguard the property placed in my keeping. I can do that easily. I said when I was first told of the robbery Sunday night that I guessed I would have enough left to play pinochle. This was no joke. I meant that what I had left was merely sufficient with which to play pinochle. I have kept fast horses and automobiles because I could afford it. It's different now. I cannot start in business again.

"Friends have come forward and supplied the funds with which I am offering a reward of $10,000 for the arrest and conviction of the robbers. Banks are extending me credit, for though confidence in me is unshaken, I shall not return to business. But I am not responsible for the losses of my customers. The laws says so."

Although all the walls, windows, doors, and the flooring—except for the two planks through which the robbers cut a passage—were wired for alarms, the vault from which the loot was taken was not so thoroughly protected by wires. At the offices of the Holmes Electric Protective Company, 24 Cortlandt Street, President Holmes said yesterday that a letter suggesting to the Simonses that the vault be completely wired was sent to them a few months ago, to which no reply was received. It was a copy of a circular letter sent to several other business houses which the company believed should have better protection.

No watchman was employed in the Hester Street establishment. Martin Simons said yesterday he never considered a watchman necessary.

In addition to the jewels and other articles left as pledges for loans, it was learned yesterday that Simons & Sons made a business of accepting for safekeeping, from Saturday until Monday, as much as was most valuable of the stock of several neighboring pawnshops. Also, the firm accepted at nearly their full value as security for short-time loans unset diamonds from several firms doing business in Maiden Lane. Knowing these facts, the police after talking with the Simonses, said that the total loss might exceed the estimate of $350,000.

Dougherty Gets a Clue.

Commissioner Dougherty refused to make any statement concerning the robbery as he was leaving his office last night. It is known, however, that information was received late in the day which encouraged the officials in the belief that tangible clues had been obtained away from the immediate vicinity of the robbery. This development followed the visit to Headquarters of a woman whose name is kept secret. It is said she is a tenant in the building adjoining the pawnshop. The detectives learned from her that as she was leaving home about 10 A. M. Sunday she saw a man whom she did not recognize as a tenant come up the stairs leading to the cellar, carrying on his shoulder an acetylene lamp. He passed out to the sidewalk, where a man waiting with a horse and wagon hailed him. Placing the lamp in the wagon, he returned to the cellar, and next appeared with another acetylene lamp and a parcel. With these he climbed to a seat in the wagon and drove away. The woman described both men as foreigners.

A discovery which contradicts somewhat the theory of an "inside job" was made yesterday when the detectives found that the robbers abandoned their efforts to gain entrance to the vault through the roof, turning their attention instead to a side wall, through which an opening was made eventually. Work on the roof was stopped when the tools with which they were working struck a steel girder. Had they persisted in their drilling of the roof, the wires connecting the alarms would have been struck.

The police do not attempt to deny that gangs of safe robbers are unusually active throughout the city.

JUMP IN STATE VALUES.

Controller Explains the Big Surplus in the Sinking Fund.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17. -- Replying to a resolution of the Senate, Controller Sohmer to-night reported that the total balance in the Sinking Fund to cover all outstanding State bonds is $22,804,040, and that the calculated expense is $3,530,964, leaving a surplus in the Sinking Fund of $18,773,045.

The Controller said that the rate of tax on the canal, highway and other debts was fixed at a time when the increase of values of real and personal estate could not be foretold. The remarkable increase of such values from $5,854,500,121 in 1902 to $11,131,000,000 in 1912, Mr. Sohmer said, was due in part to the natural growth of the State, but more particularly to the valuation of franchises as real estate and the increase of assessments in the municipalities.

"If in the future it should become essential to increase the rate of interest on issues of State bonds and establish a new sinking fund on this increased interest rate legislative authority would be necessary."

The Governor's Committee of Inquiry has reported in favor of the utilization of the surplus in the Sinking Fund for general fund purposes this year.

PRIEST SAW DISORDER.

Father O'Mara Describes Conditions in a House Near His Church.

Father Patrick A. O'Mara of the Church of St. Malachi, in West Forty-ninth Street, described disorderly scenes which he had been compelled to see in the Robespierre apartment house at 230 West Fiftieth Street, when he appeared in the West Side Court yesterday as a witness against Ernest Tribelhorn, head of the Tribelhorn Realty Company, charged with maintaining a disorderly resort.

The church adjoins the rear of the apartment house, and persons in the rectory were shocked, according to Father O'Mara, more than once by the language used by people in the apartment house. The rector of St. Malachi's is now suffering from nervous prostration, due to the vicinity of the Robespierre, according to Assistant District Attorney Smith, and on account of his condition could not be called as a witness.

John S. Buskey, Jr., until recently an agent employed by Tribelhorn, described what he had found on visits to collect rent from the tenants. He said that he had told his employer of police raids on the place, but that Tribelhorn did nothing. According to Buskey, any woman who would pay rent three months in advance could have an apartment.

CALLS EXTRA SESSION TO MEET ON APRIL 7

President Summons Congress for Action of Tariff Bill, Which Will Be Ready.

SPECIAL MESSAGE AWAITED

In It President Will Suggest Programme of Session—Wilson-Underwood Tariff Conferences Planned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17. — President Wilson issued to-day a call convening Congress in extra session on April 7. "The date is perfectly satisfactory to the members of the Ways and Means Committee, including myself," said Representative Oscar W. Underwood, floor leader of the Democratic Party in the House of Representatives. "The Ways and Means Committee will be ready to proceed with its recommendations for the revision of the tariff by that time."

The President's proclamation was brief and followed form closely. It stated merely that "whereas, public interests require," Congress would be convened in extra session by order of the Executive. The absence of any reason for the calling of the extra session being specified in the proclamation is explained by the fact that Mr. Wilson's statement immediately after his election declared that he would call an extra session to revise the tariff.

Chairman Underwood was asked for a statement as to the subjects to be taken up for legislation in the extra session. He declined to make any prediction or statement in this regard, but indicated that the President had not informed him yet whether Congress would be asked in his forthcoming message to consider anything other than the tariff. The understanding of the House leaders had been that the session would be asked to confine itself to the tariff, but they have reason to believe that currency reform will also be taken up.

Mr. Underwood and the other leaders of the Democratic Party in the House will look to the President for suggestions as to the legislative programme, and will either confine the session to the tariff, or expand it to cover other questions, according to the recommendations Mr. Wilson will make.

The Ways and Means Committee has practically completed the preparation of the new Tariff bill. A draft of the measure has been sent to the Government Printing Office, to be put in type under seal of confidence, but the rates in this print are not final. There are 4,000 of these rates. Most of them have been definitely settled by the committee. Others, upon which the vote will be close in the committee, have only been tentatively settled.

At to-day's session of the Ways and Means Committee its members went over the administrative sections of the present tariff law and the so-called maximum and minimum provisions. They considered proposed changes in administrative features suggested by importers and manufacturers at the hearings, and the tightening of certain pararapghs with respect to undervaluation and the collection of duties.

The expectation is that the bill will be completed by next week, and then President Wilson will be informed of its details by Chairman Underwood. While no announcement has been made to this effect, it became known definitely to-night that President Wilson and Mr. Underwood will have a series of conferences on the tariff before the meeting of the extra session. The first of these conferences will probably be held next week.

President Wilson, in this way, will ascertain the tariff views of the House Democrats, and they will also learn his. He will know in detail just what Chairman Underwood and his associates propose before he completes his special message, and if there is anything in the bill that he would like to have changed, his suggestions will be taken up by the Ways and Means Committee.

When the bill is completed it will be submitted to a caucus of the Democratic members of the House. If approved by that caucus it will be made public, and Chairman Underwood will immediately introduce the bill in the House for formal reference to the full membership of the Ways and Means Committee. The Republicans will have a short time in which to pore over the proposals of the Democrats and will, of course, have an opportunity to offer a substitute. Then the bill will be reported to the House and taken up for immediate consideration.

It is the hope of Chairman Underwood and his followers that the Democrats in their caucus will indorse the bill as drafted. They do not, however, know yet that this will be the case. The Democratic caucus may elect to consider the bill in detail and amend it.

It is the belief that the general character of the bill will closely resemble the rate levels carried in the Underwood bills passed in the Sixty-second Congress. These were the Wool, Sugar, Steel, Cotton, and Chemical bills, and they compose what are known as the "fighting schedules of the tariff." Most of the other schedules, aside from the free list, deal with luxuries such as tobacco, wines, silks, and the like, where the reductions will not be great, if there is any reduction at all.

It is the present purpose of the House leaders not to undertake the complete organization of the House when it meets in April. Only such committees as are necessary to carry along the work of the House while the tariff is being considered are to be elected. These are five in number. They include the Ways and Means Committee, which will report the Tariff bill; the Mileage Committee, which must pass upon the payments of mileage to the incoming members; the Committee on Accounts, the Committee on Rules, and the Committee on Enrolled Bills.

It is not even the purpose at this time to organize the Committee on Appropriations. President Taft vetoed one of the big appropriation bills, the Sundry Civil, and the Indian bill failed. These must be repassed before the new fiscal year opens on July 1. Ordinarily, these bills would have to be referred to the proper committees. The probability now is that a few changes will be made in the Sundry Civil bill to meet the objections set forth in the Taft veto message, and then the two bills will be reintroduced and passed under a special rule without committee reference.

WILSON ASKS JURY REFORM.

Ignores Precedent and Sends Request for Passage of State Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—President Wilson telegraphed to-day to his New Jersey successor, Gov. Fielder, and to J. Warren Davis, Democratic leader of the New Jersey State Senate, asking that the jury reform bill be passed without qualification. The telegram said:

"I feel very strongly our party's unequivocal commitment to jury reform and that the terms of referendum in the present bill are a virtual nullification of the reform. Can we not give the people what they demand without qualification?"

Veteran politicians here said to-night that in sending this telegram President Wilson had gone further than any of his predecessors in the Presidential office in attempting to influence State legislation.

It was recalled here to-night that while Theodore Roosevelt, when President, contended that he had a right to take part in arranging the political programmes of the Republican Party in his own State, he did not attempt to influence directly legislation pending in the New York Legislature.

President Wilson's action to-day was said to be unprecedented.

The jury reform bill provides that Grand Juries should be selected by two Commissioners in each county instead of by the Sheriff. The bill was passed by the New Jersey House last week with an amendment providing that its provisions should not become law in any county unless approved by 30 per cent. of all the voters at the election at which it was submitted. The President regarded this amendment as affording a means of killing the bill.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 17.—After a conference of the Democratic Senators to-night, Senator Davis, the Democratic leader, announced that his Jury Reform bill would come up for passage in the Senate to-morrow. The conference of the majority Senators was called after Senator Davis had received a telegram from President Wilson urging that the party pledge be kept by passing a jury reform bill without qualification.

Senator Davis to-night said the conference had agreed to pass to-morrow his bill, which has not the Martin referendum that is in the Zisgen bill, passed by the House last week.

WILSON WEARS A SHAMROCK.

Tumulty Distributes in White House Sprigs Redmond Sent Over.

WASHINGTON, March 17. — President Wilson wore a shamrock sprig in the lapel of his coat to-day. His secretary, Joseph Patrick Tumulty, also saw that everybody around the executive offices recognized St. Patrick's Day in similar fashion. Mr. Tumulty distributed shamrocks sent to the President by John E. Redmond, Irish leader in the House of Commons.

Secretary Tumulty also decorated Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, with a shamrock.

"I heard that you had the real thing over here," said Secretary Daniels when he came to the White House, and Mr. Tumulty produced a sprig from the old sod.

START BOOM FOR GAYNOR.

Committee Formed to Put Him on Primary Ballot for Renomination.

The first step toward the renomination of Mayor Gaynor will be taken on Thursday, when a committee organized by William Lustgarten, active in independent Democratic politics here, will form a permanent organization. The plan of the committee, it was said, was to put the Mayor's name on the Democratic primary ballot by petition.

Among those said to be back of the movement are Sol Bloom, a real estate dealer; John Adikes, a merchant of Jamaica; John R. Butler of the Simpson-Crawford Company; P. H. McCoombs, General Eastern Freight and Passenger Agent of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway; Henry Siegel, the merchant; William J. Underwood, Louis A. Ames, Maj. James Otis Woodward, William S. Van Clief, President of the Staten Island Chamber of Commerce, and Williard U. Taylor.

The Mayor, when asked about it yesterday, said no one had consulted him about the movement.

Murphy intends to make much trouble for him, and that the Tammanyized Legislature will hold up his appointment of a Highways Commissioner, just as it has held up the appointment of Milton E. Gibbs. Mr. Murphy, Gov. Sulzer told his friends, had his heart set upon getting control of the $60,000,000 of highways money and would not relinquish the struggle without resorting to reprisals. In that event, however, the Governor said, he would let the voters know just how his efforts at constructive legislation were being balked. At the present time, he said, he had no one in mind for the appointment.

Discussion of Mr. Murphy's refusal to attend the birthday dinner at the Café Boulevard to-night was tabooed by Gov. Sulzer, who said he had not given this dinner any more attention than he had the several other dinners to which he had been invited. He had not heard of any plan to have him meet Mr. Murphy while on his present visit.

"I simply came down here to attend the celebrations in honor of St. Patrick's birthday and my own," he said.

Mr. Gaffney's views on good roads and his suggestions in relation thereto are contained in his brief to the Advisory Committee, a copy of which was obtained yesterday by THE TIMES. The new Commissioner of Highways, whoever he may be, will have charge of the expenditure of at least $60,000,000. This money Mr. Gaffney would like to see expended, in the language of his brief, according to certain "ideals."

One phase of these ideals of Mr. Murphy's business partner is that, as measured by them, the methods of spending the $50,000,000 recently consumed in road work leaves a record sticking out of "waste, mistakes, and faulty judgment." In attacking the methods of expending the State's money under the jurisdiction of the recently deposed Highways Superintendent Mr. Gaffney became emphatic.

"Macadam I would use only on side roads subject to light automobile traffic. The highest type of road material is the mixture of stone and asphalt, laid while hot upon old or new macadam foundation or concrete foundation. I would use this material for the main automobile highways. I am inclined to think that great encouragement should be given to the development of this form of construction as the one that most nearly meets the requirements for general highway improvement."

The patrol system of maintenance, which was credited with maintaining more political machines than miles of highway during the Dix administration, and with providing the principal force of election canvassers in many up-State villages, receives Mr. Gaffney's hearty support. He urges that four or more men be assigned to patrol each section of highway and that the length of each squad's patrol be governed by the local conditions and wear upon the road, as ascertained by experience.

"I regret to say that this waste stands out as the most prominent feature of former administrations," is his comment. "I hope our Advisory Commission can evolve and encourage new, progressive, and meritorious methods of construction and maintenance, which it is confidently hoped will secure to the taxpayers of this State the following benefits":

1.—A wise, progressive, and economical administration of the mighty trust which the taxpayers have placed in the hands of the Governor and his Highway Department when they voted the $50,000,000 bond issue.

2.—A system of permanent roads and highways, whether State or county, which will redeem all the promises made to the farmers and taxpayers in the early stages of the agitation for the improvement of the State and county roads.

3.—The rescue of this important branch of the government of the Empire State from the discredited condition into which, through former mismanagement, it has fallen, and the elevation of it to the position to which by right it belongs, to wit: As a worthy pattern to other States to imitate and profit by when they enter upon a similar undertaking.

In his brief, Mr. Gaffney goes on to explain some of the details he would like to see worked out. First, he would select four styles of standard paving—brick, asphalt block, macadam, and a mixture of stone and asphalt.

"I would lay the brick pavement in narrow streets," Mr. Gaffney says, "and I would always lay such pavement on a substantial concrete foundation, because the numerous joints permit water seepage to wash away anything but a concrete foundation."

Mr. Gaffney painted this portrait of his ideal Superintendent of Highways:

"The Highway Commissioner should be a man of horse sense; a good judge of men and their capabilities; of fair education; appreciative of and willing to take responsibility; of quick but sound judgment; a man of sufficient discernment so that the wool would not be pulled over his eyes, and with physique and willingness to himself work and be the actual executive head of such an important organization."

SULZER IGNORES MURPHY.

Both Guests of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick—No Greeting.

The two most conspicuous figures at the 120th anniversary dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor last night were Gov. William Sulzer and Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall. For more than an hour the Governor and Mr. Murphy were seated within twenty-five feet of each other, and because of the reports that the Tammany leader had decided to boycott the diner in honor of Mr. Sulzer's birthday, to-night, they were watched with keen interest by the other diners. While they didn't exchange a greeting there was no open evidence of bad feeling. Mr. Murphy rose with the other diners and drank a toast to the Governor.

More than 700 members of the society and their guests attended the dinner, and the guest list wasn't restricted to the Irish race. Edward E. McCall, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, and President of the organization, presided. Some of those on the platform were Henry Lawrence Bogert, President of the Holland Society; William M. Griffith, President of St. David's Society; Julius M. Mayer, James Mortimer Montgomery, John J. Delaney, Stephen Farrelly, Capt. Albert H. Gleaves, William G. Larkin, Augustus Thomas, Senator O''Gorman, David I. Walsh, Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts; John P. Grace, Mayor of Charleston, S. C.; John D. Crimmins, Commissioner Michael J. Drummond, Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, Major Thomas H. Barry, William Temple Emmet, Chauncey M. Depew, Walter L. McCorkle, of the New York Southern Society, and others.

It was just 9:30 o'clock when Gov. Sulzer and the members of his military staff entered the ballroom and the band in the gallery, which had been playing Irish ballads, struck up, "Here Comes the Chief."

All the diners, including Mr. Murphy, who was seated at table 14 with Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall; Philip F. Donahue, John F. Malone, John F. Galvin and other Tammany followers, rose to their feet. The procession, with the Governor at its head, made slow progress through the crowded room, as the Governor stopped to shake hands. Mr. Murphy stood silently, with his hands resting on the back of his chair. Mr. Smith, however, pushed his way to the head of the speakers' table and greeted the Governor cordially, shaking his hand and pointing out his seat to the right of Judge McCall.

Judge McCall, after a few remarks about the approach of the realization of home rule in Ireland, proposed a toast to the President of the United States, which was drunk amid a great outburst of cheers. He then introduced Lieut. Gov. Walsh. Mr. Walsh reviewed the history of Ireland's fight for home rule. He spoke also of the advance that Irishmen have made in this country.

It was when Gov. Sulzer was introduced that the toast to him was drunk.

"I need hardly introduce the next speaker," were Judge McCall's introductory remarks. "He is in the home of his friends, and I call upon you to rise and drink a tooast to the Chief Executive of the State."

Mr. Sulzer confined his remarks entirely to the significance of the day, paying a high tribute to the Irish people.

Among those on the seating list were Robert Adamson, Thomas F. Ahearn, Justices William J. Amend and Charles W. Appleton, ex-Police Commissioner William F. Baker, George Gordon Battle, John A. Bensel, Justice Nathan Bijur, Justice Henry Bischoff, Louis D. Conley, John F. Cowan, Commissioner William H. Edwards, Thomas F. Foley, County Clerk Robert L. Fowler, Justice James W. Gerard, Cornelius J. Hayes, Victor Herbert, Dr. E. J. Lederle, Justice David Leventritt, Dr. William Mabon, Thomas M. Mulry, Judge Michael J. Mulqueen, Morgan J. O'Brien, James W. Osborne, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, William F. Sheehan, Judge Seabury, Theodore P. Shonts, Alfred J. Talley, and Samuel Untermyer.

SUFFRAGISTS SEE WILSON.

Plead for Amendment, but President Does Not Commit Himself.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—For ten minutes to-day President Wilson listened to a committee of five representatives of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, who came to ask him to recommend in his message to Congress at the opening of the special session the consideration of an amendment of the Federal Constitution giving women equal suffrage with men throughout the United States. The members of the committee were Miss Alice Paul, Chairman of he committee which arranged for the suffrage pageant here March 3; Mrs. Stone, wife of Representative Stone of Illinois; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley of Washington, Mrs. Ida Husted Harper of New York, and Miss Mary Bartlett Dixon of Baltimore, a cousin of Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania.

Miss Paul said that one-fifth of the United States Senate and one-ninth of the House of Representatives were chosen in part by women. Mrs. Wiley said that mothers needed the vote in order to control the future of their children. Mrs. Stone spoke for the women of the West. She said in Illinois it was very difficult to amend the State Constitution, and that justice to women everywhere demanded complete suffrage.

The President said that so many subjects were pressing for a place in his forthcoming message that he could not promise that he would comply with their request, but he admitted that he was considering their cause. They must not think that he was against them if he should not now ask Congress to take up woman suffrage.

To the Cloak and Suit Trades of America:

The following resolution on standard lengths for the Fall of 1913 was adopted at the Cloak & Suit Designers' Convention at Masonic Hall, March 15, 1913:

"In semi-annual discharge of a responsibility entrusted to us by the universal consent of the American cloak and suit trades and in regular reaffirmation of our first move toward American sartorial home rule;

"We, the United Cloak and Suit Designers of America, in convention assembled, agreeing that the coming season's tendency will be toward cutaway effects, and that the standard garment of the coming season can no more be considered as a straight-bottom jacket;

"Hereby adopt 38 inches as the standard length for suit jackets for the coming fall season, 1913.

"Whereas, the tendency of the coming season in full length coats will be toward those shorter effects which keep the bottom of the garment from sweeping the ground, we therefore;

"Adopt 50 inches for the standard full length coat, and 46 inches for more stylish effects."

HARRIMAN ESTATE DROPS $11,000,000

Appraised at $69,000,000, but Shrinkage of Securities Reduces It to $58,000,000.

MANY ITEMS OF NO VALUE

Unlisted Securities Have Fallen Greatly Since His Death, and Others Are Below Cost to Him.

STATE LIST OF HOLDINGS

Only $2,992,120 Is in Real Estate—Pays Tax of $798,846 to Utah, $680,046 to New York.

Special to The New York Times.

GOSHEN, N. Y., March 17.—Harry W. Chadeayne, attorney for the State Controller, filed in the office of Surrogate John D. Swezey this morning the official inheritance tax appraisal of the estate of E. H. Harriman, who died Sept. 9, 1909 at his country home in Orange County. According to the appraisal, which was prepared by Transfer Tax Appraiser John W. Lyon, Mr. Harriman left a gross estate of $69,686,654.80, of which $66,694,534.80 was personalty and $2,992,120 was real estate. Comparing the appraiser's figures with the present values of the listed securities, a shrinkage of about $11,000,000 is shown. This reduces the present value of the estate to about $57,000,000. The net estate after deducting $1,682,306.12 for debts, administration, expenses, &c., was $68,004,348.68.

The appraisal revealed that Mr. Harriman's estate consisted largely of securities. Many of these were unlisted on any exchange. In many cases securities showed substantial decreases in value since his death. Even among the listed stocks there were examples of investments which did not bear out the original promises of value. Of these were holdings of the Underground Electric Railway of London, which were valued at $55,000, and Chicago Subway stock, of a par value of $6,711,250, which was worth but $1,107,356, when Mr. Harriman died.

The securities held in the Harriman estate which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, excepting various short-term railroad notes, show a tremendous shrinkage when their present market value is compared with their market value at the time the appraisal was taken. The decline in quotations in the three and a half years since Mr. Harriman's death has reduced the total of the railroad and industrial bonds and stocks from $35,954,000, in round numbers, to $24,882,600, a loss of more than $11,000,000. Expressed in another way, the value of the Harriman holdings of listed securities has declined more than 34 per cent.

Shrinkage of One-third.

Mr. Harriman had invested his entire fortune, with the exception of about $4,500,000, in securities of one sort or another, and, while many of them were inactive, the course of the entire market has been so persistently on the downward grade that few, if any, are worth as much as when they were purchased. Many of them are set down in the appraisement list as having no value whatever. If an average could be struck of all the stocks and bonds still held by the estate, it seems likely that a general shrinkage would be discovered, which would not be far removed from the loss of one-third their former market worth which the listed shares and bonds show.

The appraisal called to mind many interesting financial stories. Mr. Harriman's holding of Equitable stock, which was appraised at $1,728,397, recalled the insurance investigation of 1906, after which James Hazen Hyde sold his stock to Thomas F. Ryan the 501 shares giving control of the company. Later, Ryan sold half his controlling interest to Mr. Harriman, and later Mr. Ryan sold out to J. Pierpont Morgan. The Harriman interest was later acquired by Mr. Morgan, after Mr. Harriman's death. Its valuation at the high figure given in the appraiser's report bears out a story current in the financial district that Mr. Morgan paid interest on the Harriman stock from the date of its transfer from the Hyde ownership.

The Harriman estate's holding of $8,849,000 of Erie three-year collateral trust 6 per cent. notes recalled the days following the panic in 1907, when the Erie was in difficulties because of lack of funds to take up its outstanding notes. Mr. Harriman stepped into the breach after powerful bankers had declined to furnish the Erie with funds, and took up many of the notes himself.

His Share in the Pacifics.

Financial experts say there is nothing to remark upon in the fact that Mr. Harriman had held only 1,000 shares of Southern Pacific common stock, worth $124,000. He held a large interest in the Union Pacific, which had a large block of Southern Pacific stock. Of Union Pacific he held 51,900 shares of preferred stock, worth $5,371,650, and 55,000 shares of the common, valued at $10,725,000. Under the laws of Utah, where the Union Pacific is incorporated, the estate had to pay a tax of $798,846 on this stock, more than the entire New York tax, which was $680,046.83. The estate paid a tax of $675,000 to get the 5 per cent. discount within six months after Mr. Harriman's death, and this discount will more than eat up the difference between the $675,000 paid and the actual amount of the tax. The estate will be entitled to a discount on the original amount paid. The tax is low because the estate went exclusively to Mrs. Mary W. Harriman, the widow, who has to pay merely a 1 per cent. tax.

Mr. Harriman had at the time of his death cash balances totaling $1,432,242. He had $963,423 with J. W. Davis & Co., $185,759 with Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and but $4,822 with J. P. Morgan & Co. Among his accounts receivable were an indebtedness of $413,000 due from J. Ogden Armour, the packer; $1,000,000 on a promissory note from the Delaware & Hudson Company, and $650,000 from the Acme Engineering & Construction Company.

Appraiser Lyon fixed the value of Mr. Harriman's four motor cars at $18,000 and appraised his steam yacht Sultana at $50,000. His Stock Exchange seat was appraised at $85,000. Mr. Harriman's extensive real estate holdings in Orange County were appraised at about $700,000. In New York City he held 882 Fifth Avenue, appraised at $640,000; the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-second Street, appraised at $742,500, though assessed at $714,000; 1 East Sixty-ninth Street, appraised at $760,000, $5,000 more than its assessed valuation, and a half interest in two lots at 155th Street and St. Nicholas Place, appraised at $162,000, subject to a mortgage for $125,000.

Mr. Harriman's large holdings of transportation securities included 10,000 shares of Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul preferred worth $1,753,750; 6,000 shares of Delaware & Hudson, appraised at $1,134,000; 47,400 shares of Erie, appraised at $1,593,825, and 4,000 shares of Reading common, $633,000.

His banking stocks included 500 shares of Equitable Trust, appraised at $237,500; 800 shares of the First National of Chicago, appraised at $382,400; 4,820 shares of Guaranty Trust, appraised at $3,325,800; 1,000 shares of National City Bank, appraised at $389,000, and 5,050 shares of the National Bank of Commerce, appraised at $1,050,000.

Mr. Harriman was a heavy holder of express stock. He owned 22,203 shares of the United States Express Company, appraised at $1,982,520, and 21,860 shares of Wells Fargo & Co.'s Express, appraised at $6,683,300. Both companies operated over railroads he controlled. His industrial and mining holdings, on the whole, were poor investments.

The following tables show the amount and value of Mr. Harriman's securities and other assets, as valued by the State Appraiser:

Harriman purchases of securities on the Stock Exchange comprised thirty-seven issues of bonds and common and preferred stocks. With the exception of blocks of Central Leather, Colorado Fuel and Iron, Bethlehem Steel common and preferred, Pacific Mail, Pacific Coast, United States Express, Wells Fargo Express, Nassau Electric 4 per cent. bonds, and Standard Oil of New Jersey—traded in on the Curb—the Harriman holdings were confined to railroad issues. Only eight of these thirty-seven securities were worth more at yesterday's figures than when they were appraised in 1909, and the decline of some of them had been more than 100 per cent.

Stock market followers who were familiar with the operations of the little railroad king will be supplied with food for thought by the comparatively few shares held by the estate in certain properties in which Mr. Harriman was especially interested at one time. He owned at his death, for instance, only 473 shares of Illinois Central. At the time of the battle between Mr. Harriman and Stuyvesant Fish for control of the property, the former was one of the largest individual owners of the shares, and shortly afterward it was reported on good authority that he had advised the Union Pacific Directors to buy $28,000,000 par value of Illinois Central at $175 a share. The advice was not taken. Illinois Central sold in the market yesterday at 121¼.

Chicago & Alton was another property in which Mr. Harriman was interested heavily when some remarkable financing was done, which is still a sore subject in some quarters of the Street. The estate owned in 1909 only 5 shares of the common and 58 shares of the preferred stock.

INQUEST IN EATON HOME.

Admiral's Widow Questioned—Police Search the House.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 17.—The scene of the inquest into the death of Admiral Joseph G. Eaton was changed suddenly this afternoon from the Court House in Hingham to the Eaton home in Assinippi. Shortly after the adjournment for luncheon the whole official party entered a large motor car and rode to the Eaton residence. In the party were Judge Pratt, State Officer Scott, Dr. Joseph Frame, the Eaton family's physician, District Attorney Barker, and two witnesses—Ralph B. Keyes, who married June Ainsworth, and Dr. C. H. Colgate, who was the Eaton family physician six or seven years ago.

Mrs. Eaton was questioned at length in the afternoon, but the nature of her testimony was not divulged. Mrs. George Harrison, her mother, was not called. She is in a state of collapse. The inquest will go on to-morrow, it is understood. Judge Pratt will file his report next week. On the nature of that report hinges the future action of the authorities.

The police are keeping close watch on the important witnesses. Most of the members of the family are under surveillance, although District Attorney Barker will not admit there is reason for watching any one person. For several days an officer has been stationed in the Eaton home day and night, ostensibly to protect the women of the family. There has not been a moment when any one could enter or leave the house except under his eyes. Nobody has been permitted to enter the house unless accompanied by an officer. The house has been searched from top to bottom in an endeavor to prove or disprove the poison theory.

"We have had much more trouble with the police officers in the house than we have had with the reporters," said Mr. Keyes to-day. "They are all over the house at all hours spying on us and searching into everything. We are being very much annoyed."

The authorities learned to-day what they regard as a highly important bit of evidence. Mrs. John Barnes of Rockland, formerly housekeeper in the Eaton home, said Mrs. Eaton told her on the day the Rear Admiral died:

"The Admiral has had poison out in the barn. I don't know what he was intending to do with it. He had a mania for that sort of thing. He even used the dishes in the pantry to mix his messes in."

It also became known to-day that the authorities had been looking up C. D. Ainsworth, Mrs. Eaton's divorced husband. The police learned that up to October he was in Boston He was a salesman for a book concern and publishing house on High Street.

District Attorney Barker would say nothing regarding the identity or number of witnesses called.

"Every person who may have any knowledge of the death, or cause of death, of Admiral Eaton will be called before this matter is finished," was his only reply.

An official closely connected with the investigation said to-night:

"The authorities, because of things plainly apparent at the bedside of Admiral Eaton, have come to the conclusion that he did not reach death through natural causes."

This official further stated that the authorities are considering the possibility that the Admiral committed suicide, but would not say whether the investigation has thus far given any indication of this.

Judge Pratt declared to-day: "This case seems so important that I shall weigh with unusual care every statement to be included in my report."

This report, he added, may not be ready until the end of the week.

FEDERALS REPULSE REBEL NIGHT ATTACK

NO SHOTS ACROSS THE LINE

Combatants Avoid Clash with American Troops Stationed at Laredo, Tex.

LAREDO, Texas, March 17. — The streets of Nuevo Laredo, the Mexican town opposite this city, were the scene of a battle this morning, in which twenty Carranzistas and fifteen Federals were killed. Nearly fifty soldiers were wounded. The Carranzistas retreated to the [illegible] south of Nuevo Laredo, where they appeared to be preparing for a fresh assault. The street battle continued for an hour and a half.

The Carranzistas stole into the town under cover of darkness, 200 strong, and at daylight began a stubborn fight with the 350 Federals defending the place. The fighting for a part of the time was near the Rio Grande.

The small band of Constitutionalistas, in a running fight, drove headlong into Nuevo Laredo, past the Custom House to a lard factory, where they made a stand This occurred between 4 A. M. and dawn. At daybreak the Federals deployed about the lard factory, apparently taking care to draw the rebels' fire in a line parallel to the Rio Grande, so that no bullets could fall in Laredo. After some fighting the rebels retreated in good order into an open area, where they halted and checked the Federal pursuit. The Federals divided, one detachment swinging around to flank the Carranzistas. This flank movement brought the Federals directly between the rebels and Laredo, so that the rebel fire was directed at this city. The close range at which the battle was fought, however, saved the American city from harm.

The Federals did not pursue the enemy beyond the city limits. They estimated the number of their wounded at sixteen and rebels' at more than twenty. After the battle the American Consul at Nuevo Laredo requested American physicians to cross into the Mexican town to care for the wounded.

This afternoon the Associated Press correspondent saw twenty dead bodies in the municipal palace at Nuevo Laredo. In the hospital there doctors were treating eighteen wounded soldiers. Nuevo Laredo was almost deserted.

Armed soldiers guarded most of the street corners. American troops allowed no one to pass to the Mexican side without a permit.

CLOSING IN ON NACO.

2,000 Constitutionalistas Preparing to Attack Ojeda's Little Force.

NACO, Ariz., March 17.—Nearly 2,000 State troops are closing in to-night on the little Mexican border town opposite this port. Since their defeat on Saturday, when Gen. Ojeda's 450 Federals routed nearly 1,000 Constitutionalistas, the soldiers of the insurgent State have been anxious to act without delay. Especially bitter is the feeling over the execution of prisoners by the Federal General's orders.

Col. Juan Cabral, with 750 State troops, is moving by rail from Nogales over the branch line which circles south from Nogales to Del Rio and north again to Naco. This force, commanded by one of the chiefs who took Nogales last week, is in addition to other groups moving from the east and west. From the direction of Agua Prieta Col. Calles and Prefect Bracamonte, who were defeated in the first battle below Naco, are moving westward, and on the way reorganizing their scattered forces, which originally numbered 950. From Nogales 250 picked Yaqui braves are making a forced march to arrive in time with the other groups of State troops. Hearing of the approach of their tribesmen, a few of the Yaqui members of Ojeda's command have deserted, depleting the already small force of the Huerta garrison here.

With the return of the State troops in greater numbers, it is doubtful if Gen. Ojeda will dare venture out, as he did on Saturday, to meet an enemy four times his strength. Facing a situation similar to that occasioned by the battle at Nogales, when bullets fell in the American town, Col. Guilfoyle, commanding the Ninth Cavalry, is here to-day. He notified Gen. Ojeda that the Federal commander would be held responsible for any danger to Americans on the Arizona side of the line. Guilfoyle also ordered movements which to-night brought a total of nine troops of cavalry, including troops of the Ninth from Douglas and the Fifth from Fort Huachuca, to the border near this point.

Workmen late to-night began the construction of a bullet-proof adobe building here, to be used as a refuge for women and children.

CANANEA, Sonora, March 17.—Two hundred State troops left here to-day to participate in the movement against Naco. Their departure was not contested by the Federal troops, which remain in their barracks here.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., March 17.—Fourteen Federal soldiers wounded in Saturday's battle have died in Naco, it was learned to-day, making a total of more than thirty known dead among Gen. Ojeda's troops. The loss to the State forces was at least fifty killed, although only about twenty-five bodies have been recovered.

The losses do not include men put to death by the victorious troops. Although the Federals in Naco said they killed only Col. Guiterrez and two of his officers yesterday, the remaining thirty-five prisoners being alleged to have joined the Government troops, reliable advices today state that seventeen men died in front of the firing squad.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 17.—In an attempt to save the life of Roy Rankin, a Los Angeles detective, who was shot by a Mexican volunteer at Tijuana, Lower California, recently, six ribs and the remainder of his right lung were removed last night in a local hospital. Rankin was reported resting easy to-day.

HUERTA VISITS AMBASSADOR.

Tells Wilson He Is Eager to Remain Friendly with America.

MEXICO CITY, March 17.—Provisional President Victoriano Huerta, disregarding all precedents, called on Henry Lane Wilson, American Ambassador to Mexico, to-day. This is the first time, it is said, a Mexican President has visited the diplomatic representative of a foreign power. Technically, he left Mexican territory. The Chief Executive was accompanied by Francisco de la Barra, Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs.

President Huerta told Ambassador Wilson he had ratified the understanding between the American Ambassador and Minister de la Barra that all questions pending between the United States and Mexico be adjudicated without loss of time. He referred especially to the claims of Americans arising from the Mexican revolutions and also to the Chamizal boundary and other disputes.

Gen. Huerta reiterated it was his desire to continue the friendly relations of the two Governments. He expressed gratitude for the efforts made by the American Ambassador to bring about peace during the recent disturbances in the capital.

Amnesty Bill Passed.

MEXICO CITY, March 17.—The Senate passed the amnesty bill to-night. President Huerta will sign the bill, and it will go into effect in a few days. It applies to all persons in rebellion prior to March 4.

Porfirio Diaz Promises to Stay Away.

NAPLES, Italy, March 17.—Gen. Porfirio Diaz, formerly President of Mexico, received to-day a group of Latin-Americans to whom he reiterated that he had decided to return to Mexico only if it became necessary to organize a National struggle against intervention by a foreign power. The ex-President will leave Naples to-morrow for Rome, where he will be received by King Victor Emmanuel and by Pope Pius X.

POOR OLD COMMON SENSE!

In our day "common sense" is used to denote common custom, common habit, common belief, common tradition—in short, almost everything that is common except sense.

"Common sense" in its common acceptance is the sense that is common to the greatest number of people. Inasmuch as the greatest number of people commonly follow the leadership of habit and tradition rather than the guidance of their own ideas it follows, then, that "common sense" forms a doubtful premise for logical conclusions.

Real common sense is that sense of humility which senses intuitively common truth, common justice, common sincerity, common right.

We ourselves do not think that we have any more than our share of the world's visible supply of real common sense. But we have 200 tenants whose business sense is admittedly uncommon; and these tenants are so alive to the value of the facilities of the Bush Terminal and the service it renders that they continue not only to renew their leases but to increase their spaces.

We have a book called "How to Reduce Overhead Expense" that tells in common sense language what the Bush Terminal is and what it does. Copies will be sent at the request of responsible business men.

KILLS NEGRO HUGGER IN A RUNNING FIGHT

Black Had Attacked a White Girl, Who Appealed to Peg Post Policeman Michaels.

RAZOR USED ON PATROLMAN

Blinded by His Own Blood, Michaels Pursued, Shooting and Falling Unconscious Beside Negro.

Lying on a cot in Ward 3 of the Harlem Hospital, his head swathed in bandages, Patrolman George Michaels of the Lenox Avenue Police Station yesterday afternoon told a TIMES reporter the story of his desperate battle with a negro whom he had attempted to arrest shortly before daybreak for insulting a young white woman at the 135th Street Subway station. In spite of the fact that his scalp, face, and hands had been slashed in horrible fashion by the negro, who was armed with a razor, Michaels doggedly pursued and finally dropped him with a bullet through the heart in a doorway in East 139th Street near Lenox Avenue. Then he fell to the pavement unconscious from loss of blood.

"It was about 5:30 o'clock this morning," said Michaels, "that a young girl ran up to me on peg post at Lenox Avenue and 139th Street and said that a big negro had hugged her as she emerged from the 135th Street Subway station.

"'He's been following me for four blocks,' she said. Then she let out a scream. 'There he is now!' she cried, and I turned and saw the negro right behind me. He brushed me to one side and grabbed the girl by the arm.

"'You come along with me,' he said, and began to pull the girl roughly away.

"I leaped for him and he let go his hold and landed a swing on my nose that sent me to the sidewalk, half dazed. When I got to my feet he was running toward 138th Street and I started after him. I noticed that he was fumbling in his hip pocket as he ran, but I gave no thought to it at the time.

"Just as we reached the corner he suddenly wheeled, threw out both his arms, and caught me about the body. We went to the sidewalk with him on top and both my arms pinioned in the viselike grip of his legs. Sitting astride of my chest he began to slash at my head and face. I managed to work one of my hands free and got hold of the razor. The blade cut my fingers to the bone, but I held on and in the struggle for the weapon the handle snapped off. Then he jumped up and ran back in the direction of 139th Street.

"When I got to my feet the blood was streaming down into my eyes and I could not see clearly. I got my gun out and yelled to the negro to halt, but he paid no attention, and I started to pump lead after him as I ran. At the third shot I saw him stagger and fall, then I got dizzy and pitched over. When I got up he was turning the corner into 139th Street and I fired again.

"As I got to the corner I saw three men dart across the street in the direction of the negro, but was unable to tell whether they were police officers or citizens. I was afraid that my bullets might go wild and wound an innocent person, so I held my fire. Then the negro pitched over a second time and I gained on him before he got to his feet. I yelled once more for him to halt, but he kept on.

"Then I fired the fourth shot, and he turned into a hallway. As I came up to the stoop of the house I saw Patrolman Heppenheimer, who had run over from Seventh Avenue. He fired at the negro just as I gave him the last two bullets in my revolver as he was entering the vestibule. That was the last thing I knew until I woke up in the hospital here four hours later."

The young woman attacked by the negro was Miss Irene Leslie, a cabaret singer, of 36 West 139th Street. The negro was identified from letters found in his possession as Daniel T. Davis of 570 Lenox Avenue. His body was sent to the Harlem morgue, where it was claimed by his wife. The autopsy revealed that three bullets had penetrated the negro's lungs and that a fourth had entered the heart.

Miss Leslie corroborated the story told by her rescuer in every detail.

"It was awful," she said. "You see, I have to sing in a downtown restaurant until 3 o'clock. As a rule the trains in the morning hours are filled with men, most of them night workers, waiters, printers, and the like, and they never insult or annoy me. I was frightened almost to death when that black wretch seized me."

Miss Leslie followed the policeman while the latter was directing his running fire upon the fugitive, and when Michaels dropped unconscious to the sidewalk at the end of the man hunt she held his head in her lap until an ambulance arrived.

At the hospital it was found necessary to shave Michaels's head in order to sew up the five long, deep scalp wounds which criss-crossed his cranium. The patrolman's right wrist was slashed and his left cheek badly gashed. His upper lip was slit and the fingers of his right hand cut to the bone. His uniform was slashed into ribbons.

ELSIE DE WOLF PROTESTS.

Seeks to Recover 60 Per Cent. Duty Paid on Her Wardrobe.

Miss Elsie De Wolf appeared yesterday before Judge Waite of the Board of United States General Appraisers and made a spirited protest against the action of Collector Loeb in assessing a 60 per cent. duty on her wardrobe brought from Paris last Fall.

The baggage examiners on the pier when Miss De Wolf arrived thought the former actress's wearing apparel and other belongings somewhat more extensive than the provision in the customs law which exempts "articles for immediate and personal needs." They accordingly appraised the gowns and other articles at about $2,100, and demanded a duty of $1,400, which Miss De Wolf paid in order to obtain possession.

Miss De Wolf yesterday took the stand and swore that she had not purchased the articles in any professional capacity for sale or otherwise, and that the wardrobe was for her personal use. Judge Waite reserved decision.

TRAINMEN NOW SEEK MORE PAY

Union Officials Ask Railroad Managers to Fix a Date for Beginning Negotiations.

FIREMEN CITE EARNINGS

Statistician Asserts Their Pay Has Not Kept Pace with Increased Returns to Companies.

The fifty-four Eastern railroads, which have been compelled to increase the wages of their engineers within the last few months and are now arbitrating the demands of their firemen, are being pressed by their conductors and trainmen for consideration of their request for more pay. While the firemen's arbitration was proceeding at the Waldorf yesterday William G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and A. B. Garretson, President of the Order of Railroad Conductors, waited for an opportunity to talk with the Conference Committee of Managers with a view to fixing a date for the beginning of negotiations over their proposed scales, which were filed on Jan. 26.

The men whose wages are involved are conductors, baggage men, brakemen, flagmen, yard switchmen and, in the case of three roads, towermen. These employes number some 100,000, as against 30,000 firemen and 30,000 engineers. The average increase asked is some 15 per cent.

On the New Haven Road the linemen also presented demands yesterday, and their example may be followed on other roads. The New Haven men want $5 a day for line foremen instead of $4, the present rate; $4.50 instead of $3.50 for sub-foremen, $4 instead of $3 for linemen, and $2.50 instead of $2 for ground men. They gave the officials ten days in which to reply.

The New Haven Road figured largely also in the discussion before the firemen's arbitration board yesterday, W. J. Lauck, the statistician for the men, taking up his analysis of that road's earnings and wage payments. Mr. Lauck said:

"During the past eleven years the New York, New Haven & Hartford, by an increase in the tractive power of its locomotives of 64.51 per cent., and by an advance of 36.61 per cent. in the capacity of its box cars and 44.84 per cent. in the capacity of its coal cars, has been able to increase the weight of its average train load 34.09 per cent. and to transport an increase of 62.20 per cent. in ton mileage with an increase of only 38.11 per cent. in freight train miles. As a result of this development each freight train fireman has increased his productive efficiency, in terms of transportation units or ton miles, 28.72 per cent. To accomplish this result, however, it was necessary for each fireman to handle an increase of 33.17 per cent. in coal for each locomotive mile traveled."

The following table is made up of these figures of Mr. Lauck's, with others he gave subsequently for the Erie and Lake Shore Roads:

	Percentage of Increase. New Haven.	Erie.	Lake Shore.
Tractive power	64.51	101.68	163.95
Capacity of cars	40.72	45.77	34.29
Wt. of av. train load	34.09	....	17.19
Ton mileage	62.20	42.29	57.70
Freight train miles	38.11	0.71	34.00
Firemen's productive efficiency	28.72	45.75	13.01
Coal handled by each fireman	33.17	29.30	40.66

"I see by the newspapers," said Judge Chambers, Chairman of the Arbitration Board, "that the President of the New Haven road says it will have to reduce dividends. Why should that be necessary in the face of the figures you have given us?"

"If the financial management had been as efficient as the transportation management," replied Mr. Lauck, "there would be no such necessity."

Elisha Lee, representing the railroads, asked Mr. Lauck if the managing officials had not increased the efficiency of the road as well as the firemen, and in that case if their pay should not be increased.

"They should have their fair share of the increased revenue," replied the witness.

In one of Mr. Lauck's later tables it appeared that the New Haven had paid dividends in excess of net income, and he said this meant that dividends had been paid out of surplus. This, he said, would explain why Mr. Mellen thought dividends would have to be reduced.

After giving the figures contained in the table above for the Lake Shore, Mr. Lauck said the amount paid for firemen last year was $1,038,131. On the basis of the increased revenue, as compared with transportation cost and increased work of firemen, they should have received, he said, $222,053, or 22 per cent., more, as their just share. When he came to the Erie Railroad, Mr. Lauck said:

"The notorious manipulation of the securities of this railroad during former years and the malpractices by which its capitalization was enormously increased without yielding one dollar to the property are a matter of common knowledge. As a consequence, were it not for its wonderful advance in efficiency of operation, the payment of any dividends at all might be considered almost marvelous. As it is, the figures disclose the fact that $12,695,790 was actually paid in dividends to stockholders of this railroad during the period 1902-1907, and during the past eleven years, in addition to dividends, $32,258,982 was added to the value of their property from surplus earnings. The entire outlay for firemen during this same period was only $10,654,498 and for every dollar paid to firemen the stockholders, therefore, received more than $4."

Mr. Lauck reached similar conclusions as to what the other two roads ought to do for their firemen. This concluded the presentation of detailed statistics for individual roads, owing to the time limit imposed by the board. Mr. Lauck had prepared the same elaborate analysis for each of forty roads, but the rest were simply filed with the commission.

Mr. Lee will begin to-day the cross-examination of Mr. Lauck, who has been on the witness stand several days, and the railroads expect that his conclusions will be largely demolished.

BELMONT ON 'NEW FREEDOM'

An Idealism Substituted for a Retarding Materialism.

Special to The New York Times.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., March 17.—The Hibernians of Central Illinois united in a St. Patrick's Day celebration at the Bloomington Club to-night. Perry Belmont of New York, made a speech, in which he said:

"American patriotism demands fidelity to the principles of our new freedom and unselfish devotion to its cause without expectation of reward. As we look abroad to other lands where revolutions, war and threats of war, distress, pestilence, and famine prevail, we realize that American discontent is by comparison a healthy form of dissatisfaction, giving expression to progress toward higher ideals, and more equal opportunity for all the people. New freedom is the substitution of an inspiring idealism for a retarding materialism which has been an embarrassment to the true progress of the Nation."

METHODISTS DIVIDE ON STORY OF JONAH

Controversy Begun Over Mains's Book Turns to a Stormy Debate of Clergymen.

SOME LEAVE HALL IN ANGER

Editors of Books and Magazines Defend Themselves Against the "Old Bible Friends."

The old question whether the whale really swallowed Jonah intruded itself surreptitiously into a meeting of Methodist clergymen in the Methodist Building yesterday morning, and for a few minutes the ancient query proved that it still had vitality enough to provoke a lively row.

The conference, which was attended by more than 200 clergymen, was immediately divided into hostile and rival camps of pro-Jonah and anti-Jonah men. The pro-Jonah men insisted that if you were to repudiate the Jonah story you might as easily repudiate the Biblical story of the resurrection and the miracles. To keep the Bible from general mutilation, they insisted that the Jonah story would have to be accepted in all its literalness.

The anti-Jonah men, on the other hand, insisted that the story was clearly proof that even in Biblical days some men had a sense of humor and took a keen delight in fish stories.

The Rev. A. Stockdale of Asbury Park, who summed up the case for the anti-Jonah men, after two advocates of the literal version of the Jonah story had quit the meeting in anger, explained why it was hard to use the strict Biblical interpretation.

"In my Sunday school at Asbury Park," he said, "I told them the Jonah story just as a test. The children listened attentively and then one ten-year-old boy put up his hand. 'Teacher,' he said, 'that's a mighty fine fish story, but it's a lie.'"

The applause that greeted the Rev. Mr. Stockdale was interspersed with a few cries of "No, no!" These came from the group known as the "Old Bible Friends."

Of this group the Rev. Jay Benson Hamilton, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, was the chief spokesman. The stated purpose of the meeting was to permit a general discussion of the question: Shall the Bible be mutilated? Those who chiefly wished to participate in the discussion were members of the group known as the "Old Bible Friends," who had taken issue with criticisms of the Bible recently published in Methodist magazines and books meant for use by members of the church.

One of these books, published by Dr. George P. Mains, publishing agent of the Methodist Book Concern, had particularly offended some of the more conservative church members. A defense of his book made by Dr. Mains a week ago, at which time discussion from the opposition was not permitted, led to the demand for an opposition hearing at yesterday's meeting. It was the intention of several members of the opposition, besides Dr. Hamilton, to speak against the tendency to take the Bible less literally than in former times. But the intrusion of the Jonah question and the rapid-fire debate which followed it on the part of two editors of Methodist publications, who arose to defend the editorial policies, consumed the entire time set apart for the meeting and the luncheon period as well. The final adjournment, which came at 2 o'clock, was somewhat in the nature of a hunger strike against further controversy.

Dr. Hamilton spoke from a carefully prepared manuscript upon the serious necessity to consider the Bible as an inspired work and to include even the English translation in the inspired conception. When clergymen took this view, he said, it left no question whatever open for the advocates of higher criticism.

John T. McFarland, editor of The Methodist Sunday School Magazine, felt himself attacked in what Dr. Hamilton had said, and he rose from the floor to reply. In rather heated terms he stated that the policy of The Sunday School Magazine was to give the young people of the church access to the results of criticism of the Bible. He said it was the policy to do this so far as possible without giving offense to the believers in the literal accuracy of every statement in the Bible. Mr. McFarland broached the question of an editor's duty in the face of the Jonah story. James M. Buckley, former editor of The Christian Advocate, and David G. Downey, book editor of the Methodist Publishing Concern, supported The Sunday School Magazine editor.

Reporters who had remained outside during the first part of the meeting, on the understanding that it was to be secret, saw the door suddenly fly open and two clergymen issue forth. They were asked what it was all about.

"The less said the better," one of them remarked. "They are throwing Christian brotherhood to the winds and attacking each other without charity and without fairness to each other's views. If I were not a Christian a meeting like this would not make me one. I have had all I can stand, and I am going away."

Both of the clergymen refused to give their names.

McADOO BARS JOB-HUNTERS.

Won't See Any More, but Will Consider Written Applications.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Following the example of President Wilson, Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury announced to-day that he would see no more officeseekers.

The experience of ten days, he said in a prepared statement, had taught him that only a superman could remember the qualifications of the applicants of a single day, while the public business required more time than the officeseekers left him. He suggested that applicants merely send him letters, which he promised to read carefully.

Some of the posts at Mr. McAdoo's disposal seem to be going to men who have not sought them. When former Gov. Burke of North Dakota accepted the Treasurership of the United States it was only after Mr. McAdoo had telegraphed to several cities in a vain effort to locate him. It is said that the same course is being followed in filling one of the Assistant Secretaryships, a New Yorker and a Bostonian being under consideration, and also in regard to the Port Collectorship of New York.

Navigation on the Hudson Open.

Following the unusually mild Winter the Hudson Navigation Company's steamers made the first trip to Albany last night, and the return journey to New York will be made to-day. On Jan. 30 the Hudson River was free from ice for the first time in thirty-nine years, and on Feb. 5 it was closed to navigation. In addition to the C. W. Morse and the Adirondack, a new steamboat, the Berkshire, will be added to the service in the middle of May.

ST. PATRICK PARADE BIGGEST IN YEARS

Some 25,000 Loyal Irishmen March Up Fifth Avenue Before Great Crowds.

A HOME RULE CELEBRATION

Governor, Mayor, and Cardinal Farley Review the Line—Suffragists Not Allowed to Join.

So many people with sprays of shamrock on their hats, Irish emblems on their coats, and green flags fluttering in their hands, have not turned out in many years as assembled along Fifth Avenue, north of Forty-second Street, yesterday to watch the parade of St. Patrick's Day doing honor to the patron saint of Ireland, and at the same time celebrating the approach of home rule. The crowd that had begun to gather before the noon hour was finally estimated at from 50,000 to 100,000, and the number of marchers was placed as high as 25,000.

The celebration was officially begun with a solemn mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral at 11 A. M., at which the Right Rev. Thomas F. Cusack, Auxiliary Bishop, officiated. Cardinal Farley attended the mass, and the "Fighting Sixty-ninth Regiment," in dress uniform, was there under the command of Col. Louis D. Conly. The Rev. H. D. Devlin preached.

Promptly at 3 o'clock, when the parade was scheduled to start, Mayor Gaynor arrived at the cathedral to take his place in the reviewing stand. He was the first of the reviewing officials to reach the place, and his presence caused no little commotion among the spectators who had been waiting eagerly to catch a glimpse of the Cardinal and the Governor, as well as the Mayor. When Mayor Gaynor found that there was no one else in the reviewing stand he retreated around the corner of the cathedral and sought shelter from the blustering wind in the doorway on the south side of the edifice. Standing in the sunshine, he faced the crowd, apparently lost in contemplation, and unwittingly gave to the corps of photographers and motion picture men for whom he has often refused to pose an excellent opportunity for a harvest of pictures.

About twenty minutes later Gov. Sulzer, accompanied by his aids, arrived. The reviewing party then took their places in the grand stand, and the head of the column of paraders, led by a platoon of mounted police, followed by Bayne's Sixty-ninth Regiment Band and the "Fighting Sixty-ninth Regiment," under the command of Col. Conly, appeared at Forty-seventh Street.

Cardinal Farley occupied the place of honor in the middle of the second row in the reviewing stand. Seated at his left were Gov. Sulzer and Mayor Gaynor, and on his right Adjt. Gen. Hamilton and Mgr. Lavelle. Seated in the front row were Mgr. McGean, Commissioner Edwards of the Department of Street Cleaning, John D. Crimmins, Police Commissioner Waldo, and Mgr. James H. Mooney.

Four women suffragists marched in the parade from Forty-third Street half way to Forty-fourth. There a policeman politely asked them, with the compliments of the Grand Marshal, if they would please break ranks, and they did, thus ending the first woman suffrage St. Patrick's Day parade. Marshal McGuire of the woman's division of the parade shook hands with them, told them how sorry he was, and said that if they couldn't march in his parade he would come and march with them in their suffrage parade of May 3.

BROOKLYN SOCIETY DINNER.

Gov. Sulzer Speaks in the Middle of It to 500.

The St. Patrick Society of Brooklyn held its sixty-fourth annual dinner last evening at the Waldorf. Gov. Sulzer was the guest of honor, and he was greeted with enthusiasm by the 500 diners. The other speakers were Almet F. Jenks, Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division; Corporation Counsel Archibald R. Watson, the Rev. William B. Farrell, Chaplain of the society; Augustin MacHugh, and William P. Oliver.

Gov. Sulzer left early to attend three other dinners, and his speech came in the middle of the dinner. The diners stood up and gave him a hearty welcome, waving small silk Irish and American flags, which had been distributed at the plates. The Governor said, in part:

"I am now, always have been, and ever will be a firm believer in Home Rule—in the doctrine of the right of the people to govern themselves. In my opinion, every community of men inherently possess the right of self-government, and its denial has ever compelled the friends of liberty to seek through the most heroic struggles to attain this right when denied by despotic rulers."

Among those seated at the speakers' table were Alfred E. Steers, Borough President of Brooklyn; Herman A. Metz, Dr. Joseph J. O'Connell, Health Officer of the Port of New York; Surrogate H. T. Ketcham, Justice John Woodward of the Appellate Division, and John N. Harman.

For Senators by Popular Vote.

Men's $2 and $2.50 Pajamas, $1.35

This is soothing news for 600 men. At least, there are that many suits of Pajamas, although they will probably be bought two or three suits at a time.

Material is highly mercerized cloth, soft and luxurious, in plain colors—tan, cream, blue and lavender or good-looking stripes. The Pajamas have surplice necks, silk loops and pearl buttons, and are altogether ideal sleeping garments for Spring and Summer wear. Sizes A, B, C and D—$1.35 a suit.

New Lot of Men's Shirts, $1.25

These fine Shirts—of $2 grade, if we ever saw any—have come stringing in from the maker at far too slow a pace to please us.

But a limited new supply is ready today—of fine woven madras, and percale, in handsome striped patterns, in negligee or pleated bosoms and attached cuffs. Sizes are 14 to 17, and ample in cut. At $1.25 each, there is a saving of 37½ per cent, on their real values.

Jewelry versus Injury

And a word about some Easter Fitments for Men

HE AND HIS WIFE were reading separate sections of the evening paper.

"Here is an account," said she, "of a man in Chicago who gave his wife a $10,000 diamond necklace. Nothing like that ever happened to me."

"And here," said he, "it tells about a Boston man who gave his wife a black eye. Nothing like that ever happened to you either, my dear."

All of which is by way of illustrating that most dissatisfaction is the result of lack of the appreciation of satisfaction.

And which is apropos of the truth that such appreciation, both immediate and permanent, is the natural right fulfilled of the man who seeks here new-born style of sterling parentage.

SUBWAY CONTRACTS IN ONE MORE DAY

They Would Have Been Executed on St. Patrick's Day Except for Perplexing Debt Limit.

ALL FIGURED OUT AT LAST

Shonts Gets the Worst of an Argument, in Which He Disputes the Estimate of Available Funds.

Difficulties arose yesterday about the precise sum to be charged against the city's debt limit on account of the city's share in the cost of subway construction, which prevented the hoped-for signing of the contracts with the companies on St. Patrick's Day. The latest programme provides that the Board of Estimate shall make the necessary appropriation this afternoon at 3 o'clock and shall authorize the Public Service Commission to execute the contracts. To-morrow morning it is hoped that Chairman McCall will actually sign the contracts.

The hitch was due to the desire of the city to protect the bankers for the companies. And it was necessary in order to do so that the city should make its contribution to the construction cost an immediate charge against the debt limit. But, as there are at the present time several other costly enterprises demanding capital expenditure on the part of the city, such as docks, court houses, and schools, as well as subways, the officials have been forced to figure the charges against the debt limit very closely. Consequently they cut down the subway estimate to such amount that the Interborough protested.

The first total reached by the accountants and engineers of the Public Service Commission was $108,000,000, but Borough President McAneney spent Sunday going over it with the result that he cut out $16,000,000 of the charges against available funds.

When Mr. McAneny had completed his revision, Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough, thought he had gone a bit too far. It seemed to the company that at least $1,000,000 too much had been taken out of the sum to be reckoned against the debt limit, and the commission, instead of voting the requisition on the Board of Estimate at its meeting yesterday morning, agreed to another conference. Mr. Shonts, with Richard Reid Rogers, counsel for the Interborough, appeared in the afternoon at the commission's offices and argued his point. Chairman McCall and Mr. McAneny also argued their side, with the result that, so far from Mr. Shonts affecting the charge of the extra $1,000,000, he had to assent to a further paring down to the extent of $900,000.

The result is that the Board of Estimate will be asked to appropriate for the B. R. T. construction work $80,000,000 and for the Interborough work $31,100,000.

Borough President McAneny issued yesterday a statement showing what will be left of the city's debt limit when the subway needs have been met.

"Above the amounts appropriated to-morrow," he said, "the city will have about $32,000,000 of borrowing margin for other needs to be met through the year, and this may be increased several millions through the rescission of some of the authorizations for other expenditures that are not considered immediately necessary and against which actual contracts have not yet been made."

Of this amount it is probable that $12,000,000 will be spent on docks, Mr. McAneny's idea being that enough must be appropriated to begin work in South Brooklyn, near Desbrosses Street, and above Forty-third Street, without attempting to complete any of these jobs. Then for the County Court House site as already laid out $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 will be needed, and Mr. McAneny hopes to proceed at once to condemn the small parcels to the southeast and southwest at a cost of $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 more to round out the Civic Centre scheme.

At its meeting at 10 o'clock this morning the commission will also authorize the form of the Interborough's $170,000,000 mortgage. At a hearing held upon this yesterday before the commission J. Aspinall Hodge, counsel for the Continental Securities Company, put in an objection on the ground that it was not proved that two-thirds of the stockholders of the Interborough had assented, and that the vote cast for it by the Windsor Trust Company, as Voting Trustee for the Interborough-Metropolitan, was illegal. The commission received his protest but took no action upon it.

Asked afterward if he intended to continue his struggle against the contracts and would bring proceedings to restrain the city from the execution of the contracts Mr. Hodge said:

"The Interborough stockholders meet again on Wednesday to act on changes in the proposed mortgage necessitated by the Manhattan's new arrangement with the Interborough. I shall exhaust every legal right I have to protest at that meeting before carrying the mater further."

Fined for Keeping Bad Eggs.

The Justices of Special Sessions imposed a fine of $100 yesterday upon Morris Saal, a butter and egg dealer of 231 Stanton Street, who pleaded guilty to having sixty-nine dozen bad eggs in his place. HIGH SCHOOL COURSE FOUND FAR SHORT City's Educational Exhibit Puts New York Nearly at Bottom of the List of Ten Cities.

SCHOOLS ARE TOO FAR APART

Work Excessive—Enforced Language Study Wrong and Courses Unadapted to a Varied Population.

The present course of study in the high schools of New York is undemocratic, unsocial and unpedagogical, according to a report made to the Committee on School Inquiry of the Board of Estimate by Dr. Calvin O. Davis, one of the educational experts employed by the committee under Prof. Paul H. Hanus of Harvard to make an investigation of the public school system. The report was made public yesterday. Dr. Davis finds that the single uniform courses now offered in the city high schools are old-fashioned, decidedly narrow, too rigidly prescribed and utterly neglectful of the needs of the individual pupils.

Compared with the best practice as illustrated in the courses of study offered in high schools of ten of the largest cities in the United States, Dr. Davis says the New York high school course is unwisely and unjustly inflexible.

"Virtually four-fifths of the entire four years' course offered in the New York high schools," he says, "is identically the same for all students, whether they are boys or girls, children of cultured homes and surrounded by helpful influences, or children of ignorant, impoverished parents and deprived of nearly all wholesome indirect educational agencies."

This uniformity of prescription is condemned as vicious in principle and injurious in practice. "In making the work of each year flexible and hence more adaptable to the peculiar needs of individual pupils," he says, "New York City ranks below nine-tenths of the other ten cities. In the first year New York City stands at the bottom of the list, in the second year next to the bottom, in the third year third from the bottom, and in the fourth second from the bottom."

Taking eleven of the principal cities of the country, he finds the amount of prescribed work in the first year of high school in those cities to be as follows:

	P. C.
New York	100.00
St. Louis	75.00
Cleveland	75.00
Cincinnati	72.22
Detroit	55.55
Indianapolis	50.00
Newark	47.37
Boston	25.00
Los Angeles	25.00
Chicago	10.00
Milwaukee	0.00

From this table he points out that New York allows individuals no choice whatever in selecting their courses in the first year. Every offering is prescribed for all. In this respect New York City stands alone, no other city prescribing work in excess of 75 per cent.

"We find, therefore," he observes, "in summarizing that, in respect to the scope of the work offered in the general course, the intensiveness with which many studies are pursued, and the flexibility with which the work is administered, New York City ranks markedly below the majority of other cities with which it has been compared."

Discussing the special courses, such as mechanical arts, domestic science and applied art, as provided in the general high schools of the ten other cities, he finds New York to be far from abreast of the times, both in the scope and intensiveness of its industrial work for boys and girls. There is little organization of such courses here, he declares, and they are administered with much rigidity. The offering in the high schools is pursued with less intensiveness in New York City than elsewhere in English, history, civics and economics, mathematics, natural science, commercial subjects, industrial subjects for both boys and girls.

Dr. Davis answers two questions which he propounds himself covering the character of the city's population and the peculiar conditions governing it. The conclusion is that the special courses of special schools are ill-fitted and inadequate.

Concerning the availability and the adequacy of high school facilities in New York City, he says:

"The enormous size of the high schools in New York City and the resulting fact that there are comparatively few high schools for a city the size of New York keep the schools long distances from a large part of the high school population. Long distances, necessitating the employment of mechanical means of travel, impose considerable expenditures of time and money upon young people seeking a high school education. For many pupils these incidental expenses are prohibitive of a high school education."

It is proposed as a means of overcoming these objections, that several additional high schools be provided and that the city pay carfare for pupils living beyond a fixed limit; that prescribed subjects shall not exceed 55 per cent. of the requirements of graduation, and that principals have greater authority to adjust the course of study to local needs, and that foreign language study be not included in the absolute prescriptions for graduation.

NEW CUSTOMS FEE EXACTED.

Tax of $1 Soon to be Laid on Each Protest Against Appraisement.

Importers are stirred up over an executive order issued by former President Taft on March 3, requiring the payment of $1 for each protest filed with the Board of United States General Appraisers against the classification and appraisement of imported merchandise made by customs officials.

As approximately 60,000 protests are filed with the board every year, the new tax would yield annually additional revenue amounting to $60,000. The President's order amends the Customs Administrative act governing the filing of protests by requiring that protests shall be regarded as abandoned unless within thirty days from the date of filing $1 is deposited with the Collector. If the importer wins, the deposit is to be returned, otherwise not.

It was held yesterday in some quarters that President Taft had no authority to issue an order revising an administrative provision of the Tariff act, and that the order would not stand the test of constitutionality. Importers will call a meeting in the near future to consider what action is to be taken in regard to the order. The general sentiment appears to be in favor of an injunction followed by an appeal to the Federal courts. It is understood that the new order becomes effective on July 1, the beginning of the Government's fiscal year.

VAN VALKENBERG TRIAL ON.

Wife Wants $100,000 She Says She Spent to Live.

The trial of Mrs. Philip Van Valkenberg's suit against her husband for $100,000 for living expenses was begun before Supreme Court Justice Erlanger yesterday.

She says that since her separation from her husband she has been living on money left her by her second husband, William Hayes Chapman, who was 73 years old when she was married to him.

In her complaint she filed a bill of particulars giving her expenses, as follows:

Three European trips, $32,000; apartments at the St. Regis Hotel, $12,000; motors, chauffeurs, &c., $10,000; clothing, $20,000; entertainments and restaurant bills, $19,000; physician's bills, $2,300; woman companion, $8,000; dentist bill, $1,200, and miscellaneous expenditures, $4,500.

HOW ARTISTS VIEW TIMES EASTER GIFT

Surprised and Pleased by Color Reproductions of Morgan Art, to be Published Sunday.

THEY SEE ADVANCE PROOF

"Quintessence of the Printer's Art," Says H. A. Lukeman—Blashfield and Cox Both Enthusiastic.

"By Jove, that's good!" exclaimed Edwin H. Blashfield, best known, perhaps, for his mural paintings, when an advance proof of the eight full-page reproductions in color of gems from the fifty-million-dollar art collection of J. Pierpont Morgan, which are to be published in THE TIMES of March 23 was shown to him yesterday at his studio in Carnegie Hall.

"First rate; very, very interesting," Mr. Blashfield added, and, although he was literally up to his ears in work, he put aside his brush and palette and spent many minutes in closely examining the colored supplement which is to be a feature of the Easter Number of THE TIMES.

"The Raphael is very like the original," he commented, referring to the "Virgin and Child Enthroned with Saints," on the front page. "It is a very faithful reproduction of the original, of all the master's solid color tones. They are getting clever nowadays."

But he lingered longest over the celebrated portrait of Miss Farren, by Sir Thomas Lawrence, which made the latter's reputation. He lightly touched Miss Farren's hair with his tapering artist's finger, then followed the pending sweep of the figure.

"That hair and face, now, and the region about the shoulders—I am interested particularly in that. Lawrence's delicate tints come out with wonderful clearness and fidelity to the original in your reproduction. The drapery also is very handsome; the landscape in the background is nice, too. And the color scheme of the sky is charming.

"The background of the Reynolds is very hadsome," Mr. Blashfield commented, referring to the fourth picture, the portrait of Lady Betty Delme, by Sir Joshua Reynolds. "And the eighteenth century color feeling is well caught in your reproduction of Drouais's 'Mademoiselle Helvetius,' he added, pointing to the face of the little girl. "We are glad to get Turner's brushwork, too, in his 'Depositing of Giovanni Bellini's Three Pictures in the Church of the Redentor, Venice. I should like several copies of these reproductions.

"I am pleased to see this sort of thing done. Go ahead and print a lot more of them. I should like to see a great many more pictures, ancient and modern, popularized in that way by THE TIMES. The thing is to take good pictures, whether ancient or modern, as long as they are good. I am very glad to have seen these; they are splendid."

Kenyon Cox, the painter, at his studio, 123 East Sixty-seventh Street, was particularly impressed by the reproduction of the Raphael, which he considered by far the finest of the eight reproductions, and he explained just why Raphael's technique and use of large, simple color masses lent themselves especially well to that sort of thing.

"These big, sweeping masses are very satisfactory," Mr. Cox said. "The Raphael comes out especially well, and gives an excellent idea of the original, because Raphael's use of color rather lends itself to the color print. He uses his colors in very simple masses. There is little attempt to vary the shade. There is no great variety in the masses of what we painters call the 'local' color. He handles his colors very much as the color print artist handles them. The result of that is that his colors can be rendered in printing with much greater accuracy than that of more advanced painters, who employ broken tones. The Turner is brilliant and very effective, too."

When an advance proof of the colored supplement of the Easter Number was shown to Henry Augustus Lukeman, the sculptor at his studio, 145 West Fifty-fifth Street, he pronounced them the finest reproductions he had ever seen.

"They are the quintessence of the printer's art," Mr. Lukeman said. "I am much impressed with them and feel it is a notable step in advance in the reproduction of works of art THE TIMES truly has taken a progressive stand in this direction as well as it has in others, and it will give great encouragement to the living artists whose works have formerly been badly interpreted in color by the mechanical process, which faults are entirely absent in these reproductions.

"In a word, it is a great triumph for art, and THE TIMES is to be congratulated most heartily by all artists; and it is hoped that it will continue to give colored reproductions not only of the old or foreign artists, but of contemporary American art as well. I know of no more direct way of reaching and educating the public than through the medium of color reproductions of works of art, paintings and good sculptures as well. In this way, a great newspaper becomes the apostle of the beautiful and helps to spread the gospel of good art; it becomes a teacher to millions of readers. Such a color supplement is a guide post which other publications might well follow. I congratulate THE TIMES on leading the way."

INDICTMENTS IN COX CASE.

Secret Findings Against Former Cincinnati Officials.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 17.—Secret indictments were returned to-day against former officials of the Cincinnati Trust Company, of which George B. Cox was President. The indictments were sealed and court officials declined to say how many had been returned. It was said the defendants would not be cited into court until to-morrow. Affairs of the trust company have been under investigation most of the time since its absorption a year ago by the Provident Savings Bank and Trust Company.

The indictments were returned after a long conference to-day between Attorney General Hogan, Prosecutor Pogue, and B. H. Kroger, President of the Provident Savings Bank and Trust Company, who was Chairman of the liquidating committee of the trust company. The conference is reported to have related to a proposal of the Directors of the trust company to pay $352,000 to the credit of the bank for the purpose of compensating stockholders.

This amount is said to represent a note placed in the trust company's assets by its Directors after a warning by the State Banking Department when it was found the trust company had loaned the Ford-Johnson Chair Company an amount in excess of that permitted by law.

UNITED CIGAR STORE ROBBED

Clerk in 42d Street Gagged and Bound and $200 Taken.

Three armed men entered the United Cigar Store at 216 West Forty-second Street at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning, bound and gagged the clerk, Albert Berger, and after raiding the safe and cash register went away with $200. The police have no idea who the robbers were, but say they are quite sure they were the same ones who held up August Jacobson, clerk of the United Cigar Store at 664 Eighth Avenue, not fifty feet from Forty-second Street, on the morning of Feb. 23 and carried off $300. They find the connection in the facts that in both instances the thieves intimidated the clerks by the use of firearms and then bound them with wire.

The store robbed yesterday is between the New Amsterdam Café and a building now in course of construction. It is about fifty yards west of Seventh Avenue, and scores of persons must have passed it while the thieves were at work.

COL. STEVENS'S WIFE WANTS SEPARATION

Friends Get First News of the Suit When She Is Allowed $150 Counsel Fees.

SHE HAD ASKED FOR $1,000

Army Officer's Defense Is That Her Actions Caused the Trouble—Daughter of H. W. Allen.

Friends of Col. Gustav W. S. Stevens, U. S. A., and wife, Mrs. Grace E. Stevens, were surprised yesterday to learn that Mrs. Stevens had begun a suit for separation against her husband. The action came up in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, before Justice Kelby on an application for counsel fees. Mrs. Stevens did not ask for alimony, but she wanted $1,000 for legal expenses. Justice Kelby later in the day handed down a decision allowing her $150.

Mrs. Stevens is the daughter of Henry W. Allen, President of the Interborough Realty Company, a $1,000,000 corporation. She is living with her father at 747 Quincy Street, Brooklyn. Following their marriage on July 25, 1899, Col. and Mrs. Stevens went to Fort Myer, Va., where he was stationed. Mrs. Stevens says that her husband made it unpleasant for her at the fort, and that she found it necessary for her own safety to go back to her father's home in Brooklyn. This she did in August, 1900, and has been living there ever since.

In his answer to his wife's complaint, Col. Stevens blames her actions for their marital unhappiness. He says that in 1900 he became so despondent on account of his wife's behavior that he temporarily resigned from the army. He came to Brooklyn last November and visited his wife at the home of her father in the hope of becoming reconciled to her. Upon reaching this city, he says, he discovered that his wife had got him to come for the purpose of serving him with the papers in her separation suit.

Mrs. Stevens denied last night that she asked her husband to come to Brooklyn last November. She insisted that he came here of his own accord. She said he promised then to treat her more "considerately," and that they lived together for one week, when he returned to his station at Fort Moultrie, S. C.

"During the time he was at my father's house," said Mrs. Stevens, "my husband continually ridiculed and scoffed at my father's way of living. After staying one week my husband returned to his post and I have not seen him since."

Mrs. Stevens asserts that since their separation her husband has given her only $60 a month. According to Col. Stevens, his wife is "living in luxury at her father's home, helping him to spend $10,000 a year."

In his decision, Justice Kelby said: "No alimony is asked, but notice is given that it will be applied for on the trial of the case. Counsel fee is predicated not on the ability of counsel, but on the income of the husband."

HELD HERE AS WHITE SLAVER

Girl Gets Word to Aunt in Providence, Making That Charge.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 17.—Believing that her young niece is being held by white slavers in New York City, Mrs. Hedwig A. Klein sought the aid of the police here to-night to aid her in finding the young woman.

Mrs. Klein received a letter to-day from Miss Hermi Hurn, her niece, who returned last Friday from her home in Austria, imploring her to send a telegram to a Second Avenue address, New York, to get her "out of this place." The woman sent two telegrams, but received both back with the information that there was no one of that name at that address.

In her letter Miss Hurn tells of meeting a strange woman on the Hamburg-American liner Lincoln, who persuaded her to stay in New York, where she was told she could get a better position thon she could obtain in Providence. She was taken away from the dock by the woman in a taxicab and said that she was being detained in New York against her will.

Protest Against Extra Crew Bill.

President Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania Railroad has sent a letter to Gov. Sulzer protesting against the enactment into law of the Extra Crew bill, which has passed the Assembly and is in the Senate. It provides for the arbitrary addition of men to train crews as the length of trains is increased, and he says this method has been proved inefficient. President Mellen of the New Haven has sent a similar letter.

REFUSES TO DEFEND HIMSELF

But Martin Maybe Didn't Know His Hotel Was Disorderly.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 17.—Friends of Richard F. Martin of Perth Amboy, who is in prison here charged with conducting a disorderly resort, are unable to account for the strange attitude he has assumed toward the charge made against him.

Martin is 60 years old, and has always enjoyed the respect of his neighbors. He purchased the Hotel Perth, at Perth Amboy, some time ago, saying that he wanted something to occupy his time. The Perth soon became known as a disorderly resort, and a week ago Martin was indicted. When the register of the hotel was offered as evidence before the Grand Jury one Grand Juryman found his own name there. He protested his innocence and was believed, for on the register many prominent Middlesex County names were found. It was decided that these names were assumed by patrons of the hotel.

Martin's lawyer, Thomas Brown of Perth Amboy, thought his client would plead not guilty, as it was the opinion of his friends that he did not know the use to which his place was being put. But Martin pleaded non vult. He was then remanded to jail, and refused to accept release on bail. He has refused to see those who have called upon him.

CORPORATIONS TO GET $413,740 TAX REFUND

Bill Signed by Taft Enables Them to Recover Sums Paid as Corporation Tax Fines.

NEW YORK'S SHARE IS $70,000

Provides Also for Future Remission of the 50 Per Cent. Penalty for Failure to Report on Time.

The corporations of lower Manhattan are preparing to collect some $70,000 in refunds on account of corporation taxes paid in the last two years. This amount consists of extra assessments levied under that section of the law which provides that in case a corporation fails to report to the Collector of Internal Revenue the amount of its net earnings on or before March 1, it shall pay 50 per cent. additional to the tax levied.

The first reports were due on March 1, 1911, but as the law was new and its constitutionality had been called in question, many corporations subject to its provisions withheld or neglected to make the returns called for. The 50 per cent. additional taxes laid on these delinquents for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911, was $323,221. For the year ended June 30, 1912, there was a much more prompt compliance with the law, and only $90,519 was collected under the provision for an increase of 50 per cent.

These figures are for the whole country, and as about one-sixth of the taxes are collected on corporations in lower Manhattan, the assumption is that the excess payments made by them was about $70,000.

Among the mass of bills signed by President Taft on March 3, his last full day in office, was one providing for the refund of these payments over and above $100 in each case. The bill was urged on the ground that the law provided for a penalty of from $1,0000 to $10,000 for a failure to file a report on time, and that this was quite sufficient without adding 50 per cent. to the amount of the tax. The law also imposes a penalty of 5 per cent. additional for failure to pay the tax by June 30 each year, and 1 per cent. a month interest as long as it is held back.

Little public attention was attracetd to the refund bill, but some of the taxpaying corporations seem to have been informe about it, as several claims already have been filed with Charles W. Anderson, the Internal Revenue Collector for the district in Manhattan below Fourteenth Street.

Besides the refund of extra amounts actually paid in 1911 and 1912, the act provides for the abatement of any such additional charges as may be incurred this year, or, for that matter, in any future year. While March 1 is the time limit set for filing reports, the Collector has authority to extend the time to April 1 in any case where he is satisfied that good reason exists for doing so.

Last year, for instance, the Union and Southern Pacific Roads lost most of their records in the Equitable Building fire and were unable to make the return even thirty days after March 1. In this case, Collector Anderson decided to accept a blank return, leaving the tax assessment for future adjustment, after the corporations should be able to duplicate their records, and he was sustained by Internal Revenue Commissioner Cabell in his solution of this unusual difficulty.

For more ordinary reasons, there are each year a considerable number of corporations which seek and obtain an extension of time for as much as thirty days. They are always careful to do this before March 1, because of the 50 per cent. extra assessment and the other penalty in case the extension is not granted. The refund bill had not been passed and signed when March 1 came this year, so that such corporations as had not made their reports or obtained extensions are liable, under the original law, for 50 per cent. extra. The bill, therefore, provides gor an abatement of the extra tax in any cases in which it may be levied this year.

The bill signed on March 3 provides that any corporation "which has been or may be compelled to pay or become liable for" an additional tax, may "within one year after the passage of this act or within one year after the date of notice of assessment, when such notice is given after the passage of this act," make application for the refund or abatement of the additional tax.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the advice and consent of the Solicitor of Internal Revenue, is directed to remit, abate, or pay back all such additional taxes in excess of $100 for any single year whenever in any case it appears that the additional tax "was assessed or imposed solely because of neglect to make a return at the time specified and without any intention or design on the part of any officer of the corporation to hinder or delay the United States in the collection of the tax originally assessed."

Claims for refunds are to be filed with the Collector of the district in which they were paid, and by him verified to the Commissioner. They must be accompanied by affidavits by officers of the corporation stating specifically that the neglect was without intention to delay the collection of the principal tax and seting forth in detail the causes which brought about the delay in filing the report.

FEARS TO CARE FOR SON.

Boy Comes to Father Already Charged with Kidnapping Him.

Samuel Blum, a merchant living in Myrtle Avenue, Corona, who is out on bail charged with having kidnapped his son, Eugene, 4 years old, from the boy's mother, returned to his home Sunday night and found Eugene sitting on his stoop. In the child's hands was a note from his mother asking the person who found the boy to treat him kindly, as she was ill and unable to care for him. Mr. Blum immediately communicated with his attorney, Joseph J. Touhy, and they propose to lay the matter before Judge Humphrey in the Queens County Court this morning, asking him what to do with the child. Mr. Blum would like to keep the boy, but as he is already under indictment for having taken the child into his possession he wants the court to instruct him as to his rights.

Blum took the boy to the home of his mother, Mrs. Moritz Blum, to be cared for. He thinks his wife is in Liberty, N. Y.

'BLOW UP ASQUITH,' CRY SUFFRAGETTES

MORE HUNGER STRIKERS WIN

Three Released Yesterday—Militants Declare War on Their Non-Militant Pro-Suffrage Sisters.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 18.—Mrs. Pankhurst, speaking at the Pavilion Music Hall here yesterday, said amid noisy interruptions, that her daughter Sylvia, now in Holloway Prison, was refusing food and had been placed in solitary confinement. For the first eleven days of her imprisonment she was forcibly fed and deprived of all books.

Three suffragettes were released from prison yesterday in consequence of hunger strikes.

Sir Victor Horsley, Dr. C. M. Moultin, F. R. C. S., and Dr. Agnes Savill send a lengthy letter to The Times describing the forcible feeding of the suffragette Miss Lenton, whom the police are seeking in connection with the Kew Gardens outrage. The latter asserts that the Home Secretary's attempted denial that Miss Lenton was nearly killed by forcible feeding is worthless. It says the plain facts of the case prove that food forcibly injected into the lungs caused a serious pleuro-pneumonic condition, and alleges that the prison authorities recognized this and hurriedly released Miss Lenton, in order that she should not die in prison and thus compromise the Home Office.

LONDON, March 17.—Stirring scenes were witnessed at the weekly gathering of militant suffragettes in a London music hall to-day. In the course of an address by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst shouts of "Why don't you blow up Premier Asquith?" and "Shoot him!" rang through the hall.

Mrs. Pankhurst, after referring to her own approaching committal to jail on the charge of inciting persons to commit malicious damage to property, proceeded:

"In a letter from my own daughter, telling me what she is doing against her punishment, she says she is trying to release herself as a prisoner of war from the enemy and is enduring all the tortures of imprisonment in solitary confinement."

At this juncture the hall resounded with anathemas against Premier Asquith and his Ministers.

The speaker announced that Miss Lansbury and Mrs. Moore, two "militants," who, on being sentenced to terms in prison, went on hunger strikes, had been released from custody to-day.

Mrs. Pankhurst incidentally reviled the Labor Party leaders. She said they had professed to be in favor of the women and that they had received help, both "personal and pecuniary," yet they had done nothing to forward the cause.

The militant suffragettes have now declared war against their sisters who are working for the vote for women by constitutional means. A meeting of the Constitutionalists which Philip Snowden, Socialist member of Parliament for Blackburn, was addressing at Gateshead to-night was thrown into disorder by a party of militants who insisted upon interrupting Mr. Snowden. Quiet was not restored until the stewards, male and female, had ejected a number of supporters of the militant movement.

The order for the forcible removal of the disturbing element was given by the Chairwoman and was carried out only after vigorous resistance on the part of the militants.

Mr. Snowden declared that no Government would be able to deal comprehensively with franchise reform unless it was prepared simultaneously to concede the franchise to women.

George Lansbury, ex-Socialist member of the House of Commons for the Bow and Bromley Division of Tower Hamlets, who resigned his seat in Parliament as a protest against the refusal of the Government to give the vote to women, and who was defeated for re-election last November, made a threatening speech before the Men's Federation for Woman's Suffrage to-night. He said that if public opinion did not compel the Government to use the police to preserve order at public meetings there was only one thing to do, and that was for the men to arm themselves and preserve order.

Mr. Lansbury also attacked the Labor Party for not forcing the Government, as, he said, it could do, to give the women the vote. The Laborites, he said, were tricking, betraying, and fooling the women.

The Actresses' Franchise League has protested against the recent canvass by a theatrical journal on the question of suffrage. This poll showed 244 in favor of women's suffrage, 326 against it, and 845 indifferent. It is pointed out in the protest that the league alone has 750 members, and that therefore the negative replies were probably receivd from actresses of the musical comedy and variety stage.

PHYSICAL EDUCATORS MEET.

Congress Opened by Poincare—Athletes to Give Demonstrations.

PARIS, March 17.—The International Congress of Physical Education, opened to-day by President Poincaré in the amphitheatre of the Sorbonne, brought together delegates from most of the European countries.

In the course of the sessions, athletes from Sweden, Italy, Germany, Denmark, and Belgium are to give demonstrations on the platform of the theories and methods of various professors of physical training.

The congress has been divided into sections, which will study the physiological effects of natural and artificial movements, training for war, boxing, athletic sports, games, amusements, and the influence of sports on women, particularly mothers, and therefore the human race.

GIFT TO LADY SCOTT.

Geographical Society to Present Casket for Her Husband's Medals.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 17.—Certain novel features are connected with this year's award of the honors which the Royal Geographical Society has annually at its disposal.

The Founders' Royal Medal is not awarded this year, but, with the King's approval, a casket with a suitable inscription will be presented to Lady Scott. It will contain the Patrons' Medal and the special Antarctic Medal awarded to her late husband in 1904..

The Patrons' Medal this year is awarded to the late Dr. E. A. Wilson in recognition of his services with Capt. Scott, while Lieut. Campbell receives a gold watch for his conduct as the leader of the northern antarctic party.

A Christchurch, N. Z., dispatch says that the miniature New Zealand flag taken to the south pole by Dr. Wilson for a lady friend has been placed in the Christchurch Museum.

The sportsmen of New Zealand have subscribed for a separate memorial to Capt. Scott. Dr. Bruce has promised that his sister, Lady Scott, will execute a bust of Capt. Scott to be placed in the Christchurch Art Gallery.

IN HONOR OF LIVINGSTONE.

Royal Geographical Society Holds Meeting—Tribute by Curzon.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 17.—The Royal Geographical Society held a meeting this evening in commemoration of the centenary of the birth of David Livingstone.

Lord Curzon, who presided, in a tribute to the explorer said the work of Livingstone stood forth in monumental grandeur among the achievements of human energy. Sir Harry Johnston, who for thirty years conducted researches into the life and work of Livingstone, delivered an address.

The audience included a number of relatives of Livingstone and others associated with him.

OPERATES ON HIMSELF.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 17.—"Suffering from a growth which threatened to destroy his jawbone, Dr. William M. Beck," says The Ceylon Mail, "calmly stood before a mirror and performed the difficult task of operating on himself.

"He made an incision just below the left jaw, cut away the flesh from the point of the chin almost to the left ear, and them scraped the bone and sewed up the wound."

FRENCH-MOORISH BATTLE.

Tribesmen Defeated After 5 Hours' Fighting—French Lose 14 Killed.

RABAT, Morocco, March 17.—A French column on the way to revictual Col. Magnier's forces in the Ouedzem region was recently attacked by a band of tribesmen. The escorting detachment engaged the tribesmen in a fierce battle and beat them off after five hours' hard fighting, with heavy losses to the natives.

The French lost fourteen killed and thirty-five wounded.

DANCER'S DEATH DUE TO NATURAL CAUSES

American Consul Convinced That Epileptic Seizure Killed Frances Leslie on the Oceanic.

FOUL PLAY IS DISCREDITED

Coroner, However, Will Have Further Medical Examination Made—Inquest Is Formal.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, March 17.—No medical evidence was taken at the Coroner's inquiset to-day in the case of Miss Frances Leslie, the American dancer, who was found dead on Saturday last in a lavatory of the steamship Oceanic, after the vessel had left Cherbourg. The evidence that was given, however, supported the contention of the authorities that the young woman's death was due to natural causes.

The American Consul, Mr. Swalm, said to-night that the alarm in the case had been quite unnecessary. Inquiries which he had made convinced him that Miss Leslie's death was due to suffocation following an epileptic seizure. An officer of the Southampton police said to-night:

"We are satisfied that there was nothing unusual in the cause of death. There is nothing to support a theory that foul play was committed."

In opening the case this morning the Coroner said that its special features required careful consideration. After formal evidence had been given as to the identification of the dead woman he proposed to adjourn the inquest until April 14. A further medical examination was necessary, he said, and a careful analysis of the organs of the body would be made.

The Coroner said that the name of the woman had been given to him as Frances Leslie. Her home was at 178 West Ninety-seventh Street, New York.

Edward Miller, one of the leading comedians in the forthcoming review at the London Opera House, testified that he was a fellow passenger of Miss Leslie. He had known her for several months. She had told him, he said, that she was subject to epileptic fits, and was glad that she hadn't suffered during the voyage.

He last saw Miss Leslie alive at 2:30 o'clock on Saturday morning. So far as he knew she was a single woman. She was known aboard the Oceanic as Anna Wilson.

Francis Darch, representing the London Opera House, testified that Miss Leslie was engaged to appear in the review at that theatre.

A post mortem examination to-day indicated that Miss Leslie's death was due to an epileptic seizure. The body will be sent to New York on the St. Paul on Saturday.

Steamer Lost with Crew of 28.

STETTIN, March 17. — The crew of twenty-eight officers and men of the German steamer Peruvia of this port perished when that vessel went down on an unknown date on the coast of Norway, according to a report given out by the owners to-day. The Peruvia, a vessel of 2,609 tons net register, had been missing for some time, and wreckage found on the Norwegian coast indicates that she was totally lost there.

LONDON HOTELS GIVE IN.

Strikes of Kitchen Staffs, Timed at Right Moment, Are Successful.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 17.—With a sense for dramatic effect which, at any rate so far, has proved highly successful, the officials of the Hotel Workers' Union are conducting a campaign agains the hotels.

The Cecil and Coburg Hotels were to-night held up by temporary strikes of the kitchen staffs. In the Cecil the big St. Patrick's Day banquet was proceeding when a union official informed the manager that a strike of the kitchen staff had begun. Ten minutes, however, sufficed to produce a settlement, which was entirely in the employes' favor.

The strike at the Coburg, a fashionable hotel in the neighborhood of Hyde Park, lasted an hour. The manager tried to resist, but a big influx of diners clamoring for meals caused him to capitulate to the men's terms.

TO TAX TRADES UNIONS.

German Government's Plan May Defeat the "War Tax" Bill.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, March 17.—It is stated that the Government has decided to tax the funds of trades unions and workingmen's leagues as well as large fortunes in order to provide the $50,000,000 demanded for army increase.

The Social Democrats in the Reichstag, who would not have opposed the Government if the tax were confined to the wealthy classes, will, Herr Bernstein, the Socialist leader, stated to-night, oppose the "war tax" if any attempt is made to impose on workingmen's organizations.

By themselves the Socialists could not defeat the project, but only 89 votes out of 287 would need to be added to theirs to kill the bill.

CINEMA TO AID GAMES.

German Olympic Committee's Plan to Arouse Public Interest.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, March 17.—The German National Olympic Committee has decided to employ the cinematograph to arouse popular interest in the Olympic Games at Berlin in 1916. It has arranged to exhibit throughout the country during next year films showing the games at Stockholm.

The first exhibition took place in Berlin to-night, before an invited audience of army officers, university authorities, and sportsmen.

Gen. Count Podbielski and other officers of the Olympic Committee were received in audience by the Kaiser today and submitted to his Majesty their plans for organizing victory for Germany at the Berlin games.

POPE DECREES JUBILEE.

To Last from March 30 to Dec. 8—In Memory of Constantine's Edict.

ROME, March 17.—Pope Pius to-day published an Apostolic letter, which he revised yesterday, decreeing a universal jubilee from Low Sunday, March 30, to Dec. 8, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, in commemoration of the religious toleration edict issued by Emperor Constantine in the fourth century.

The faithful must come to Rome and twice visit the churches of St. John Lateran, St. Peter's, and St. Paul's, praying, confessing, taking communion, and giving alms; or they must visit six times churches chosen by their own Bishops and carry out the same devotions.

Those thus attending the jubilee will enjoy plenary indulgence for all their sins.

SHAW HAS ANOTHER IDEA.

This Time It Is a Plan to Preserve the Peace of Europe.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 18.—G. Bernard Shaw in an article published in The Daily Chronicle on armaments and conscription discusses the harmful effects on Great Britain of a possible Franco-German war, and says:

"Great Britain's policy ought to be to secure the conclusion of a triple alliance with those two countries, the terms being that if France attacked Germany, Great Britain would combine with Germany to crush France; if Germany attacked France, Great Britain would combine with France to crush Germany.

"There may be doubts whether France would come into this alliance in her present temper, but I really do not see how she could help it if Germany consented, because we should conclude a dual alliance if we could not have a triple one, in which case France would be in the position that, whereas she could not attack Germany without fighting us, at the same time Germany could attack her without our interference.

"The alliance should guarantee further that if any other power were to attack either France or Germany the three would line up together against that power."

IGNORES NICARAGUA TREATY.

Does Not Require British Action, Says Member of Government.

LONDON, March 17.—The as yet unratified treaty between the United States and Nicaragua, by which Nicaragua gives to the United States in perpetuity the exclusive right of way for an interoceanic canal across Nicaraguan territory, was discussed in the House of Commons today.

In reply to a question by Sir John R. Rees on the subject, the Parliamentary Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Francis Dyke Acland, on behalf of Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, stated that the British Government had not been consulted in regard to the treaty, the reconsideration of which, he was informed, had been postponed indefinitely. He concluded:

"It does not seem to require any action on the part of the British Government."

The question as put by Sir John Rees suggested that the potential prospective interests of British trade in Nicaragua would be sacrificed if the treaty between that country and the United States were concluded.

MOUNTAIN TOP MOVING.

Inhabitants of a Swiss Village Fear It Will Fall on Them.

NEUCHATEL, March 17.—There is a panic among the inhabitants of the village of Fleurier, lying near Lake Neuchatel, in the shadow of Mount Caroline, the top of which is sliding slowly downward and threatening to overwhelm the place. The mass is moving at the rate of 8 or 9 inches an hour, and there is imminent danger of an acceleration in the speed of its descent.

Most of the people have moved their belongings to the sides of neighboring hills, where they remain in the open air in terror.

A similar movement of Mount Caroline began in 1889, but ceased in a few hours.

FOR ADRIANOPLE SURRENDER

Condition That the Soldiers Keep Their Arms Is Refused.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 18.—A Sofia dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says:

"The garrison at Adrianople has offered to surrender on condition that the honors of war are allowed to the Turkish soldiers and that they are permitted to keep their arms.

"The Bulgarians have refused to accept these conditions."

The European powers have decided largely to ignore the extravagant demands of the Balkan allies and to consider their reply as tantamount to an agreement to accept the proffered mediation.

The powers in their reply to the allies, after congratulating them on agreeing to mediation, will propose that the frontier line be drawn from Enos, on the Sea of Marmora, to Midia, on the Black Sea, instead of from Rodosto, on the Sea of Marmora, to Midia, all the territory to the west of the proposed line with the exception of Albania going to the allies.

The European nations will declare that the question of an indemnity to be paid by Turkey cannot be entertained and will remind the allies that the questions of Albania and of the Aegean Islands remain in the hands of the powers for final settlement.

ATHENS, March 17.—The Greeks have occupied the town of Kliseura, in Albania. The Turks offered stubborn resistance, but were forced to retire in the direction of Berat. The Turkish losses were very considerable. The Greeks lost thirteen killed and forty wounded.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 17.—An official report claims several victories for the Turks in recent encounters at Tchatalja. The Bulgarians, the report says, suffered heavy losses. The Turks succeeded in entering the village of Kalifakeui.

With the exception of a feeble artillery duel, it is stated, no important event has occurred at Adrianople.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, March 17.—The Turkish cruiser Hamidieh sailed from here to-day.

It is reported that she took on ammunition and provisions from a sailing vessel outside territorial waters.

A LETTER

New York, March 11th, 1913.

Mr. W. C. HOPE, General Passenger Agent,
New Jersey Central R.R.

Dear Sir:

I had read the advertisements of the New Jersey Central Hourly Philadelphia Service for years with interest, but had not acquired the habit of going that way. Being down town recently, I was called on the 'Phone at 11:45 and advised that I must be at the office of a client in Philadelphia by 2 o'clock.

I then remembered that my "watch was my time table", and that an hour and fifty minute train left at 12 o'clock. I just caught the boat from Liberty Street and was soon comfortably seated in a Pullman and speeding smoothly on my way.

In the dining car, en route, I had one of the best luncheons I ever ate, and, incidentally, witnessed a delightful cycloramic spectacle. I had no idea the countryside traversed by Jersey Central trains was so beautiful.

At 1:47—three minutes ahead of time—we rolled into the Reading Terminal, giving me ample time to reach my client's office by 2 o'clock. I caught the 5 o'clock train back, enjoyed to the utmost the splendid dollar table d'hote dinner served in the diner, and reached New York in ample time to dress and attend the theatre.

I am a convert to your splendid service and congratulate you on the uniform courtesy of your employees—and the wonderful roadbed that makes it possible for the trains to run smoothly.

Yours very truly,

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, MARCH 18, 1913.

NEW YORK'S "BLUE SKY" LAW.

Bank Commissioner DOLLEY of Kansas informed THE ANNALIST that when the Kansas Legislature meets it will be asked to amend what has been called the "blue sky" law of that State. Mr. DOLLEY still thinks the law desirable, but admits that upon trial it has been found impossible to examine all the securities offered for sale. Therefore he proposes to abandon the attempt and to amend the law so as to allow reputable bankers to offer such securities as they wish so long as they are in good standing with the Kansas officials.

What Kansas is reconsidering New York is proposing, along with some thirty other States which have adopted the happy thought of Kansas, without waiting to see what the experience of Kansas was. The reason why New York should be more deliberate in its procedure lies in the difference between Kansas and New York. Kansas does not finance itself. New York finances both itself and every other State in the United States in some degree. There are more than twelve billions of listed stocks dealt in on the Stock Exchange, and there are billions more of unlisted securities valued daily "on the curb" or in the outside market. Kansas has neither the securities nor the Exchange to consider. The New York situation cannot be considered without including the consideration of the effect of the legislation upon both. The prevention of rash investment is desirable, but what would be the effect upon the entire United States of discouraging investments which are good in fact, but which do not seem good on their face? Within a few days ex-Speaker CANNON has related how he declined an interest in such an absurd venture as the telephone. There is no reason to suppose that any State official would or could make a more efficient or honest examination of all offered investments than did Mr. CANNON of this one security. If the State examination were as good as Mr. CANNON'S, there would be great discouragement and obstruction to all new ideas, and the gain in security to rash investors would be more than doubtful.

This is admitted in the very text of the bill offered at Albany. The State is so far from assuring security to the investor or profits to the enterprise that the bill requires it to be stated "in bold "type that the examiner of securities "in no wise recommends the securi-"ties" offered for sale. Thus it is sought to protect the State against recourse by disappointed investors, who must rely upon their own devices as much after the enactment of the law as before it. If an investor cannot buy blindfold, but must still pick and choose at his own risk, what does the law accomplish beyond setting up a staff of officials whose duty is to attempt what cannot be accomplished, and with authority to inspect books and collect fees?

It would be bad enough if this restraint upon trade were confined to incorporations, which have no friends. But the law applies to "any person." Whoever falls within that description is a misdemeanant if he or his firm buys or sells the securities of unlicensed corporations. Either the law will be a dead letter or there will be need of more jails, inasmuch as the law does not provide for one certificate for each company, but requires as many certificates for each security as there are dealers. It is not safe to enact laws on the theory that they will not work too badly. The transfer tax law of 1910 was intolerable, and had to be repealed at the first opportunity, but there was no remedy for those who had suffered in the interval. It will be the same in this case for dealers in securities, and if the law stands in respect to them the same prospect lies before all dealers in everything. Either this is so, or business is discriminated against in a manner which ought to be impossible respecting equally lawful occupations. And from this hardship there is provided no appeal. The proposed statute is complete in itself, and provides for no relief from any decisions under it. But inasmuch as the bill provides for the assumption by the new officials of duties already vested in State officials, there will be two standards of regulation, with confusion which may be imagined.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Irish home rule was the special theme of the St. Patrick's Day celebration. It is almost accomplished, for good or evil, as events will show, but probably for a fair proportion of both, like all other human achievements, but the high spirits of our Irish fellow-citizens, as they celebrated the day of their patron saint, in common, as it seems, with our fellow-citizens of all other nationalities, were fully justified. The restoration of home rule to Ireland has been worth fighting for all these years.

Yesterday's celebration was the most joyful in many years, and the snow-squall in the morning, which was the only break in the perfect weather, was symbolical of the spirit of the day, lent it a tang, so to speak. There are no more ructions in our St. Patrick celebrations, and there are no more hootings in the streets as the procession passes. "To foster sentiments of good cheer and friendship," Gov. SULZER said in his speech at the banquet last night, "has always been the object in celebrating St. Patrick's Day." The object has surely been attained, though there were many years in which the good cheer was somewhat marred and the friendship questionable. Gov. SULZER insists that ST. PATRICK was a Home Ruler, who stood for local self-government. It is an opinion worth having. The biographies of the saint differ so greatly that to form any opinion of him from them requires close study and a powerful imagination controlled by sympathy.

THE HARRIMAN FORTUNE.

EDWARD H. HARRIMAN left an estate valued at $70,000,000. This is, in round numbers, the official appraisal for transfer tax purposes, and the valuation is as of the date of Mr. HARRIMAN'S death in 1909. During the later years of Mr. HARRIMAN'S activity and after he had become a very conspicuous figure in the railroad world, men of a populistic or Socialistic turn of mind in the far and farther Western States, whenever, to use their own work-horse simile, they felt the collar pressing pretty hard upon their shoulders, the blame was laid upon HARRIMAN. They had to work harder and they were poorer because of HARRIMAN. We suppose they will find confirmation of this easy theory in the appraisal of Mr. HARRIMAN'S fortune at the great sum of $70,000,000.

We do not all believe that the people of the States traversed by the many lines of the Harriman railroad system either had to work harder or were poorer because of his activities or because of the fact that he got together $70,000,000. On the contrary, there can be no doubt whatever that the wealth of these States, the wealth of their people, was very largely increased because of the operation of his railroads; there can be no doubt that their labor was more profitable, their earnings greater, and their lives more comfortable because of what he did. No man can spend his life in great constructive undertakings, no man can amass a fortune of millions upon millions in such a career, without creating for others far more wealth than he takes for himself.

Mr. HARRIMAN was a veritable genius in railroad organization and operation. He was a great builder-up of railroads that had gone to the bad. The proof of that may be found in the story of the Union Pacific Railroad. That road was sold on Nov. 1, 1897, under foreclosure of the Government's lien. There was but one bid, that of the reorganization committee, the Harriman committee, and the property was knocked down at $53,528,532. In the year ended June 30, 1911, the total earnings of the Union Pacific system were $88,983,107, and its total net income, after deducting operating expenses, was $54,107,697. Of course, the system had been greatly extended in the intervening years, new lines had been built and others purchased. But the fact remains that after fourteen years under Mr. HARRIMAN'S management, the Union Pacific system with its extensions earned a total net income in 1911 greater than the sum paid for the road in 1897. This enormous increase in the extent, the value, and in the earning power of the Harriman system of railroads could never have been achieved without bringing a vastly greater increase in wealth to the States served by the lines which compose it.

Mr. HARRIMAN'S fortune of $70,000,000 was accumulated in a surprisingly short time. The late JOHN JACOB ASTOR left an estate of about $80,000,000. This represented, by no means the whole, but a very great part of the accumulations of a century of real estate ownership and transactions in New York City. Commodore VANDERBILT, in the long career from the time when as a boy he was carrying passengers in a sailing boat from the Battery to Staten Island to the time when he died at the head of the New York Central system, accumulated a fortune which, passing from his son to his grandson, amounted at the latter's death to $72,000,000. This was also a railroad fortune, as was that of Mr. JAY GOULD, amounting to $72,000,000. The late JOHN S. KENNEDY left nearly $70,000,000, amassed through railroad and other investments. All these fortunes were longer in the winning than Mr. HARRIMAN'S.

It is probable that Mr. HARRIMAN'S wealth was won only in part from the business of actually developing and building up his railroad systems. His holding of railroad securities was not large enough to account for $70,000,000. It has been said and believed that operations in Wall Street carried on in a rather large way brought him great profits. The statement of his cash balances at various banking and brokerage houses tends to confirm this theory. But while Mr. HARRIMAN'S gains from this source may have been at the cost of those who were less wise than he in guessing market movements, or less able to control them, even this part of his fortune and that way of getting it could hardly have increased the toil and the privations of those in Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana, and Oregon who used to lay everything to HARRIMAN. The practice of speculation, even of very successful speculation, in no wise refutes the abundant evidence that Mr. HARRIMAN was a very great railroad man. The Harriman system is, with one exception, the greatest in the country, with 28,110 miles of operative railroads, with stock issues amounting to nearly a billion, and bonds amounting to nearly a billion and a quarter. The fortune he left, though very great, is by no means one of the greatest. It was exceptional rather in the rapidity with which it was acquired than in respect to its amount.

REPEAL THE TOLL EXEMPTION LAW.

It is natural that the Trustees of the Carnegie Peace Endowment should condemn the Panama tolls exemption law, should argue that it must be arbitrated or repealed, and should strongly urge its repeal. In a sense there is nothing novel in their statement of the case. It has been too widely and carefully discussed and the condemnation of the act of Congress has been too general and too intelligent to leave much to be said. But the addition of the Trustees' statement to what has gone before is new, and is another proof of how deeply the enlightened sentiment of the country has been aroused by the ill-considered and careless action of Congress.

The names attached to the statement must carry weight with the leaders of Congress. They are men of widely differing party predilections and various callings, but all men of note, most of them of experience in high and responsible stations connected with international relations. Of those eminent in diplomacy there are ex-Secretary of State ELIHU ROOT, ex-Ambassadors CHOATE, WHITE, TOWER, and STRAUS, and LUKE E. WRIGHT, former Governor General of the Philippines, while there are also such distinguished educators as Dr. ELIOT, Dr. PRITCHETT, and Dr. BUTLER. These are, surely, precisely the sort of men with whom President WILSON would incline to practice that sovereign mode of safeguarding action by consultation to which he attaches so much importance.

STEPHEN FOSTER.

Pittsburgh does well to honor the memory of STEPHEN COLLINS FOSTER by preserving his old home as a local monument. There are sound common sense and wholesome sentiment behind the movement to accomplish this purpose. A great deal of nonsense, doubtless, has been written about FOSTER. He knew very little, if anything, about African folk songs and plantation croonings. He was a born musician, however, with a remarkable inventive faculty, and his music was American if any music ever was. It fell to his lot to compose songs for the Negro Minstrels, who were never negroes in his day, and generally knew as little about the plantations and the songs of the slaves as he did. But their entertainments were the most popular of that time, and FOSTER'S melodies helped to make them so.

Perhaps the theme of his "Ellen Bayne" was the authentic original of the "John Brown's Body" tune, and perhaps not; the controversy will never be settled. But there never was any serious doubt of FOSTER'S authorship of "The Old Folks at Home," an immortal song, and others that he composed were "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Dog Tray," "Old Uncle Ned," and "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground."

In the forties and fifties, even in the sixties, of the last century, he was the most popular American composer. That would not signify, if so many of his melodies were not imperishable. Pittsburgh does itself honor, therefore, in perpetuating his memory.

THE LEGEND OF MILITANCY.

The militant suffragette legend develops daily in Great Britain. The story of the defeated plan for the abduction of that distinguished Welsh statesman, Mr. LLOYD-GEORGE, and his incarceration in a subterranean suite of apartments in an unfrequented park, is the latest chapter of the serial. It is worthy of AINSWORTH or PIERCE EGAN. There are subterranean apartments, of course, in all the English parks, which can always be used by abductors for a trifling charge. Those in London, such as the Criterion Theatre and the Stock Exchange restaurant, might serve as well, at a pinch, but the rent would be very high.

All the "outrages" nowadays are ascribed to the suffragettes. Soon they will be accused of all the robberies. Meanwhile they keep up the game, bravely, defying angry crowds at their public meetings, refusing to eat when imprisoned, and showing no sign of weakening, though they have hopelessly damaged their cause and incited their compatriots to insult them, lie about them, solemnly moralize about them, or ignore them, according to the various habits of mind of the British public. We doubt if these few hysterical women, who have lost the sympathy of the majority of woman suffragists, are nearly so much to blame for all this as the Liberal Government which adopted a foolish policy of dalliance with them and seems afraid to take their case firmly in hand and deal with it in a practical manner.

THE BROOKLYN COURT HOUSE SITE.

Brooklyn officials now explain that they are supporting a costly and inferior Court House site because the better and cheaper site, in their opinion, is not so far advanced in the legal process for execution. They could do nothing better adapted to prevent the adoption of the site which they have opposed within a few days, and to strengthen the movement for the site which they have abandoned within the same brief period. It would be hard to imagine a better basis for a taxpayer's action for the prevention of waste of city funds than the excuses which they advance for their own procedure.

Manhattan Borough has had its own unfortunate experiences with taxpayers' actions brought to impede movements in the interest of the entire city, but it would be glad to see Brooklyn set the example of a lawsuit brought for good motives, among them being the stiffening of the good intentions of the officials of the borough. There are no public expressions of the intention to proceed with the original Court House plan which are not apologetic, and there are no expressions which are not regretful regarding the abandonment of the plan to prosecute the bridge plaza improvement and the Court House construction together. It is mistaken policy to proceed with a bad plan because it has a start over a better second thought.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Duty Must Not Be Neglected.

Of course, it is always with reluctance that any mention is made on this page of the notable merits exemplified by THE NEW YORK TIMES. So many people, however, are conveying to the paper expressions of appreciation for its recent efforts to inform, edify, and interest the world that silence on the subject would seem to be a discourtesy to these good friends. Modesty, urge as it may, shall not compel an ignoring of these tributes, for to ignore is half to deny, and that conscience would condemn as untruthful, and therefore wrong.

Take Sunday's issue, for instance. Better papers than that was, we hope and believe, are to follow, (from the same presses,) but, judged by standards of the past, recent and remote, it marked an easily measurable advance toward the perfection which, fortunately from the standpoint of a desire for continuous growth and improvement, is impossible of attainment. While first and distinctively a news paper, with the world's happenings adequately presented, the special features were so many and so excellent that their enumeration and description would take almost as much space as the original publication.

And certainly the range of subject was wide enough to meet most tastes and demands, since it reached from the Helleu pictures of beautiful women, admirably reproduced, to the two-page-plus article devoted to the first authoritative statement of Dr. FRIEDMANN'S discovery and the criticism, favorable and adverse, which his announcement received from the most eminent of Germany's physicians. A broad sweep, that. In a way it justifies the one complaint about THE SUNDAY TIMES that has come to us—the complaint that it is too big, that it gives more than can be read conveniently on a day supposedly of rest. That charge is true, but those who make it should remember that a newspaper must serve advertisers as well as readers—for reasons unnecessary to mention, though not mysterious—and that as advertisements increase there must be a proportionate increase in the amount of reading matter and illustration.

It is not expected, however, that anybody will read everything in a modern newspaper. Its aim is to give as much of everything as anybody wants, and of the best quality. That is the ideal which circumstance and environment—persuasive influences, those!—set before the hopeful journalists of these days, and—well, THE TIMES is reaching for it.

Promises Relief at Least.

Prosecutions and convictions of incendiaries are highly commendable in that they cure in a particularly effective way all the individual cases of a certain social disease which receive this drastic treatment. The age, however, is one of preventive, rather than of curative, treatment for social as well as for physical ills, and while it is all right to put the fear of jail—that of the Lord is seemingly absent—in the heart of those who have been making a profitable business of arson, still better is it to remove, if possible, the conditions which developed and encouraged this reprehensible industry.

The fire insurance companies, naturally enough, have vehemently defended their habit, so unlike that of the companies insuring lives, of issuing policies to an amount that in the majority of instances is not based on an examination of the property to be insured and not in necessary relation to its value. That the companies can stand the resulting losses is not—cannot be—denied. All they need do, and all they have done, is to adjust rates to meet the aggregate of losses, both honest and fraudulent, and they can view the situation calmly.

But fire insurance companies are merely self-appointed agents for handing over to comparatively few the money of comparatively many, and the many have recently acquired a firm conviction that there is something radically wrong about a system which separates the interests of agent and principal. Hence the proposed—and inevitable—legislation compelling the fire companies, before issuing a policy, to ascertain that there is property to insure and how much. Hence, also, clauses in all these proposed statutes, fixing stern penalties for failure to make these preliminary examinations and for the practice of deception by those applying for insurance.

That such laws will stop all incendiarism is too much to hope. Such a success as that is not recorded in the history of Legislatures. But the present situation is nearly intolerable, and there is at least a promising chance that the cost of the proposed inspections—which, of course, the insuring public must pay—will be less, and considerably less, than what that public now pays to and because of the "fire-bugs."

Work Must Begin Immediately.

With the appropriation last week by the Board of Estimate of the money, trivial in amount but long delayed, required for draining the marshes in Pelham Bay Park, what has seemed hitherto to be the one obstacle in the way of freeing from mosquitos the towns along the Sound, all the way to the Connecticut line, has been removed. To effect anything, however, the appropriation of money is not enough; it must be properly expended, and to effect anything this Summer it must be expended at once, for mosquito production begins before Spring is well started, and the first broods are both the most numerous and the most dangerous to health and comfort of the whole season.

The drainage work here will commence as soon as the advertising for bids required by law can be done. Meanwhile it behooves the Westchester towns to do as promptly their share toward this great reform. They all solemnly assured us that they were only waiting for New York to act, since that was the key to the mosquito situation, but some of them are now apparently hanging back and making noises warranting the suspicion that their pretended eagerness to get to work was based on a belief in the continuance of a good excuse for doing nothing.

In New Rochelle, where, thanks largely or wholly to the activity and intelligence of the members of the Civic Section of the Women's Club, and little or not at all to the Board of Health, the requisite funds are ready or in sight. But Larchmont and Rye are not exactly leaping to the fray. As this is a case of all or none, the situation thus created is at the moment disquieting. Self-interest and common honesty alike demand that these towns keep the promises they made while urging New York to perform its unquestionable duty. Inaction on their part would now be inexcusable; also it may lead to the saying of some harsh things about their officials and other eminent citizens by those whom that inaction would justifiably offend.

REPLIES TO DR. MAXWELL.

Dr. Wile Challenges City Superintendent to Show Records.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

City Superintendent Maxwell, in his anxiety to rush to Mr. Flexner's defense, endeavors to attract attention to some interesting problems. We grant that Pestalozzi, Froebel, Herbert Spencer, and William T. Harris may have been of much influence in preparing the course of study, but, unfortunately, Pestalozzi died in 1827, Froebel in 1852, Spencer in 1903, and Harris in 1909.

Consultation with the records of the Board of Superintendents does not disclose that any specialists have ever appeared before the Board of Superintendents, and I challenge Dr. Maxwell to produce records from the minutes of the board to indicate that this statement is untrue.

Many members and committees of the Board of Education may have entered into conference with the Board of Superintendents, but I again ask Dr. Maxwell to produce a record showing that the Committee on Studies and Text Books has ever called a conference with the Board of Superintendents.

The statement of Dr. McMurry that the course of study was thirty years behind the times was made at Albany and was so stated in my previous letter. Apparently the Superintendent would rather believe that the course of study is only twenty years behind the times, as stated in Prof. McMurry's official report. I am not willing to enter into a contest for this slight distinction of ten years. I agree with Dr. Maxwell there is a vital distinction between consulting "experts" and heeding them, and only regret that there is no evidence to show that the Board of Superintendents as a board has done either of these.

At the hearings given by our committee the proposed changes have received approbation of many experts within and without the system. I merely refer the City Superintendent and those who are interested to the minutes of those hearings, or, if you believe it desirable, I should be willing to present to the public long quotations from the various "experts" showing that the City Superintendent is in error in the statements in his final paragraph. It may be said in answer to his final query as to when our committee will begin to heed the "experts" that we shall do so just as soon as our report, after careful consideration, can be presented to the Board of Education for reference to the Board of Superintendents.

THE QUAKER MARRIAGE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES'S recent editorial article concerning a Quaker wedding, followed some days later by a news item concerning a couple who were married in Jersey City after a crude imitation of the Quaker ceremony, tends to give the idea that a Quaker marriage is surrounded by less safeguards and sanctions than the ordinary Protestant marriage. Such, however, is far from being the truth. The full Quaker ceremonial, only a part of which was reported in your news columns, emphasizes as few other ceremonies do the four-sided character—individual, religious, social, and civil—of the marriage contract.

The full process is as follows: The contracting parties report in writing to the monthly meeting (the business meeting of the church of which they are members) their intentions of marriage, whereupon two committees are appointed, one of men and one of women, whose duty it is to make careful investigation in the case of the prospective bridegroom and bride, respectively, to ascertain whether any valid objections, legal or moral, to the proposed union exist. One month later these committees report, and if no objection is found the proposed marriage receives the sanction not of a single clergyman, but of the whole body of the church—or meeting, as Friends are more wont to speak of it.

This second monthly meeting then proceeds to appoint a time for the holding of a religious meeting, in which the marriage may be consummated, and appoints also a committee to see that all provisions of the civil law are carefully observed and the necessary entries made in the civil records, and also in those of the monthly meeting.

So far from being a casual and unguarded matter, it is probably the most closely guarded of any marriage system practiced in our State. True it has no priestly sanction, except as the sanction of the whole body of a church which emphasizes the priesthood of all believers may be said to be priestly. But the religious nature of the marriage act, the paramount interest of the contracting parties, and the proper and inescapable interest of society and the State are emphasized at every point.

Is it not possible that similar care and deliberation in other marriages might do much to reduce the divorce evil?

THE NATIVE BIRTH RATE.

Low Figures Prove Need of Foreign Immigration.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just read with interest your editorial article, entitled "Young People Marrying." It was very gratifying to learn that, quite contrary to the general opinion, young men marry more frequently now than in former years, when living was much cheaper.

On the other hand, it is not very encouraging and gratifying to learn that these young married couples do not propagate their kind. I mean that the birth rate is not what it should be. From the volumes upon Vital Statistics, Part I., of the Census of 1900, we find that the immigration population is keeping up the birth rate of the country, and if it were not for them the death rate in the United States would far exceed the birth rate. Thus we find that the birth rate of the foreign whites of foreign parents exceeded the death rate over 41.5, while among native whites of native parents the death rate exceeded the birth rate by 3.0 per 1,000.

Is not this fact a strong argument in favor of immigration? What have your restrictionists to say? Where are the children of native whites to build our subways and dig our ditches?

IN THE ART GALLERIES.

Prints and Paintings from William H. Allison Collection at Anderson's.

On exhibition at the Anderson Galleries prior to their sale on Wednesday evening, are a large number of decorative prints from the collection of William H. Allison. Among them are mezzotints printed in color by the modern artists in this field, Charles Bird, L. Busiere, S. Arlent Edwards, H. J Greenhead, Elizabeth Gulland, Fred Millar, F. G. Stevenson, and others.

The large group of Stevenson's prints shows the wide range of his talent and also the greater appropriateness of certain subjects over others to his medium and method. Nothing could be more tasteful than his "Little Mary," a quaint child's figure in eighteenth century costume, merely touched with color. "La Belle Ferronière" after da Vinci also fairly reproduces the decided contours of the original, but "Hendricke Stoffels" after Rembrandt loses the effect of chiaroscuro upon which the charm of that painter's work so greatly depends.

The lovely and rare "Miss Cumberland" after Romney, engraved by S. H. Smith, is one of a hundred printed and does justice to Romney's delicate color. In addition to the color-prints are a large group of etchings by the contemporary Swedish etcher, Axel Haig, one etching by Bracquemond after J. B. Millet's "Man with the Hoe," a couple of original etchings printed in color by R. Lorrain, and a number of original etchings, two of the plates printed in color by Camille Fonce.

At the same galleries Mr. Allison's paintings by American artists and a small collection of foreign paintings belonging to Edward A. Hawkins are on exhibition until March 27 and 28, the dates of sale. They include among other things several charming drawings by Francis Lathrop, a brilliant little Arizona landscape by Albert Groll, Willard L. Metcalf's "On the Hudson," a number of Termohlen's misty landscapes and a meticulous "August Afternoon" by William T. Richards.

Among the foreign paintings is one by the Dutchman, J. H. S. Kever, a genre scene called "Playing Marbles," in which three phases of interest are represented, that of the two children in their game, that of the baby, and that of the mother. One finds it difficult to associate the name of Josef Israels with the "Portrait of Mlle. D'Estrades" caressing a charming dog, but Israels studied with Delaroche and painted a number of pictures in a French manner.

Those who wish to carry further their education in Post-Cubist art will have an opportunity to do so at the Photo-Secession Galleries, the home of bold spirits, where Picabia will show for the first time in a one-man exhibition his studies made in New York. The catalogue contains the artist's own explanation of himself and ought to be read by all who prefer original texts to translations.

The last paragraph will serve as a general answer to some of the questions that have been asked, literally by the thousands, during the exhibition at the armory:

"Expression means objectivity, otherwise contact between beings would become impossible, language would lose all meaning. This new expression in painting is 'The Objectivity of a Subjectivity.' We can make ourselves better understood by comparing it to music. If we grasp without difficulty the meaning and the logic of a musical work it is because this work is based on the laws of harmony and composition, of which we have either the acquired knowledge or the inherited knowledge. These laws are the objectivity of painting up to the present time. The new form of painting puzzles the public only because it does not find in it the old objectivity and does not yet grasp the new objectivity. The laws of this new convention have as yet been hardly formulated, but they will become gradually more defined just as musical laws have become more defined and they will very rapidly become as understandable as were the objective representations of nature. Therefore, in my paintings the public is not to look for a 'photographic' recollection of a visual impression or a sensation, but to look at them as but an attempt to express the purest part of the abstract reality of form and color in itself."

AN UNDEMOCRATIC PARADE.

Art and Science Not Represented at President's Inaugural.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Above the storm of protest that has swept over the country in regard to the lack of proper protection provided for the woman suffrage parade in Washington, one hears occasionally the shrill screech of those who apparently believe that the streets of our capital belong only to the men, and that the women had no right to march, and therefore deserved all the contumely and all the insults heaped upon them by inebriate, vulgar ruffians, some of whom wore soldiers' uniforms.

Do these critics realize that the leaders of the equal suffrage movement asked that women should be represented in the inaugural parade, and that the request was denied? Yet this Republic has been built up by women as well as men. An observer of the inaugural parade would suppose that the President of the United States represents only the army, the navy, and the political clubs of the country, including Tammany.

The parade was symbolic of a repressive form of government, but not of a democracy. Why should there have been such a large representation of our destructive forces and no representatives of our great constructive institutions, such as our Senate and House of Representatives, our schools and colleges, where men and women train and develop our future citizens? Why should there not have been leaders of the medical and legal professions, who protect the health and the property of the Nation; the leaders in art, architecture, agriculture, commerce and industry, who build up and enrich the country; engineers who construct canals, railroads, highways, bridges, and open up mines, which facilitate transportation and lead to the expansion of the country?

If the participants in the inaugural parade had been composed of such groups, as well as of a few groups of soldiers and sailors, then women could have very appropriately had a share in the inauguration exercises of their President. For in the suffrage parade there were Senators and Congressmen, college professors and teachers, authors, doctors, and lawyers, painters, sculptors, architects, artisans, civil engineers, and Government employes.

Moreover, since the President's Cabinet is not merely composed of the Secretaries of War and of the Navy, but comprises also Departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Labor, and Law, a parade made up, according to the outline herein suggested, would be more compatible with the peace ideals of a twentieth century (so-called) democracy—based not upon force, but upon the consent of the governed.

"SOLID GOLD" MARK

Means Nothing Whatever Unless Carats Are Stated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES will confer a favor upon its readers by calling attention to the confusion in the minds of the public in relation to the meaning of the words "solid gold." Owing to this confusion the public has suffered considerably from misrepresentation, sometimes through no fault of the dealer, but sometimes as a result of his deliberate intent.

To-day the words "solid gold" have no distinct meaning in trade and commerce, and the stamping laws of no State (except Pennsylvania) or the Federal Government cover this mark. Under the laws of New York and many other States, as well as under the stamping law relating to the shipment of gold and inter-State commerce, it is a misdemeanor to mark an article of gold ware improperly as to its carat fineness, and there are but few manufacturers in the country who make articles improperly stamped as far as the carat mark is concerned.

However, a large amount of merchandise is sold under the name of "solid gold," the public believing that this term is a quality mark and that it is in some way equivalent to the term "solid silver," which has a distinct meaning under the law. Most of the reputable jewelers, department stores, and other dealers who handle "solid gold" lines buy from manufacturers who make such goods 10-carat fine, and, in fact, among a great many people in our trade, "10-carat" [illegible] considered synonymous.

But, inasmuch as at the present time there [illegible] the use of the mark, some manufacturers use the term on gold of eight, six and even four carat fineness, and these lines are often bought by the public in the belief that they are getting gold practically of the fineness of our coins, many thinking that "solid gold" is even better than 14 or 18 carat.

To remedy this condition the National Jewelers' Board of Trade, working with the Stamping Law Committee, which has prepared and put through most of the legislation covering jewelry marking, intends to introduce into Congress an amendment to the present law forbidding the use of the words "gold," "pure gold" or "solid gold" unless accompanied by a mark indicating the carat fineness. Until such legislation is enacted the field for fraud and misrepresentation (from which both dealers and the public can suffer) is a large one, and the only protection that can now be offered will come through the fullest publicity being given to the conditions as they exist, at the same time calling attention to the fact that safety lies only in the purchase of gold bearing a distinct carat or quality mark.

FRIEDMANN'S CULTURES.

Dr. Landesman Tells of Treatments at People's Hospital.

New York, March 17, 1913.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With pleasure I have read in THE SUNDAY TIMES the translation of Dr. F. F. Friedmann's report on tuberculosis to the Berlin Medical Society and the discussion of the same, reported as the official minutes in the Berliner Klinische Wochenschrift. I know that this will end much criticism and make some critics swallow their own words. Moreover, I would ask you for the sake of justice to correct an error in the translation of the remarks made by Geheimrath Prof. Schleich, who stands as a foremost authority on tuberculosis in Germany, wherein he is quoted as saying that his patients were better. What he did say was that they were both better and recovered. The word Genesung, meaning cure, was left out in the translation.

One of the doctors claims that he cannot understand how the Friedmann injections cured a case of insanity. That is easily explained. The tubercular patient sometimes loses his reason by sheer hopelessness; he sees his life ebbing away, and no cure in sight. If a cure is discovered it will prevent and even remedy insanity from that source. I claim it should prevent many cases of suicide. Many a tubercular patient has committed suicide when he has seen his usefulness gone and himself a burden to his relatives.

While I was Chairman of the School Board of the Seventh District, a district studded with tubercular patients, I watched children coming from homes of tubercular parents. I noted that they became pale and emaciated. If this injection of Dr. Friedmann can act as a preventive then in the name of God inject them all, and save them from the white plague!

As to the harmlessness of the vaccine, we have the testimony of the eminent Dr. Karfunkel, who has said: "First of all I was able to assure myself of the absolute harmlessness of the preparation for patients of every age, from the newly born babes to aged persons." The Government experts know it, as President Taft submitted a translation of the original minutes to Congress, in which the above was quoted.

As to my attitude in not making public report on my patients injected with Dr. Friedmann's cultures, I will state this: Before injection I had my patients examined by many physicians, among them my friend, Dr. S. Tannenbaum, who has been for years with the Health Department in its tuberculosis clinic. I promised Dr. Friedmann to report on the condition of the patients at the end of one week, but before the week was over he was called to Canada. Before he left he asked me how my patients were getting along; I told him, but my conversation was overheard by some one, who repeated it to reporters. When the week was up I had them examined by the many physicians who had examined them before the injection; they were also examined by Dr. Tannenbaum, and I told him that he might report the changes he noticed to the Health Department. I was physician to the Health Department about twenty years ago and I know how much money the city spends to prevent diseases. I intend to report the result of my injected cases to the County Medical Society, of which I have been a member for the last twenty years. Although I am a member of other medical societies I prefer to report to the County Medical Society, as it is the representative of the State Society in this county.

For the People's Hospital we selected as spokesman Dr. I. M. Rottenberg, President of the Medical Board, who will give a correct report whenever there is one to be made for the hospital. May I correct inaccurate reports by saying that I am only a Director of the hospital, and not its President? I am one of the visiting physicians of the hospital, but not a surgeon; my son, Dr. Harry Landesman, is an assistant attending surgeon. I am not the Superintendent of the hospital now. I did superintend the hospital for a few months without pay until we engaged a Superintendent.

M. LANDESMAN, M. D.

The Secretary of the Navy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue a reader asks the whereforeness of North Carolina's representation in the Cabinet by five Secretaries of the Navy, (during as many Administrations,) especially in view of the fact that the "Land of the Long Leaf Pine" is not much of a maritime State. North Carolina has not a great port, it is true, but she does occupy a place in the maritime world. The nature of the coast militates against the approach of large vessels; yet harbor improvements have already begun to overcome natural disadvantages. The future is bright for the building up of a port near Point Lookout. Perhaps your correspondent is unaware of the Naval Reserves, maintained for many years in the Old North State.

Secretary Josephus Daniels knows North Carolina, which means that he appreciates the needs of the seafaring population as well as those of the inhabitants of the mountains. He knows something about salt water, and what he has not yet learned will be shortly acquired, if energetic taking hold of a subject means anything. He has assumed office at a time when the people of this country must decide whether they intend to remain a world power or shut themselves up in Continental seclusion. He has a great opportunity. Watch the policy of the Tarheel Secretary of the Navy!

The girl be'ind 'er 'eaves a brick that 'its me in the eye,
But I 'as to keep my temper, so to myself says I:
  Oh, it's "Bobby" this, an' "Bobby" that, an' "Maul an' scratch the brute,"
  But it's "Save us, Mr. P'liceman," when the mob begins to 'oot;
  The mob begins to 'oot, my girls, the mob begins to 'oot,
  Oh, it's "Save us, Mr. P'liceman," when the mob begins to 'oot.

I raise a suffragette who falls, as careful as can be,
But she begins to scratch an' bite, an' 'oller names at me.
She says I use 'er shamefully, an' that I made 'er fall,
And then the mob got after 'er. You should 'ave 'eard 'er call:
  For it's "Bobby" this, an' "Bobby" that, an' "Lather Bobby well!"
  But it's "'Elp us, Mr. P'liceman," when the mob begins to yell;
  The mob begins to yell, my girls, the mob begins to yell,
  Oh, it's "Let us get be'ind you," when the mob begins to yell.

Yes, makin' marks of officers, who guard you all the while,
When breakin' laws an' window panes, will surely make men smile.
If when you 'ave the people riled until they turn on you,
You promptly do the baby act and 'owl for men in blue.
  'Twas "Bobby" this, an' "Bobby" that, from every 'arridan,
  Now it's "Robert, save the women if you calls yourself a man,"
  You calls yourself a man, my boy, you calls yourself a man,
  But the Lord 'e made the wimmin on a very diff'rent plan.

GEORGE D. MOREWOOD.

Former Pupils of French Master Protest at New Art Cult at Annual Feast.

No Matter How Wild, Their Works Still Fall Short of Originals, Burlesquers Explain.

When "Les Anciens de l'Academie Julian"—the old boys who learned about painting from Julian in Paris—gathered last evening at the Hotel Brevoort for their annual dinner, they did more than don the old blouses, air the old French of the Quartier Latin, and give themselves over to a few hours of revelry. They converted their entire reunion into a whimsical but genuine protest against the cubists, futurists, and the latter-day fads of the studios.

The exhibition of "cubist, neurotic, paretic, and psychopathic art," as one of the painters described it, which will be given next Saturday at the Lighthouse for the Blind, in East Fifty-ninth Street, as the protest of some American artists against the "new movement" had its forerunner last evening, for many of the painters brought their mock canvases to the Julian dinner, hung them on the walls of the dining room, and turned that part of the old Brevoort House into a burlesque exhibition. It was a real competition. The invitations announced two prizes, one gold dust medal for the best American figure, "linear or cubic," and one silver polish medal for the best landscape in the exhibition "not previously seen in nature."

The cubist was outdone and the hit of the evening was scored by Benjamin A. Francke, who made his début as the first, the original, and only "octagonalist." His canvas was neatly covered with octagonal splotches of garnet and blue and purple and orange, all overlapping in a temperamentally confused fashion. And he called the result "Lady Walking in Fifth Avenue in the Sunlight."

The only trouble with this picture as a burlesque and the only trouble with all the pictures there, some of those present said, was the fact that they might have been scattered among the paintings at the genuine exhibition just closed and never have been detected as burlesques. In many of them you could plainly discern a figure that had some bearing, however distorted, on the title.

"That was just our trouble," said one of the Anciens. "No matter how wild we grew, no matter how preposterous we made these things, we couldn't really attain a burlesque. The originals were always worse. To paint a real, genuine cubist painting you have to be genuinely and unquestionably mad."

That much discussed painting, "Nude Descending a Staircase," came in for most of the ridicule of the evening. It was obviously the inspiration of a strange streaked tangle of blue and red painted by J. W. Fosdick, President of the Anciens. After he had finished it, his friends said, he had a long inward struggle between the two titles, "Christmas on the Farm" and "Impressions of Washington Square," but he finally discarded them both in favor of "Nude Woman Bathing," which the futurist manner made thoroughly proper. The same picture was also the inspiration of "Waitress Having Trouble While Ascending Stairway," an imperfect work, though, as a long string of falling dishes could be distinguished out of the general mess after a little study.

Leo Mielziner, for many years the massier at Julian's—he who was monitor and had general charge of the models—was there last evening in his blue blouse, and he had a poem to read. It was after Wordsworth and dedicated to that same stairway wonder of the real exhibition.

She is a phantom and a fright
Whene'er she gleams upon our sight,
A fearful apparition sent
For naught save our bewilderment.
She's minus arms and legs and hair,
She zigzags down an unseen stair.
No woman she, but wraith forlorn
Of "Morning After's" cold gray dawn.
A drunken shape, an image gay,
To haunt, to startle, and dismay.

It was a poem, too, which summoned them all to the Brevoort, with the stern injunction that evening clothes, if owned, were to be left behind, and that blouses and corduroys were the preferred costume. Here is the poem:

We'll likewise hold in gay review
The fads in Art that now are new;
Impressions, oval, cubic, post,
We'll analyze and mayhap roast,
And prove by showing sketch and skit
That everybody's doing it.

And in response seventy-five of them put in an appearance, from Nelson N. Bickford, who was at Julian's in '72, to Lucius Hitchcock, Robert Vonnoh, and William C. Cornwell, who studied at Julian's, but thought better of it, and is now with J. S. Bache & Co. in Wall Street. Irving Couse was there and so was Frank Verbeck and Ernest Peixotto. The last tidings from the feast set forth that Archie Gunn was singing coster songs and every one was pounding gayly on the tables.

'LOHENGRIN' GIVEN IN MASTERLY STYLE

CARL URLUS IN TITLE ROLE

Heinrich der Vogler........Putnam Griswold
Lohengrin ....Carl Urlus
Elsa von Brabant...............Johanna Gadski
Friedrich von Telramund ....Willy Buers
Ortrud ....Louise Homer
Der Heerufer des Konigs...William Hinshaw
Conductor ....Alfred Hertz

It is not often that "Lohengrin" makes its first appearance in the season at the Metropolitan Opera House so late as the nineteenth week, as it has this season. Its first performance there took place last evening; and even then it came earlier than had been proposed. It was suddenly substituted for Mr. Damrosch's "Cyrano," that has been announced for its second performance—a performance which itself was a postponement, for it had been intended to present "Cyrano" last week Monday. It was then given up because of the illness of Mr. Amato. Last evening it was given up, as was stated on a placard that confronted the audience as it entered the portals, because of the illness of Mr. Martin. The pity of it seemed all the greater because it was the first time that Mr. Martin has thus disappointed at the Metropolitan Opera House—a remarkable record spoiled. The ill-luck of "Cyrano" thus caused an advance of one week in the appearance on the stage of the Opera House of "Lohengrin," which had been announced originally for next Monday evening. That date is now reserved for "Cyrano," in the hope that misfortune will stay its hand.

The performance of "Lohengrin" was an excellent one that absorbed the attention and won the deserved applause of the Monday night audience. Mr. Hertz conducted it with a good deal of energy and propulsive dramatic vigor, and also, in certain passages, with finesse; in not a few with an unusually rapid tempo. The representation was on the lines of the Metropolitan, of fine singing, well-organized and well-drilled ensemble, and sumptuous mounting in general effect and care of detail.

Two of the new German singers appeared in the cast to the obvious benefit of the general effect—Mr. Urlus was the Lohengrin and Mr. Buers the Telramund. There are questions that might be raised as to some technical points in Mr. Urlus's singing, points that somewhat affect the finish and beauty of his art; but his fine and sonorous voice, his vigorous style, and generally intelligent declamation were features that gave value to his performance. His appearance suggests the lofty mission, the other-wordliness of the Grail Knight, and he added romantic fervor and something of tenderness and poetic vision. Mr. Buers was a powerful and characteristic Telramund, apt in his expression of the springs of his action and excellent in his singing and declamation.

Mme. Gadski's Elsa, Mme. Homer's Ortrud, Mr. Griswold's King Heinrich, and Mr. Hinshaw's Herald were all more or less familiar, and have in past seasons won the admiration they deserved. Perhaps Mr. Hinshaw's delivery of the Herald's announcements in the first act would have been more effective if they had been more measured. A detail that deserves commendation was the climax of the fight between Lohengrin and Telramund, when Lohengrin really beat Telramund to the ground with a stroke of his sword, instead of holding it up, for his opponent to shrivel up and fall down under, and thus giving color to Ortrud's subsequent accusation of "wicked magic."

NOT MIDLAND CLUB LINKS.

That Organization Not Back of New Course at East Williston, L. I.

The new golf course to be laid out at East Williston, L. I., may be the home of a new club and not of the Midland Golf Club as had been thought. R. W. Turner, President of the Midland Golf Club Land Holding Co., explained yesterday that while the men interested in the new course were most of them members of the Midland Golf Club, the new course was not a club venture.

Opportunity will be given to the Midland Golf Club to take over the new course and if the club does not avail itself of this chance, a new club will be organized.

It was suggested that the dissatisfaction of Midland Club members over the conduct of the Salisbury Links at Garden City, which were used by the Midland Club, had been responsible for the search for a new home. This Mr. Turner denied, saying that many of the men interested in the new venture expected to retain their membership in the Salisbury Club.

The new course will be laid out by the best professional talent procurable, though the name of the golfer who is to have charge of this work has not been made public yet.

ACT A LITTLE MELODRAMA.

'Blackmail' by Richard Harding Davis a Success at the Union Square.

A one-act play, "Blackmail," by Richard Harding Davis, was presented for the first time yesterday at Keith's Union Square Theatre and was well received. Frank Sheridan was seen in the principal rôle, that of an Alaskan mine millionaire, Richard Fallon, who comes to New York on a visit and finds that an old sweetheart, who has married a friend, is being made the victim of a blackmailer. The scene of the play is his room at a hotel. The woman calls on him and tells how Lou Mohun, a crook of the lower order, has learned of an experience of hers early in life, when she was tricked into a false marriage which she believed real. She has since been happily married, and his threat to expose her past history had led her to pay him money until the limit had been reached. The blackmailer knew of her acquaintance with Fallon, and had told her she must call on him and persuade him to pay $1,000 in cash for her.

Fallon sends her away and promises to deal with the crook. He then has a Pinkerton detective hide in the next room and summons the blackmailer, paying him $1,000 in marked bills. The latter becomes abusive after the payment of the money and threatens to draw Fallon into the matter. After drawing from the crook the admission that he would wreck their lives with no compunction, Fallon arranges events so that he will have in the detective a witness that he acted in self-defense, and shoots his visitor dead.

The work of Mr. Sheridan was full of power and force, and, despite the melodramatic material of the situation the whole company acted with an effect of repression that was a decided element in the success with which the playlet met. Harold Hartsell was well liked as the blackmailer. The others were Rose Curry and Louis Woods.

Other acts on the bill were Dr. Herman in his electrical spectacle called "The Haunted House," Reine Davies in songs, the Seven Marvelous Bracks in gymnastics, Edison's Kinetophone, the Primrose Four, Miss Norton and Paul Nicholson, Billy Rogers, Ollie Young and April, Clark and McCullough, and the Elsa Lohr Trio.

"CROESUS" FOR LONDON.

De Rothschild's Play Is About a Multi-Millionaire, of Course.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, March 17.—Baron Henri de Rothschild's play, "Croesus," will soon be produced in London. As the title indicates, the play deals with the life of a multi-millionaire. It also has a strong love interest. The scene is laid in Paris, and the persons represented are French. The Baron translated it into English himself, and will supervise the production in London. After the English production, Guitry will present the piece in Paris.

JOINT AUTO LAW BOARD.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17.—Senator White, Chairman of the Internal Affairs Committee of the upper house, introduced tonight a bill authorizing Gov. Sulzer to appoint a commission of three to co-operate with similar commissions representing Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland in an effort to obtain uniform automobile legislation. The commission is to report at the next session of the Legislature.

The matters on which uniform legislation is desired include the registration of machines, the licensing of drivers, the adoption of rules regulating the use of motor vehicles, and speed and procedure in case of violation of the laws. The bill appropriates $3,000 for the expense of the New York commission.

MAGISTRATE O'CONNOR DEAD.

"Poor Man's Little Judge" Stricken Suddenly with Heart Disease.

City Magistrate Keyran J. O'Connor, 43 years old, who was for a number of years Assistant District Attorney, died suddenly yesterday morning of heart disease, at the home of his brother and sister, Daniel and Miss Minnie O'Connor, 108 East 116th Street. He had sat the Morrisania Court on Friday, and was then apparently in good health. Yesterday morning at 4 o'clock he suffered an attack of heart disease for the first time in his life. Four hours later he was dead.

Magistrate O'Connor had apartments in this city at 305 East 116th Street. He also owned a country estate at Stevensville, near Monticello, Sullivan County, N. Y. His family were at the country estate when he died. He left a wife, Josephine, and four children. Magistrate O'Connor suffered a heavy blow when his daughter Ethelyn, 11 years old, was burned to death at their home on Dec. 19, 1910.

While Assistant District Attorney, Mr. O'Connor was employed in the prosecution of many important cases, among them the Molineux and Dr. Kennedy trials. He was a member of the Democratic and Pocasset Clubs, General Committee of Tammany Hall, the Royal Arcanum, and Knights of Columbus.

Magistrate O'Connor was known as "the Poor Man's Little Judge," because of the sympathy he had in cases where people without means to employ attorneys came to his court.

Rugulars Win in Hard Batting and Loose Fielding Game—Four Recruits to Go.

Special to The New York Times.

MARLIN, Texas, March 17.—Following their visit to Southern Texas the Giants, a bit fatigued from a night's ride on the cars, this afternoon resumed battling among themselves, and the regulars beat the second team in a loose slugging game by a score of 14 to 12. President Hempstead of the New York Club was a spectator. It was the first time he had seen his men in action since becoming President of the club.

It was not much of a game that the President saw. For five innings it was an interesting and close set-to. Then the pitching deteriorated, and the players fooled through the last four innings. In the day's grist were seven home runs, made by the following players: Groh, Cooper, Stock (2,) Wiltse, Burns, and Meyers. A few of these were regular home runs—hard, solid hits, but the others were the result of outfielders slowly chasing drives which went with speed along the hard, rough ground of the outfield. Crandall and Doyle could have added four-baggers to the list had they not jogged along on swats.

The pitching combination for the regulars, Crandall and Smith, did much better than Wiltse, Kirby, and McGraw for the second team. Although Crandall was jumped for three homers, he kept the hits scattered, and his arm is growing stronger daily. Wiltse really pitched an excellent game, and the regulars had no cinch until Kirby and McGraw appeared. Smith was generous with bases on balls. The wind bothered him and kept his curves from breaking.

Most everybody made a hit, Cooper getting three, Snodgrass three, and Doyle three; but Thorpe did not get any. The catchers wouldn't let go with their arms in the cold breeze, and stealing was easy. A fine throw to the plate by Burns was a notable fielding feat, and Fletcher was conspicuously capable on high wind-blown flies.

Fletcher was back at short for the regulars. Shafer hurt his ankle in San Antonio yesterday and is very lame. Other ailing ones were Tesreau, who wasn't feeling well after pitching nine innings yesterday; McCormick, whose stomach is troubling him, and Devore, who is limping on a lame foot.

Pitcher Bader was in uniform after a two weeks' absence. The score by innings:

Batteries—Wiltse, Kirby, McGraw, Wilson and Hartley; Crandall, Smith, and Meyers.

Four players are booked to go soon. They are Evers, Torrey, Kirby, and Robertson. Evers and Torrey are likely to be placed with the Scranton Club and Kirby with Mobile. Kirby's bad shoulder has interfered with his usefulness this Spring. Robertson's shoulder has been out of commission since he hurt it playing football. McGraw had high hopes of making a southpaw pitcher of him or an outfielder, and if he recovers fully he may be recalled. Evers needs more weight and experience, but has a fair chance of being back in the big league some day.

WARREN PARK INUNDATED.

Brooklyn Ball Players Forced to Seek Temporary Training Grounds.

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 17.—Manager Dahlen found Warren Park this morning fully two feet under water and unapproachable for two blocks in any direction, except by rowboat. The water in all other places is receding slowly and has completely disappeared from the main street since yesterday. A few of the streets running from the river are still submerged.

Dahlen, after seeing the condition of things, quickly got in touch with the city authorities for the use of Allen Park, where the Brooklyn players worked this afternoon for three hours under ideal weather conditions. Their work was chiefly confined to bunting, hitting to the outfield, and the warming up of the pitchers and catchers. This programme will be carried out until Warren Park is in playing condition, which will be within three or four days.

The Brooklyn manager hopes he will be able to get on his own grounds by Friday at the latest, as he has games scheduled with the Newark Club for Friday and Saturday. This will be a regular championship series, so far as aggressiveness is concerned, as many of the Newark players are former Superbas, and will try and show Dahlen and President Ebbets that they can still play major league ball.

Ty Cobb is anxious to play the Superbas before they leave here the latter part of next week, when they go to Savannah for a two days' series. Tommy McMillan, the former Yankee and now a Rochester hold-out, will run over here from his home in Atlanta to help Cobb, Rucker, and Holmes try to defeat the Brooklyns.

Reds Down Mobile, 4 to 0.

MOBILE, Ala., March 17.—A team made up of Cincinnati regulars, to-day defeated the Mobile team of the Southern League, 4 to 0. Benton, Suggs, and Fromme pitched for Cincinnati. Manager Tinker will take his squad to Birmingham to-morrow. Friday the team will be split, one going to Meridian, Miss., for a game, and the other to Tuscaloosa, Ala. Mordecai Brown, who has been in Washington consulting a bone specialist, reported for practice to-day.

Senators Ask Waivers on Sheer.

CHAROTTESVILLE, Va., March 17.—Allen Sheer, drafted by the Washington American League Baseball Club last Fall from the Youngstown, Ohio, Central League Club, and who has shown good form in practice here as a hitter and outfielder, will join the Boston National League team in a few days. Manager Griffith several days ago asked for waivers on Sheer and was notified to-day that the Boston Club refused to waive. He replied that Boston might have Sheer at the waiver price.

Mack's Recruits Are Victors.

GALVESTON, Texas, March 17.—With the aid of the veterans, Houck, Lapp, and Bender, the recruit squad of the Philadelphia American League team, defeated Galveston of the Texas League, to-day, 9 to 4. Bender appeared only as a batter. He drove out a two-base hit. The game was poorly played.

Detroit Wins at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—The Detroit Americans defeated the New Orleans team of the Southern League in a practice game here to-day, 10 to 1. Klawitter pitched the first five innings for the visitors, and Hall finished the game.

Marquard on His Way South.

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—Rube Marquard and his wife arrived here to-day on their way to join the Giants at Marlin, Texas. Rube stated that he is in good form and intends to hunt down the parties who started the untruthful stories about him in New York by putting detectives on their track.

Lehigh Basket Ball Election.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., March 17.—Harry Crichton of this place, Lehigh University's star basket ball forward, was unanimously elected Captain of the team for next year. This is Crichton's second year on the team, and he is one of the best all-around players Lehigh ever had, besides being the second heaviest point scorer of the past season. Charles Snyder of Pottsville was elected manager of the team for next year.

Entries for Indianapolis Auto Race.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 17.—Fourteen automobiles to date have been entered in the third annual 500-mile race to be held at the Indianapolis Speedway next Memorial Day. Four foreign cars already have been signed to race for the $50,000 in prizes, and at least three more are promised. Speedway officials say they believe the entry list, which is limited to thirty cars, will be more than filled before time for the race. Thus far none of the entrants has shared President Wilson's views on No. 13, and that remains blank on the speedway books.

"INSIDE BALL" DRILL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 17.—Signal practice occupied the attention of Manager Chance and his Yankee players during the greater part of the three-hour workout at the cricket grounds here to-day. From now until their departure from Bermuda, two weeks from to-morrow, Chance's principal aim will be to whip a team of regulars into shape for the opening of the championship season which begins one week after they reach New York.

Up to the present time conditioning the players has been the sole object, but the three weeks of fine weather, interrupted by only one day of rain, has put them all in good physical condition. To-day Chance entered on a new line and made inside ball the subject of most of his talk with the players. He hopes to turn out another baseball machine such as the old Chicago Cubs were for many years.

The players who were assured of their places with the team have been allowed to take things easy for several days, and the games with the Jersey City team were played by second string men. To-day Chance anounced that from now until the players start for home he will have a team of regulars on the field every day for a nine-ining game with either the Jersey City team or the Yankee Yannigans. Jersey City will begin this schedule to-morrow, and the teams will alternate.

Chance has not decided whether he will take part in the first few games, but it is thought that he will be at his old position at first base. The remainder of his infield will be made up of "Pep" Young at second base, Claude Derrick at short, and Roy Hartzell at third base. Chase will not be able to take part in the games for several days, as his injured ankle is still troubling him.

Harry Wolter has been excused from active service in the first few, as Manager Chance does not care to take any unnecessary risks with another injury. Bert Daniels will be in Wolter's place in centre field, with Birdie Cree in left field and Lelivelt in right. Russell Ford and Jack Warhop have been selected to do the pitching for to-morrow's game, and Ed. Sweeney will be behind the bat.

The Yannigan line-up will be far different than the one in force last week in the three games with Jersey City. Two of the former outfielders will be called upon for infield duty to fill the positions vacated by Derrick and Young, but all will be at home in the infield, as all the players used in the outfield during the games with Jersey City are here as candidates for the infield—Stump, Martin, Harbison, and Priest. Manager Chance has no outfielders in camp except the four veterans—Cree, Daniels, Wolter, and Lelivelt.

PIRATES WIN FIRST GAME.

Boston Red Sox Unlucky in Having Their Hits Scattered.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 17.—Balmy weather and a large crowd greeted the opening of the Boston American and Pittsburgh National series of nine games here to-day. Pittsburgh won, 4 to 3.

Bedient pitched hitless ball during the three innings he was on the mound for Boston. Adams and Robinson, for Pittsburgh, were hit freely, but the hits were scattered. The worlds champions showed faster field work. The score:

POLO CAPTAIN CONFIDENT.

H. P. Whitney Returns from England and Expects Victory.

Harry Payne Whitney, who will Captain the American polo team in the international matches to be played at Meadow Brook in June, was among the arrivals yesterday on the steamship George Washington. James M. Waterbury, Jr., another member of the team which will defend the Westchester Polo Club, (Newport,) was also a passenger.

Mr. Whitney and his team mate, who have been hunting during the Winter at the former's estate, Melton Mowbray, England, had little to say about the polo situation, aside from the answer by Mr. Whitney, who, when requested for some expression as to the chances in regard to the coming invasion by the team chosen by the Duke of Westminster, said that he believed that the American team would be successful.

He further said that the make-up of the team would probably be the same as that which successfully defended the cup at Meadow Brook two years ago, after winning it at Hurlingham in 1909. This means that with Mr. Whitney and J. M. Waterbury, Jr., the others will be Lawrence Waterbury and the famous "back" of the team, Devereux Milburn, quite the strongest combination available.

Mr. Whitney will immediately get his forces together and start training for the series. Arrangements have been made to get the ponies ready for the preliminary work, which will be held at the Georgian Court fields at Lakewood, where the mounts will be daily galloped under the eye of Larry Fitzpatrick, who is said to be a past master in the art of conditioning polo ponies, and who fulfilled similar duties prior to the 1911 successes.

WATSON LEADS AT GOLF.

President of National Association Makes Low Score at Aiken, S. C.

Special to The New York Times.

AIKEN, S. C., March 17.—In the qualifying round of the seventeenth annual golf tournament for the Southern Cross Cup, first sixteen to qualify, at the Palmetto Golf Club, Robert C. Watson, Jr., West Brook, President of the U. S. G. A., won the cup for the best gross score, with a 78. E. M. Byers, Allegheny County Club, ran him a close second with a 79. Watson got in trouble at the famous pond hole, taking an 8.

After three days' heavy rain the course was very slow, although the greens were in good condition and a high wind interfered with the scoring. The summary:

N. Y. A. C. WINS TEAM TITLE WITH FOILS

Defeats Fencers' Club in Spirited Encounter at Turn Verein.

New York Athletic Club fencers won the National team championship at foils at the Turn Verein last night, defeating the Fencers' Club foilsmen, last year's champions, in the final team match, by 5 bouts to 3. The fencing was spirited, and many of the encounters were so close that the judges had a difficult time deciding the winners.

The first bout in the finals was between George H. Breed of the Fencers' Club and Dr. J. E. Gignoux of the New York Athletic Club, both members of the American Olympic team. Breed got the bout after making five touches to four when Dr. M. Graeme Hammond, the director, recalled the fencers to the strip, reversed his decision, and in the extra bout Dr. Gignoux was declared the winner.

The bout which decided the title was between James McLaughlin of the New York A. C., the National three weapons champion, and Paul Meylan of the Fencers' Club. McLaughlin displayed his best form in this bout, his thrusts being lightning fast and his touches clean cut. There were several double touches and fouls, but McLaughlin's aggressive style brought him through a winner. The members of the winning team were awarded gold medals and the silver cup presented by the Amateur Fencers' League of America.

The four contesting teams were as follows:

New York Athletic Club—Dr. J. E. Gignoux, P. W. Allison, James O'Laughlin.

Turn Verein—John Allaire, Paul Benzenberg, G. Rennherr, Sr.

Boston Athletic Association—O. D. McLaughlin, Dr. F. W. Allen, R. S. Earle.

Fencers Club—George H. Breed, Charles Tatham, Paul Meylan.

The team match in the preliminaries between the Fencers Club of this city and the Boston A. A. was won by the New York foilsmen, 5 bouts to 3. Paul Meylan of the Fencers team went through with a clean slate, defeating McLaughlin, Allen, and Earle.

Charles Tatham, the Fencers' Club veteran, made his appearance in competition for the first time in a number of years. His two bouts were with Allen and Earle of the Boston team, and he was easily defeated in both encounters by scores of 5 to 2. Summary:

BOSTON A. A. VERSUS FENCERS' CLUB.

Dr. F. W. Allen, Boston A. A., defeated Charles Tatham, Fencers' Club, 5 to 2; O. O. McLaughlin, Boston A. A., defeated G. H. Breed, Fencers' Club, 5 to 4; Paul Meylan, Fencers' Club, defeated R. S. SWIMMERS' PLEA REFUSED.

Illinois Water Polo Team Wanted to Play Under College Rules.

The request of the Illinois Athletic Club for permission from the Amateur Athletic Union to play water polo against the team of Princeton University under intercollegiate rules was denied yesterday, and the officials of the organization informed the club that if the team of the Illinois A. C., or any other team belonging to the A. A. U., played the game under any other rules than those agreed upon at the last annual session of the A. A. U. the members would disqualify themselves.

The Chairman of the Swimming Committee of the Illinois A. C. requested the right to contest with the collegians under the rules governing collegiate sport, and averred that if permission was not given his club would lose 15 points in the dual meet, which has been scheduled for next week.

He asserted in his letter that his organization had no intention of playing under the old rules, as has been stated was its intention, despite permission being granted or not, but desired to abide by the A. A. U. rules that the club did not have a team which could play under the rules recently subscribed to by the union, and that if the boon were granted in this instance a similar request would never again be made.

That Princeton swimmers are willing to abide by the A. A. U. rules in the matter of water polo was attested last week, when the manager of the team stated that his team would not play under conditions which had been proscribed by the ruling athletic body.

It has been stated that the Chicago A. A. and Illinois A. C. teams would play under the old rules and that a war between these organizations and the A. A. U. seemed inevitable. This was believed to be a peculiar state of affairs, in view of the fact that Edward C. Racey, President of the Illinois A. C., is also the leading officer in the Central Association of the Amateur Athletic Union and one of the Board of Governors who subscribed to the new rules at the last annual meeting.

Features at Loughlin Games.

One of the features of the Loughlin Lyceum games, to be held in the armory of the Thirteenth Regiment in Brooklyn, April 11, will be the "family" medley relay race, which is open to teams of three brothers. Among the nominations to date are the Hillmans, Ralph, Roy, and Harry, of Brooklyn College; Ben, Harry, and William Garing; the Ellers, Bob, Jack, and Harry; Willie Kramer and his brothers, Fred and Henry, and the Rileys, Frank, Eddie, and Stephen. Another of the specials will be the "600," for which a bronze trophy valued at $300 will be the prize, and for which athletes who have done 1:16 or better will be eligible. The runner who scores eleven points or more in three contests for the prize will be declared the winner, or, if members of one club win it three times the trophy will go to the man scoring the greatest number of points. In case of a tie in points, the man making the fastest time will be awarded the prize. The following events are open to all registered amateurs: Ninety yard and 275 yard dashes, handicaps; 1,000-yard run, handicap; two-mile run, handicap; 1,200-yard relay, handicap, open to clubs, schools, colleges, high schools, Young Men's Christian Associations, and Catholic and Church Athletic Leagues. The track measures eight laps to the mile, and for the 600 yards the runners will have an eighty-yard straightaway at both start and finish.

Rivers Here for Cross Bout.

Joe Rivers, the California lightweight, who recently knocked out "Knockout" Brown in ten rounds at Los Angeles, arrived in New York last evening with his manager, Joe Levy, and his trainer, Abdul the Turk, to prepare for his bout with Leach Cross at the St. Nicholas A. C. on Tuesday, April 8. Rivers has not decided where he will do his training, but it will probably be at Dal Hawkins's roadhouse, in Westchester. Rivers and his manager will visit that camp to-day. Cross, who returned a few days ago from New Orleans, will begin his training soon, probably at the New Polo A. A. The management of the St. Nicholas A. C. has decided upon Wednesday night as the regular night for their shows, and will stage bouts on that evening every week during the Spring and Summer months. The opening show has been advanced one day so as not to conflict with the opening of the baseball season.

TO INVESTIGATE RECORDS.

Fast Times in Buffalo Armory Provoke Official Contention.

It was announced at the Amateur Athletic Union headquarters yesterday that unless all the conditions had been lived up to by the officials at the recent record-breaking feats of Joe Driscoll and Tom Halpin at the games of the Seventy-fourth Regiment in Buffalo, when the first named is said to have done 3:07 for three-quarters of a mile and the latter 440 yards in 49 2-5 seconds, the marks will not be credited. So many fast performances have been credited to runners on this track that most of them are viewed with suspicion because of the fact that the makers never afterward came near duplicating them.

Secretary-Treasurer Sullivan of the union stated that unless the track had been officially measured before or immediately after the events while the marks from which the men ran were still standing the records would not be acted upon favorably.

Halpin has been doing much fine running on New York tracks, with possibly his best showing in the Suburban Quarter, won by Meredith in 50 3-5 seconds, which is quite some removed from 49 2-5 seconds. When Meredith beat him it was by a margin of a yard or over.

Driscoll's most recent work prior to his three-quarter-mile defeat of Kiviat shows him to have run as follows: Dec. 6, one mile in 4:25; Jan. 1, one mile in 4:23 1-5; Feb. 7, 1,000 yards in 2:16 1-5; March 7, one mile in 4:23 3-5. These times were accorded him on the Sixty-fifth Regiment track, and all are fine performances.

It is not known here as to whether the Seventy-fourth Regiment track has ever been officially surveyed, but the fact remains that many wonderful records are credited to it, from 75 yards to well up into the distances which Bonhag ran. Maxie Long is credited with 22 3-5 seconds around the eighth of a mile board ellipse; Dan Myer, 49 4-5 seconds for a quarter-mile; E. B. Parsons, 1:54 3-5 for the half; George Bonhag, 9:14 1-5 for two miles. None of these men ever did any such performances on indoor tracks in and about New York before or afterward.

Mike Murphy is authority for the statement made after Cornell's team had won a four-mile relay in 17:43 2-5 last year in Buffalo that there certainly must have been something the matter with the track, or that the timekeepers were in error, as his men were too close to the winners, and could do nothing like such a performance.

SULLIVAN'S LONG TRIP.

Athletic Director of Panama Exposition to Make Tour.

In order to help forward the plans of the managers of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition to make athletics and sport generally features of the exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915, James E. Sullivan, Secretary-Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, will leave for the Coast on Saturday, sailing on the steamer Momus for New Orleans.

He will confer with the officials of the Southern association of the A. A. U. in that city in relation to athletics, and expects to visit the Texas association and the clubs in Spokane and Seattle after he has finished his work at the Golden Gate.

Appointed Director of Athletics by the exposition officials headed by President Charles C. Moore and Director in Chief Frederick J. V. Skiff, it is planned by Mr. Sullivan to make the sports at the exhibition equal any series of Olympic games ever held through the attendance and competition of the most skilled athletes of the world.

At these games will be decided the amateur championships of America for 1915, action in this regard having been taken at the A. A. U.'s annual meeting last November. The exposition has also been honored with the award by the International Olympic Committee of the right to hold the modern Penthathlon, a five-event series, which will be for the championship of the world.

For this series the International Olympic Committee at its session last year in Paris voted a medal to be given to the winner of the Pentathlon, which was one of the feature events at the Stockholm sports. In addition a plaque will be given to the winner, which will probably be the most expensive prize ever given in an amateur contest.

The modern Pentathlon consists of riding, cross-country running, swimming, fencing and shooting, and as this event will be on the programme of events at the Olympic games in Berlin in 1916 it is expected that the United States Army and Navy athletes will take a great interest in the series.

IRISH CHAMPION HERE.

Robert Hales of Bandon, One-Mile Title Holder, to Join I.-A. A. C.

Robert Hales, the Irish one-mile champion runner of last year, arrived in New York yesterday and intends to make this country his home for the future. He was one of the choices of the British Olympic Committee last year in its selections of men to constitute the English team at the Stockholm Olympics; but, like a number of other Irishmen, he is said to have refused to compete under English colors, and therefore declined the trip.

Hales is a native of Bandon and is a well set-up type of athlete. In the championships of Ireland, decided at Balls Bridge, Dublin, last May, he was a somewhat easy winner of the mile in 4:32 3-5, defeating, among others, M. J. L. Daly of the Irish A. C. of London and H. W. Jack, University College, Cork. It is Hales's intention to join the Irish-American A. C. of this city and begin to measure strides with the pick of the amateurs hereabouts as soon as he gets in condition.

New Y. M. C. A. 2-Mile Record.

Athletes of the West Side Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association contested in their bi-monthly games in the clubhouse gymnasium last night, and the event which attracted the most interest was the two-mile run, which was to decide the championship of the branch. This was won by H. S. Ives in 10:00 on a twenty-lap track, who created a new record for the distance, eclipsing the former mark by eleven seconds. The winner had a close race for the greater part of the distance, but at the finish his advantage was about ten yards over J. Franklin. The summaries:

FIGHTING IRISHMAN WINS AT OLYMPIC

Paddy Sullivan Outpoints Willie Adams Throughout Ten Rounds.

Paddy Sullivan of the west side outpointed Willie Adams of Brooklyn in ten rounds, Eddie Kelly of Harlem gained the honors over Bert Papp in another bout that went the full distance, and Tommy Hook stopped Young Fulton in three rounds at the Olympic A. C. of Harlem last night. Young Fulton was substituted for Kid Ghetto of the east side, who injured his ankle in training and could not go on.

The Sullivan-Adams bout, which was put on last, belonged to the Fighting Irishman practically all the way. Adams weighed 142 pounds and Sullivan was two pounds under this figure. During the first two rounds Adams was able to give Sullivan as much as he took, but from the third round to the finish Paddy set too fast a pace for Adams. In the sixth round he drove Adams around the ring and into a neutral corner, pounding hard with both hands to Adams's head and body. It seemed as if Adams would go down under the bombardment, but he began to hold on, and thereby saved himself. In the eighth round Sullivan opened a cut beside Adams's left eye, and, with a new target to shoot at, Sullivan increased his already large lead. His hard right-hand punches made Adams spin around, but the latter was strong enough to stay on his feet to the final bell.

The ending of the semi-final bout between Houck and Fulton in the third round was as unexpected as it was peculiar. Houck weighed 128 pounds, and Fulton was two pounds heavier. The first round was about even, each boy jarring the other several times with hard punches to the head. They started the fast work as soon as the first bell sounded. In the second round Fulton landed continually on Houck's face with long right swings and had Tommy's face as red as a beet when he went to his corner. Houck did some effective body punching in this round, but the honors belonged to Fulton. In the third round Houck did most of the forcing, but he had to take several more of the hard right-hand swings. He again made Fulton's stomach the target of his attack, and the wisdom of this plan became apparent a second before the bell ended the round. As the boys came out of a clinch, in which Houck had been pounding away at Fulton's stomach, the latter dropped to the floor, apparently through weakness from the punching rather than from any single punch. He was helped to his corner, and though he appealed to be allowed to continue Referee Pollock stopped the bout.

In the opening ten-round bout Eddie Kelly made a poor start, but won by a decisive margin. Bert Papp outpointed him in the opening round, using a right uppercut and a left jab to good advantage. He succeeded in flooring Kelly, but the latter was on his feet again in an instant. In the second round Kelly got an even break, and from that time to the finish he led all the way. In the seventh round Kelly had Papp in a bad way, and a knockout seemed likely. In the eighth Papp tried to force the work, but he was very wild and most of his leads missed. In the last round Kelly pushed Papp completely through the ropes, and the extension of the ring prevented him from falling among the spectators. Both boys weighed 135¼ pounds.

HARRY LEWIS WINS IN THIRD.

American Knocks Out Jack Harrison, a Middleweight Champion.

LONDON, March 17.—Harry Lewis, the American welterweight, to-night knocked out Jack Harrison, the middleweight champion of England, in the third round of a twenty-round contest. The fight took place at the National Sporting Club.

Harry Lewis last February obtained an award of $3,750 damages in a suit against a motor cab company on account of injuries he had sustained in a taxicab accident, which, his counsel argued, had impaired his nerve, vitality, and his ability to fight.

Jeannette Puts Out Toledo Negro.

Joe Jeannette, Hoboken's negro heavyweight, figured in another of his periodical workouts last night before the Queensboro Athletic Club of Long Island City. The opponent selected for Jeannette was one Jack Reed of Toledo, who was said to have made quite a record in the South, including a victory over Nat Dewey. It was the same old story for Jeannette. For two rounds he toyed with the Toledo negro so that the crowd might get a run for its money, and in the third he drove a terrific right to Reed's jaw and the latter went down and out.

Brown and Anderson Rematched.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—Knockout Brown of New York and Bud Anderson, the Vancouver boxer, who fought a twenty-round draw in the Vernon Arena here last Saturday, have been rematched for another battle here next month.

Militiamen Stop Prize Fight.

SAPULPA, Okla., March 17. Adjt. Gen. Canton and a squad of National Guardsmen from Tulsa, acting under orders of Gov. Cruce, to-night stopped the scheduled ten-round fight between Carl Morris and Jim Stewart of New York. No intimation was given that the bout would not be permitted until almost time for the first gong.

Cross and Denny Box a Draw.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—Young Denny, the New Orleans welterweight, and Phil Cross of New York, brother of Leach Cross, boxed ten rounds here to-night. There was no decision. The work of the two men was fast and honors apparently were about even.

HUBALEK LEADS MARKSMEN.

Record Holder Makes Best Score in 100-Shot Championship.

Dr. W. G. Hudson fell 5 points below his last year's score for the hundred-shot indoor gallery championship of the United States yesterday, and in addition lost first place in this year's tournament, when A. Hubalek of Brooklyn, holder of the world's record, finished 4 points ahead of Dr. Hudson's score. The competition, which is being held under the auspices of the Zettler Rifle Club, 159 West Twenty-third Street, has been productive of several high scores. In the first day's shooting C. Zettler led with a total of 2,441. This score was passed by P. J. O'Hare of Newark, N. J., who turned in a card of 2,452. O'Hare did not hold the lead long, as Dr. Hudson tallied 2,474, or but 10 points below the record. A. Hubalek, who in addition to being the record holder, was the champion in 1911, followed with a card of 2,478. The remaining scores were below the average.

Within the next two days the out-of-town crack shots are expected to compete. These include Capt. A. F. Laudensack and H. M. Thomas of New Haven. L. P. Ittel of Pittsburgh, W. Brooks of Newport, R. I., and Jesse Smith and Dr. J. A. Snook of Columbus. The Italian and German shooting societies are showing interest in the competition, and have entered their best shots in the different events scheduled during the week. The contests will remain open until 10 o'clock Saturday night.

In the continuous target competition Dr. Hudson scored 6 perfect scores of 75 and an equal number of cards showing 74. H. M. Pope made two 75 scores and 5 at 74. The other marksmen to turn in perfect scores were C. A. Schrag and C. Zettler. The scores:

Busy Season for Scullers.

A revival of professional sculling is probable during the coming season in England, Australia, and America such as has not been seen in over a quarter of a century. It will begin at Syracuse in a match for the championship of America and stakes of $1,000 a side between Edward Durnan of Toronto, Canada, the American title holder, and Frank B. Geer of Boston, who holds the championship of the United States. Through the efforts of the veteran oarsman, James A. Ten Eyck, coach of Syracuse University crews, a backer has been secured for Geer, who stands ready to match him against Durnan. Should Geer be successful the backer is willing to take the Bostonian across the Atlantic and challenge the winner of the Barry-Arnst match, which will be rowed on the Thames in July.

HARLEM OARSMEN REGATTA CLASH

To Request That Schuylkill Event Be Advanced Several Days.

An effort will be made by the Harlem River Regatta Association to prevent a clash in regatta dates with the American Rowing Association. The latter organization selected May 31 for its annual regatta on the Schuylkill River, Philadelphia, while the Harlem River Association has always held its annual rowing event on the Harlem River on Memorial Day, May 30. The Regatta Committee of the Harlem River Regatta Association, at a special meeting last night, appointed a committee to confer with the committee named by the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen and the stewards of the American Rowing Association with a view, to arranging if possible to advance the Philadelphia regatta to May 24.

In order to secure an amicable adjustment of dates Chairman H. Cleaver of the Harlem Regatta Association appointed J. A. Miller, New York A. C.; S. Weisbader, Lone Star Boat Club, and H. Hertberg, Union Boat Club, to attend the conference in Philadelphia with the National Association Committee and the Stewards of the American Rowing Association, which will be held within one week.

The programme of events for Memorial Day was adopted at the meeting. Sixteen races will comprise the programme. This is one less than last year. The senior single quarter mile dash was eliminated this year, as it was not considered spectacular enough. The other events are the same as last year. The programme follows:

Junior singles, intermediate singles, association singles, senior singles, junior doubles, intermediate doubles, senior doubles, junior quarduple sculls, intermediate quadruple sculls, senior quadruple sculls, junior four gig, intermediate four shell, senior four shell, junior eight-oared shell, intermediate eight-oared shell and senior eight-oared event.

The committee, in selecting the list of events, decided to encourage junior oarsmen, and all events are contingent on three or more entries. The Regatta Committee follows:

H. Cleaver, Nassau Boat Club, Chairman; S. Weisbader, Lone Star Boat Club; John O. Regan, Metropolitan Boat Club; H. Lauer, Metropolitan Boat Club; H. Hertberg, Union Boat Club; J. A. Miller, New York A. C.; and J. Kraft, Nonpareil Boat Club.

Vankennen, '15, was second in the final scoring with a total of 54½ points, receiving the silver trophy offered for this position. C. B. Merrill, '14, was third with 51¼, being awarded the bronze medal. These medals are the gift of a former 'Varsity jumper, being offered to stimulate interest in the all-around jumping competitions.

AUTO DEVICE MAY DO AWAY WITH SPRINGS

These Air Cushions Also Save Wear and Tear on Tires—Tested on Motor Trucks.

There is about to be put on the automobile market a device of a somewhat revolutionary character intended to do away with the leaf spring and the shock absorber altogether. It consists of pneumatic cushions, varying in size, according to the weight of the car, and connected with a tank. These cushions are in the form of big rubber balls with a projection on one end which fits into a cone-shaped device that is bolted to the axle and folds the cushion walls inward under the shocks of the road.

The amount of folding is in proportion to the violence of the shock, but as the contact area at the bottom of the cushion is increased by this folding and the cushion deformed, as it were, the pressure of air in the cushions is not materially increased. The copper tank to which the upper or neck portions of the cushions are attached by conduits is provided with a check valve and the air within it is thus pumped to the pressure desired for the specific load. This is never very high.

It is the contention of the inventor, C. H. Cox, that this slight change of pressure makes the wear and tear on the cushion walls practically nil. In test a set of cushions have operated some 11,000 miles in actual service on a three-ton truck of the Adams Express Company, and other sets for high mileages on touring cars. It is said the invention makes possible the use of steel tires or sold rubber tires with as good riding qualities as are to be had from pneumatic tires with ordinary springs.

ENGLISH DEPOTS NEEDED.

Our Cottons Can Be Sold There in No Other Way, Consul Says.

Attempts to get a share of the trade of the United Kingdom in waist and dress materials by correspondence only are likely, according to Consul General J. L. Griffiths, London, to prove fruitless. The better course, he contends, is to open a depot in that country, under competent management to the end that personal representation may be made directly to the wholesalers, and that samples may be readily produced for their inspection. Prices could then be quoted free on board, London, or, if stocks were carried in sufficient quantity, actual price for delivery. Oftentimes wholesalers there do not carry stocks of all ranges, but on getting orders notify the manufacturer to deliver directly to the retail purchaser.

In view of the immense quantity of cotton fabrics manufactured in the United Kingdom, amounting to more than 7,000,000,000 yards annually, with a value at factory of about $500,000,000, it is apparent that persistent efforts are necessary to get trade of any consequence in that part of the world.

$15,000,000 FOR NEW DOCKS.

Board of Estimate's Committee Agrees to Spend It This Year.

At a conference yesterday between the members of the Terminal Committee of the Board of Estimate, composed of Mayor Gaynor, Dock Commissioner Tomkins, Controller Prendergast, Borough President McAneny, and President of the Board of Aldermen John Purroy Mitchel, it was agreed to spend $15,000,000 for dock improvements this year.

About $5,000,000 will be spent in the building of a 1,200-foot pier and another half pier for the accommodation of at least three big steamships at the foot of Forty-sixth Street and the Hudson River. Land will be purchased along the South Brooklyn waterfront to connect up the parcels now owned by the city, and docks will be constructed there. The pierhead line in the vicinity of Desbrosses Street and the Hudson River will be straightened so as to provide for the building of two 800-foot piers there, and the Gansevoort Market will be relocated.

Appraisal Shows Broker's Estate Suffered Loss in Morse Failure.

The appraisal of the estate of John Wallace, senior member of the brokerage firm of John Wallace & Co., which was largely involved in the financial fall of Charles W. Morse, was filed yesterday, showing total assets of $2,340,895. The largest single item was in the form of bank deposits, $1,891,923, the greater part of which was in the hands of John Wallace & Co. Mr. Wallace died Sept. 18, 1909.

Morse had an account with the firm estimated at $128,503, at the time of his ruin. This was covered largely by collateral, among which were 200 shares of the Hudson River Navigation Company. This collateral was sold at auction on Sept. 12, 1907, the firm realizing $72,887 by the transaction. Mr. Wallace's interest in the firm was estimated at 40 per cent., and his estate lost that part of the difference.

Mrs. Francis L. Wallace, his wife, opposed the probate of the will, on the ground that the testator was incompetent at the time of drawing up the document, and showed unreasonable enmity against her. In 1911 she succeeded in reaching an agreement with the beneficiaries by which she receives one-fifth of the income from a five-hundred-thousand-dollar bequest which was divided among a brother and three sisters of the testator.

REMADE HOTEL OPENS.

The Marlborough-Blenheim Begins Business on Broadway.

The Marlborough-Blenheim, newest of New York hotels, at Broadway and Thirty-sixth Street, opened its doors at 6 o'clock last evening for business. Everything within the four walls of the old Marlborough Hotel is brand new, and even the walls were partly rebuilt.

The hotel is owned by the Marlborough-Blenheim Company, and is under the same management as the Stanwix Hall in Albany, the Garden in New Haven and the new Military Plaza Hotel in Newark. The proprietors are Charles H. Ruhl, F. A. McNamee and M. Hollaran, and the new manager is J. F. Downey. The foyer is one of the handsomest in the city, the ceiling being decorated in Italian blue and gold, with furniture and draperies of a rich red. The small dining room off the foyer is decorated in old rose and French gray, while the principal dining room downstairs is done in the simple style of the Adams period, the color scheme being red and white and pale blue.

Free Concerts by the City Orchestra.

Beginning to-night in the Normal College, there will be a free concert by the City Orchestra each evening of this week up to and including Saturday. They will be under the direction of Henry T. Fleck, and the soloists will be Marie Stoddart, soprano; Elsie Baker, contralto; Albert Quesnell, tenor, and Frederick Wheeler, bass. The other concerts will be: Wednesday, Flushing High School and Public School 5, Bridge Street, Brooklyn; Thursday, Richmond Hill High School and Public School 90, Richmond Hill; Friday, Public School 95, Houston and Clarkson Streets, and Public School 66, Brownsville; and Saturday, Curtis High School and Public School 1, Tottenville, S. I.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

FUR STOCKS TOO HEAVY.

Manufacturer Says Overproduction Is Ruining Business.

Overproduction is the crying evil of the New York fur trade, and, according to a representative local manufacturer, until some means of preventing it are decided upon there can be little hope of the business showing real profit.

"Overproduction hurts this trade more than anything else," he said yesterday, "and until this evil is successfully combated the trade as a whole will continue to sink from day to day. It can be stopped only by all the manufacturers agreeing to run their plants seven or eight months a year, instead of trying to run them twelve, as at present.

"It is because of overproduction that the buyers dominate the manufacturers to the extent they now do. Some of their actions are as unbusinesslike as can be imagined. Many of them have made it a practice in the last few years to fit up their departments without expense to their respective stores. They come to the manufacturers and say 'I will buy $1,000 worth of goods from you on memorandum,' and the manufacturer, being always overstocked and anxious to unload, usually gives the buyer the merchandise. Then the buyer shows his appreciation by returning, at the end of the season, all the goods bought on memorandum that remain unsold.

"What is the result, then, when the manufacturer gets back the major portion of his merchandise at the end of the season and is unable to meet his obligations? Is it any wonder under these conditions that this trade cannot get early orders, to be regularly shipped and charged, without the memorandum nuisance?

"Imagine the financial standing of this trade at the end of the 1912-1913 season, with the thirteen-week strike we had, and millions of dollars' worth of merchandise selling at or less than 50 cents on the dollar at the season's close. It is true that the weather played a large part in this particular condition, but nothing hurt the trade to the extent it was affected by overproduction."

MEN'S CLOTHS FOR FALL.

Wool Cassimeres Taking Place of Worsteds—Browns in Demand.

Local sellers of men's wear fabrics report wool cassimeres moving best for Fall, owing to the increased prices of worsteds. There is a consequent trend toward lighter weights in the latter. Cotton warps, fancy skein-dies, piece-dies, and fancy woven serges are selling briskly. A shortage of desirable Spring goods is reported. One member of the trade said that he had been obliged to stop work on lighter fabrics, as he had no outlook for them, and begin on heavyweights. For Fall brown mixtures, principally cassimeres, seem to lead the demand.

Spring business done in men's clothing continues satisfactory, with sales reported ahead of last year. Considerable difficulty, however, is experienced because of the strike, in making deliveries. Roll-front coats, of the three and four-button variety, continue leading the demand. Color preference is given to gray, with blue closely following. A sprinkling of two-tone effects and pencil-stripes, from hair-line width to three-eighths of an inch, is also noticed.

SPRING SHOE BUSINESS.

Larger Than Was Expected—Tendencies in Styles.

Spring business of local shoe manufacturers has been larger than expected, but orders booked for April and May delivery show conservatism. This is reported due to uncertainty over the recent change of Adminstration. Some substantial re-orders have already been received from dealers preparing Easter sales.

For men's and women's shoes there is style tendency toward avoiding the high, broad toe. Black lace shoes are reported the most-wanted for men, while for women there has been a large demand for button tan shoes. There is also large selling of suede boots and pumps in gray and brown. There is an unusually heavy demand for white buck and canvas for women's and misses' Summer shoes. The high-cut style is most-wanted locally, while out-of-town orders call for regular height.

Fall styles will probably differ little from Spring. For women large sales of gunmetal-calf are looked for, with a fair call for patent leather. Black will probably be the prevailing color although gray and brown-top boots will be much worn.

COMMISSION MEN ANGRY.

Resent Reflection on Trade Arising from Individual Arrests.

Indignation was felt yesterday by commission merchants of this city over the charge growing out of the arrest of certain members of the trade for alleged defrauding of shippers and that honest commission men were in the great minority. One member of the trade summed the situation up as fololws:

"While it is out of the question for any merchant to know what all his competitors are doing, it is my belief that, as a whole, there are as few illegitimate practices in this trade as in any other. The competition is entirely too keen for any merchant who intends to make this business the permanent source of his bread and butter to be anything but honest. The whole trade is constantly working to get new accounts, and, consequently, if any shipper is dissatisfied with the service given he can easily find another outlet for his produce.

"It has been charged that a certain shipper has been the victim of dishonest commission men for twenty years. It does not seem possible that this shipper would have sustained continual loss for that length of time without having made some very forceful complaint or taken advantage of the law in this State that gave him permission, through the Commissioner of Agriculture, to see how his account stood on the books of the commission men. To defame reputable business men for the tricks that may have been played by a few dishonest merchants is far from being a square deal. One or two 'off' apples don't make the whole barrel bad."

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Platinum in Calorimeters Free—Beet Knives Not Machine Tools.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained a protest by the Adams Express Company against the classification under the Tariff act of 1909 of platinum parts of calorimeters used to determine the heat of combustion of solids, liquids, and gases. The parts were returned by Collector Loeb at 45 per cent. ad valorem as manufactures of metal. The importer asked free entry under Paragraph 653, for parts of platinum for chemical use.

A. C. Sherrard & Co. of Chicago were overruled on highly tempered steel file wheels and beet knives or shredders, returned at 45 per cent. as manufactures of metal. The firm asked entry at 30 per cent. ad valorem as machine tools.

The board, dealing with a contention by Solomon Brothers & Co., ruled that where old and new rubber is imported mixed importers must prove the respective percentages to receive free entry on the old. The importers showed that 75 per cent. of the invoice was old rubber. The board held the old rubber free under the act of 1909, and the new at 10 per cent. ad valorem as waste. Collector Loeb had assessed the entire lot as waste.

Move Into Municipal Building.

Bridge Commissioner Arthur J. O'Keeffe and his staff started yesterday to move from their old quarters in the Park Row Building to the eighteenth floor of the new Municipal Building. From now on the work of completing the building, which is being constructed under the supervision of the Department of Bridges, will be administered from this floor, and other city departments will begin to move into the new structure as their offices are ready. Work on the interior of the structure is being rushed. The statue of "Civic Fame," 20 feet high and 560 feet above the ground, will be in place within a few days.

COFFEE SUPPLY REDUCED.

Not More Than 9,500,000 Bags in Sight for July 1.

Henry Nordlinger & Co., 81 Front Street, review the coffee situation under date of March 15 as follows:

"The decrease in the world's visible supply of 1,400,000 bags in two months (January and February) took place without receiving the slightest attention. We expect to see a further decrease of about 2,500,000 bags during the remaining four months of the fiscal year, calculating as follows:

	Bags.
Receipts at all Brazilian shipping ports	1,500,000
Arrivals of mild in Europe and the United States	2,000,000
Total into sight movement	3,500,000
Withdrawals from port stocks in the United States and Europe	6,000,000

"Thus we expect the world's visible supply on July 1 next to be reduced to 9,500,000 bags.

"It is to be remarked upon that such a small world's visible supply has not been witnessed at the end of the crop year in twelve years. We must furthermore bear in mind that about 3,170,000 bags of the existing visible supply belong to the San Paulo Government, and that they are not available for consumption.

"The 7,000,000 bags excess of production over consumption of the crop of 1906-07 has all been used up, and, unless the acreage is materially increased, we will not experience such an enormous production again for many years.

"The recent price depression brought on forced liquidation of long commitments in certain quarters and the putting out of hedges against stock by many jobbers, thus clearing the atmosphere of the weaker elements. The leading bulls appear to have implicit confidence in their position, no indication of weakness on their part being noticeable at any time.

"Arrivals of mild coffe in Europe and the United States are small this year, about 300,000 bags less during January and February than during the same two months last year. The lateness of these crops is no doubt reflected to some extent in these smaller receipts, but we are informed that the crops of Guatemala, Mexico, and San Salvador are much smaller than last year. On the basis of reports at hand we calculate the entire mild coffee crops at slightly under 4,000,000 bags, as compared with estimates of European houses of over 4,500,000 bags earlier in the season."

LANDIS REOPENS OLEO CASE

Instructs Jury to Investigate MacVeagh's Reduction of Penalties.

CHICAGO, March 17.—Judge Landis in the United States District Court to-day instructed a special Grand Jury to investigate alleged butterine frauds compromised by the Treasury Department on March 4. The Grand Jury is to learn if the manufacturers were not guilty of conspiracy to defraud the Government under Section 37 of the National penal code.

The jurors were informed that they had authority to look into the oleomargarine business and that of manufacturing cottonseed oil, and to bring witnesses here from any part of the country. If there was a common understanding among manufacturers, Judge Landis instructed, "it will be your duty to inquire with very great care whether any public officer or agent of the Government had a conscious part in the arrangement."

Judge Landis told the jurors that it was discovered two years ago that big oleomargarine manufacturers were using cottonseed oil treated with sulphur, which made the imitation look like real butter. The manufacturers, he said, were warned that they would use the colored oil at their own peril.

A committee of the House of Representatives investigated, the Court said, and calculated that the Government had been deprived of $1,200,000 in taxes. The committee also recommended that the cases be not compromised. Nevertheless, as one of the last acts of his late administration of the Treasury Department Secretary MacVeagh compromised the penalties at $101,000.

This compromise, continued Judge Landis, was based on the law giving the Internal Revenue Bureau authority to compromise cases where the revenue law had been violated.

"If the manufacturers have been guilty of conspiracy to defraud the Government, however, the case comes under Section 37 of the Federal Penal Code," said the Court, "and the charge made under that law cannot be compromised by the Treasury Department."

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Franklin MacVeagh, former Secretary of the Treasury, when informed of Judge Landis's action in the oleomargarine cases, said that he "stood pat" on the statement he issued a few days ago explaining the compromise, and that he did not think it "worth while" to comment on Judge Landis's instructions to the Grand Jury.

A Famous Sequence of Sunday Newspapers

FAIR WARNING!

You will certainly regret it if you do not place your order with your newsdealer in good time to make sure of The Easter Times, next Sunday, which will contain, besides all the regular Sunday features, superb, full-page, full-color reproductions, on fine paper, of the Eight Masterpieces of the Morgan Collection, reproduced by courtesy of Mr. J. P. Morgan and the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

STORIES OF THE MORGAN MASTERPIECES

"Virgin and Child Enthroned with Saints"—By Raphael.

This is the wonderful altar-piece by Raffaello Sanzio, whom we know as Raphael—the classic sixteenth century painting which shows the Virgin seated upon a high, richly adorned and canopied throne. She holds the Christ Child in her lap and He is blessing the little St. John, who stands close by in an attitude of adoration.

This masterpiece was painted by Raphael for the nuns in Perugia, but the familiar reference to it as the Colonna Madonna or the Ripalda Madonna speaks of its later wanderings before it landed in the collection of Mr. Morgan. For more than 100 years it was kept and cherished by the good nuns, but finally, in 1677, they obtained permission to sell it, that they might pay their debts. It brought 2,000 scudi. To-day it is priceless. It passed through many hands before it became the property of the Kings of the Two Sicilies and hung in the bedroom of the royal palace at Naples. It was undisturbed until revolutions came, and even then King Francis would not yield it up, but took it with him to the fortress of Gaeta, and when that fell, in 1861, he carried it off to Spain with him. It was then that he became inclined to part with it, and word was carried to Disraeli in London that it could be bought.

"Get the picture," was Disraeli's only comment, and so Baron Rothschild was intrusted with the delicate task of getting it for England. But meanwhile the Empress Eugenie wanted it in the Louvre. The price asked was 1,000,000f. It was in 1901 that Mr. Morgan came into possession of the masterpiece.

"La Devideuse"—By Greuze.

"La Devideuse," by Jean Baptiste Greuze, made its first appearance at the Salon of 1759. It is the three-quarter length portrait of a fair-haired peasant girl.

This picture passed through a long series of collections before it was purchased by Mr. Morgan. It seems that the Marquis de Bandol owned it, and then, doubtless by purchase, it became the property of La Live de Jully, "introducteur des ambassadeurs," who was the intimate friend of all the artists of his day. At all events, it was in his collection when it was sold in the Spring of 1770, and it brought the then very handsome sum of 950 livres. Yet two years later, when it was sold in the collection of the Duc de Choiseuil, it brought 1,600 livres, and the price has been mounting with each change of hands since then.

"Miss Farren"—By Sir Thomas Lawrence.

Of all these portraits, none is more charming than the Lawrence portrait of Elizabeth Farren, and there is a story in it because it made that young, struggling painter, Tom Lawrence, who became afterward President of the Royal Academy. Miss Farren became the Countess of Derby, but when she posed for young Lawrence she was just the most popular actress in England, and when it was exhibited, every one gathered before it not only for the obvious genius which proclaimed the young painter's right to rank with Reynolds, but because they all knew Miss Farren, and found a fascination in this radiant portrait of her.

"It is completely Elizabeth Farren—arch, careless spirited, elegant, and engaging," wrote the critic of The Public Advertiser.

Miss Farren was a strolling player, who went on the stage shortly after she learned to walk. Her first London appearance was at the Haymarket in 1777. It was not long before she was established as a London favorite, so that when Mrs. Abington retired from the Drury Lane it was Elizabeth Farren who played the "fine ladies" on that historic stage.

She retired in 1797, and within a few weeks married Edward, the twelfth Earl of Derby.

The portrait passed into the family of the Earl of Wilton by the marriage of the daughter of the Earl of Derby.

"Portrait of a Child"—By Unknown Spanish Painter.

Of the single Spanish masterpiece in this selection of eight, there is less to tell than of any of the other seven, for of its painter and its time there is no certainty. There appears to be a date on the lower right-hand side, but this is indistinct—so indistinct that it might be either 1546 or 1646. It is a whole-length portrait of a child of two or three years, chubby, serious, weighted down by the extraordinary costume of its generation. The dress is long and patterned in gold and brown, with an accordion-pleated front.

"Mademoiselle Helvetius"—By Drouais.

That same Salon of 1759 which saw the first exhibition of the Greuze picture saw also a painting by Francois Hubert Drouais, "Premier Peintre au Roy," the Court painter for Louis XV. He called it "Une Jeune Fille Tenant des Raisins," and there is very little reason to doubt that this was the same portrait which is now in the Morgan collection under the title "Mademoiselle Helvetius," the demure little lady of 5 or 6 who looks out from beneath her tip-tilted hat and holds in the folds of her white dress the grapes which connect it with the Drouais painting of the 1759 Salon. The subject of this portrait was the little Elisabeth who afterward married Alexander Francois Comte de Mun, and the portrait to-day is listed as from the collection of the Marquis de Mun, her great-grandson, who is the present head of the family.

Elisabeth was the elder daughter of Claude Adrien Helvetius, the celebrated French philosopher and writer.

"The Depositing of Giovanni Bellini's Three Pictures in the Church of the Redentore, Venice"—By Turner.

The only one of the eight paintings to be reproduced in the Easter number of The Sunday Times that is neither a portrait nor a group like the Raphael Madonna is the Turner picture, "The Depositing of Giovanni Bellini's Three Pictures in the Church of the Redentore, Venice." This is a brilliant Venetian painting, with red predominant in the many small figures and green for the water of the canal. It is a view along the Canal of the Giudecca, toward San Giorgio; to the right Redentore; in the middle the State barge, gay with flags and flowers, and surrounded by gondolas in which some men are supporting the pictures. The three pictures which inspired Turner are still in the sacristy of Chiesa del Redentore, and, while critics join in the praise of Turner's painting, they quarrel vigorously with his attribution of the three to Bellini. Also the public inauguration was probably imaginary, as history does not tell of any such ceremonial "hanging." It was exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1841.

"Lady Maitland"—By Raeburn.

There is a wonderful Irish beauty in the Raeburn portrait of Catherine, Lady Maitland, a beauty that many Englishmen admired and that won the admiration of the critical Napoleon. She was the daughter of Daniel Connor of Ballybricken, County of Cork, and she was married to Sir Frederick Lewis Maitland, who was the Captain of the Bellerophon, aboard which Bonaparte was held. It was another portrait of her, a miniature, which he saw on the ship, and which he admired so much. But when he saw Lady Maitland he chafed because Sir Frederick would not let her come aboard, exclaiming that she was even more beautiful than the portrait.

Raeburn painted his portrait of Lady Maitland in 1817.

"Lady Betty Delme"—By Reynolds.

The Reynolds portrait, that of Lady Betty Delme, is the portrait of the "Beauty of the Court of Queen Charlotte." She was the Lady Elizabeth Howard, daughter of the Earl of Carlisle. Reynolds painted it in 1777, and the price they paid him was £300. With her are two children. It was formerly usual to describe them as boy and girl, but more recently they have been set down as the two eldest sons of Peter Delme and Lady Betty. The only daughter was not born until some years after the portrait was painted. This portrait remained at Cams, near Fareham, until 1894, when it was sold at Christie's by order of Henry Delme.

A Word of Warning to Those Not Yet Everyday Readers of The Times

It should be understood by all that The Times is publishing a strictly limited number of these magnificent supplements, which are very expensive, costing far more than the price received for them. They will not be reprinted, and consequently those persons only who make sure of their next Sunday's Times in advance will have any chance to secure them. The supplement far exceeds The Times's celebrated Easter feature of last year, "The Holy Grail." The New York Times is always sold out.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Sag with Sharp Declines in a Few Issues—Favorable Foreign Trade Report.

One of the chief features of yesterday's very dull Stock Exchange session was the movement which represented the market's effort to adjust itself to the new situation created by the failure of the Union Pacific plan, because of the opposition offered to certain of its terms by the California Railroad Commission. When the market had adjourned on Saturday there seemed still a chance that the way would be cleared to declare the plan operative before the hour set for the termination of the underwriting syndicate agreement arrived. The first effect of the news that this had not been possible was a decline of over a point in Union Pacific and as large an advance in Southern. This divergent movement of the prices of the two issues was in keeping with the action of the market for these stocks during the time when the fate of the plan had been under discussion. It has now become necessary to formulate a new scheme for compliance with the recent decree of the Supreme Court. The new plan will of necessity have to be submitted to the Attorney General and must receive the approval of the court, but it seemed possible yesterday that the new proposal would be so framed as to avoid the necessity of again seeking the approval of the California State Commission, which was denied to the old plan. In other words, an effort may be made to avoid including in the new plan any matters which would give the State of California jurisdiction over any phase of the proposal. Without regard to the particular points raised in this case the failure of the Union Pacific plan serves to illustrate the difficulty which common carrier companies experience on occasion on account of the diverse jurisdiction to which they are subject through the exercise of the regulative powers of the several States in addition to those exercised by the Federal Government.

In view of the position which some of the newer of industrial issues have lately held in the market, the decline in some of these stocks yesterday aroused no more than passing comment, but more significance in a market sense was attributed to weakness in such old-time railroad shares as Illinois Central and New York, New Haven & Hartford. Discussion of the ability of these roads to maintain their existing dividend rates has been an influence for some time past in shaping their course in the market. The recent weakness in the shares of the Boston & Maine, control of which rests with the New Haven, has been an added reason for the decline in New Haven's own stock. Apart from the price changes in the issues which were affected by special influences the movement of prices was narrow, in keeping with the dullness of the dealings, but it was downward. The only gold export arranged yesterday was $2,000,000 taken for Paris in fulfillment of the gold transaction which was arranged between the Paris market and our own a fortnight ago. It is understood that still another $2,000,000 shipment will be made later in the week.

There has been a good deal of talk lately in the European markets, and this has found reflection in the cabled advices from the other side, to the effect that many signs were appearing of a contraction in trade, and in yesterday's market news from Berlin was included reference to the poor showing made by industrial companies as a contributing cause of a further decline in that market. Though not necessarily falsifying, these signs of a slowing down of commercial activity in the countries of Europe, our own foreign trade statement for the month of February, published yesterday, showed that within the very recent period covered by this statement no contraction in business activity had found reflection in our trade with other countries. Making allowance for the difference of the number of days in this February and last our exports were on as large a scale as during the second month of 1912, while our imports in February this year exceeded all previous records. The excess of exports for the month fell short of a good many past years so far as the month of February alone was concerned, but in the eight elapsed months of the fiscal year the excess of exports was larger than in the corresponding period of any previous year since 1908, and was exceeded in only one other year. Such being the showing which our foreign trade is making, it is a reasonable inference, which bears out other indications to the same effect, that recent gold exports from this market are to be accounted for rather by the necessities of other countries than by any adverse feature of our own relations with the other markets.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Medicine Day on Exchange.

The semi-annual physical examination of all the employes of the Stock Exchange was begun yesterday, to the profit of the medical fraternity and the disgust of the messenger boys. This practice was instituted some years ago following an outbreak of a contagious disease, and is intended to be beneficial to the employes as well as to the brokers with whom they are in such close contact. Most of the boys are in such evident good health that the physician's examination is perfunctory.

Union Pacific's Troubles.

The railroad officials who raced to St. Louis in their vain attempt to save the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific dissolution plan returned to this city Sunday night, and were generally too weary yesterday to take much interest in the discussion of the lines along which the third attempt will be marked out. The market took another 2⅛ points from Union Pacific's price by way of discounting the cost of another syndicate and the possibility of the sale of Southern Pacific's stock by the court in the event of the management's inability to evolve a plan which will satisfy the court, the Attorney General and the commission. Southern Pacific closed at 98⅝, a decline of only ¼, or nearly nine points under its price as it stood when the underwriting syndicate, which is now disintegrated, was formed.

New Haven Still Declining.

New Haven shares resumed their downward movement, which was interrupted by the Sunday holiday, with the opening of the Exchange yesterday, and sold at 114½. The close, at 115¼, represented a loss of 3½ points for the day. President Mellen was credited with a naive utterance on the company's situation. "The slump is undoubtedly because the earnings of the Boston & Maine are showing so poorly as to make it impossible to continue its dividend, and the effect this will be expected to have upon the continuance of the present rate of New Haven's dividend," he said. Since Jan. 20 New Haven stock has declined 15 points.

Use for Idle Funds.

The rise of money rates has carried the longer loaning maturities to a level where investors with idle funds can receive a better return by putting their money out at interest than by buying the best dividend-paying stocks, and loans of large amounts of this sort were reported in the Street yesterday. The decline of deposits, as set forth in last week's bank statement, apparently showed that this movement began when time money was being quoted at 5½ per cent. The advance to 6 per cent. for the sixty-day period and to 5¾ per cent. for five and six months was the incentive for extensive withdrawals of funds in bank, and, as far as could be learned, the banks were not at all distressed at being called upon by their customers to make loans for them. They were able through these means to reduce their own reserve requirements without being forced to call loans for the purpose.

A Single Gold Engagement.

An engagement of $2,000,000 in gold bars for shipment to Paris on to-day's steamer was announced yesterday morning soon after the start of the Wall Street business day, and it was a subject of remark later that the financial community appeared to take it for granted that this amount would not be enlarged before night. There seemed to be a feeling abroad that a lull in exports of the yellow metal was due, although no reason for such an assumption could be extracted from the mass of conjecture surrounding the needs of France and Germany. The time is nearly up for the transfer of gold to Germany to be of use in the April settlement, but comparatively little has gone to Berlin, and there is no evidence that the Paris banks intend to end their purchases in this market. The strengthening of foreign exchange rates was favorable to gold exports, if anything, and local loaning rates were only a trifle higher than on Saturday, offering very little more resistance to the movement of gold than at the end of the week.

The Weakness in Central Leather.

The fall of Central Leather common yesterday to the lowest point of the year, was accounted for in two ways in stock market gossip, both of which had their foundation in the company's annual report. The Central Leather statement for 1912 said that, owing to the high price of raw hides possible in the coming year, $500,000 had been set aside from earnings to offset as far as possible any loss the company might be forced to meet through a decline in the selling price of leather. The statement also showed that earnings applicable to the common shares were equivalent to about 8.50 per cent at their par value. When the stock began to sell off a rumor was circulated in some commission houses that the company already faced a large depreciation in the value of supplies bought in the past year and carried over into 1913. When the shares had about reached the lowest level of the session another tale went the rounds to the effect that a pool formed in January in anticipation of an excellent anual report, had been suddenly liquidated without profit. An actual influence in causing the decline, probably was the calling of loans which had been partly secured by Central Leather common, thus sending the stock upon the market.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

James B. Duke, William Rees Harris, John S. Hignett, and Lawrence Hignett have resigned as Directors of the Imperial Tobacco Company.

Stockholders of the American Light and Traction Company voted yesterday to increase the common stock from $15,000,000 to $40,000,000.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

London Market Dull—Continued Money Tension Causes Weakness in Berlin.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 18.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"Money was in brisk demand yesterday, owing partly to some fairly large calls on scrip of recently issued loans. The supply was unevenly distributed and insufficient for the market's requirements, and the Bank of England consequently did a moderate business in short maturities, besides lending a little for the week.

"Discount rates were easier, partly owing to a Continental demand for bills, but the market made only limited concessions to sellers. The Paris and Berlin Cheques moved in favor of London.

"In view of the near approach of the Easter holidays, business on the Stock Exchange was quieter than ever, there being no disposition to increase commitments in any direction. Consols hardened slightly, owing to a more favorable interpretation of the foreign political news, but as a rule the tone of the markets was dull.

"Owing to the continuance of stringent money conditions on the Continent, there were signs of liquidation in certain securities in which Continental operators are largely interested; hence the weakness in Brazil Railway common, Canadian Pacific Railway shares, and Oil shares.

"The weakness of Marconi shares was a small feature."

PARIS, March 17.—The Bourse opened depressed to-day. A better tone developed later, and the closing was steady.

Three per cent. rentes, 88 francs 12½ centimes ex-dividend.

BERLIN, March 17.—Continued tension in the money market and disappointing annual reports of industrial companies unsettled prices on the Börse to-day.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The Treasury statement issued to-day gives receipts and expenditures for March 15 and for the elapsed periods of the month and of the fiscal year as follows:

These figures exclude Panama Canal and public debt transactions.

The condition of the United States Treasury at the beginning of business to-day was: Working balance, $80,501,815; in banks and Philippine Treasury, $42,748,300; total of general fund, $148,109,881.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Prices on the Consolidated Stock Exchange opened at 9:30 o'clock at general declines compared with Saturday's closing quotations, further losses being registered later. There was no pressure of selling, but the tone was noticeably heavy. The uncertainty surrounding the dissolution of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger again found a reflection in the opening trading. There was disappointment later, when it was announced that another Monday would pass without the United States Supreme Court handing down its long-awaited decision in the Minnesota rate case.

WORK ON ANOTHER PLAN FOR PACIFICS

It Is Conjectured Now That Dissolution Will Be Attempted Without Lease of Central.

FORFEIT TO UNDERWRITERS

Checks Mailed to Meet Terms of Broken Agreement—An Explanation from Lovett.

With just eight weeks more to comply with the mandate of the Supreme Court, the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific officers, Directors, bankers, and lawyers started again yesterday on the difficult work of making a satisfactory plan for dissolving the merger. Except for the experience and knowledge of the various questions involved which Judge Lovett, Julius Kruttschnitt, Frank A. Vanderlip, Mortimer L. Shiff, and H. W. De Forest, who have been most active in negotiations between the two companies, have acquired since December, the problem seemed no nearer solution yesterday than it did three months ago.

There was no meeting of the Executive Committee of either company yesterday, and beyond an explanatory statement of the failure of the modified plan made by Judge Lovett there were no new developments. Wall Street is inclined to look for a new plan which will not be based on the sale of the Central Pacific to the Union Pacific. Attorney General Wickersham insisted upon this transfer as essential to the restoration of competition. If the new Attorney General takes a different view of the relation of the three companies it may be possible to leave the Southern Pacific system intact, and thereby avoid any danger of further interference on the part of the California Railroad Commission.

This is Judge Lovett's statement:

The original agreement for the acquisition of the Central Pacific by the Union Pacific contained reciprocal provisions for the joint use of certain tracks and terminals in California. As a condition of its approval of such provisions the California Railroad Commission required that these tracks and terminal facilities should be opened to the use of other lines, which had no interest whatever therein, upon such terms as the commission itself should fix; and the commission imposed other conditions which neither the Union Pacific nor the Southern Pacific could accept. But negotiations were resumed, and both parties earnestly endeavored to work out some modified plan which would substantially accomplish the results desired in a way just to all interests involved and that probably would be acceptable both to the Court and the California commission. Many difficulties were encountered, and several times negotiations were practically abandoned as hopeless. But on Thursday evening, the 13th instant, an agreement was reached which eliminated the provisions of the previous agreement for trackage rights and joint terminals, respecting which conditions had been imposed by the California commission.

Provisions were inserted for interchange of traffic, and these were limited to inter-State traffic, over which the California commission had no jurisdiction. There remained for approval of that commission only the disposition of the lines north of Tehama and the lease of the Central Pacific to the Union Pacific, which, from the previous opinion of the commission and expressions of its members, we had no reason to doubt the commission would approve. This we promptly submitted to the commission through telegraphic instructions to counsel in San Francisco Thursday, and the same evening we left for St. Louis to present the matter to the court Saturday morning, since the syndicate would expire and the whole plan fail if not acted upon that day.

On arrival at St. Louis Saturday morning we received a copy of the opinion of the California commission in the form of a telegram to the Attorney General, which discussed at length, but failed to decide, the questions necessary to make the plan effective. While finding no objection to the leases submitted for its approval, the commission declared its purpose to withhold its approval of the leases if, upon examination of the traffic plan, which, as already stated, was limited to inter-State commerce, and therefore beyond the jurisdiction of the commission, it found the same unsatisfactory to it, and in the meantime it refrained from making any order. The non-action of the commission made it useless for us to present the plan to the court, and with the expiration of the syndicate it was abandoned.

The present situation, therefore, is that we must start afresh and try to work out some plan to comply with the decision of the Supreme Court. As soon as we have done so we shall submit the same to the Attorney General and to the Circuit Judges.

The underwriting syndicate organized by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to insure the sale of the Union Pacific's $126,650,000 of Southern Pacific stock, and which contained 700 participants, was automatically ended at midnight Saturday by the failure of the railroads to get the California board's approval. Checks for the underwriters' share of the 1 per cent. forfeit, amounting to three-eighths of $1,266,000, were mailed yesterday.

BOSTON & MAINE AT 65 1-2.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 17.—The rush to sell New England railroad stocks increased to-day. Boston & Maine common and preferred, New York, New Haven & Hartford, Boston & Lowell, Boston Elevated, Fitchburg preferred, Maine Central, and Boston & Providence sold at record low figures on the Boston Stock Exchange.

Losses ranging all the way from $2 to $10 a share were made in these stocks. Boston & Maine common continued to reflect the liquidation of small holdings, and sold down to 65½, a loss of 7 points from Saturday and a new low price. Boston & Maine preferred also made a new low record by dropping 10 points, to 110.

New Haven sold at 114½, which is the lowest figure since the panic of 1873. Fitchburg preferred lost 9 points, selling at 101, while Boston & Lowell sold down 8 points, to 195.

Boston & Providence stock dropped 5 points, to 260; Boston Elevated 2 points, to 105½, and Maine Central 2½ points, to 101.

No attempt was made to hold up Boston & Maine stock, although it is said among railroad officers that there is absolutely no cause for fright. Seventy-two new locomotives have been delivered to the Boston & Maine Railroad this year, the last of the lot arriving last week. This is regarded among the officers of the road as important news, for they see earnings ahead.

ALLIS-CHALMERS STARTS UP.

Reorganization Completed with Election of Officers.

Directors of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company, formed to succeed the Allis-Chalmers Company, met in this city yesterday and completed their organization by electing officers. John H. McClement of New York was made Chairman of the Board of Directors, and Otto H. Falk of Milwaukee, President of the company.

The Executive Committee chosen was Frederick Vogel, Jr., President of the First National Bank of Milwaukee; Gustave Pabst, Chairman of the Pabst Brewing Company; J. D. Mortimer, President of the Milwaukee Heat, Light and Traction Company; Oliver C. Fuller, head of the Wisconsin Trust Company of Milwaukee, and the Messrs. McClement and Falk. The other Directors of the company are Max Pam and F. O. Wetmore of Chicago, Arthur W. Butler, Charles W. Cox, Oscar L. Gubelman, R. G. Hutchins, Jr., Arthur Coppell, and William C. Potter of New York, and James P. Winchester of Wilmington.

Francis S. Bangs, attorney, said yesterday, that the lines of manufacture which were produced by the old Allis-Chalmers Company would be continued. They consisted mainly of heavy machinery for power plants and mining operations. The company is capitalized at $42,500,000, and is able to start with a substantial working capital through assessments on stock.

WORTH MILLIONS, ASKS TIME.

U. S. Finishing Co. Gets Extension to Obtain More Capital.

The United States Finishing Company of 320 Broadway, one of the largest cotton bleaching and dyeing concerns in the country, has asked the banks of this city and Boston which hold the company's commercial paper for a six months' extension of payment, it was learned yesterday, pending a readjustment of capital and a campaign to obtain additional working funds. The request was granted by the banks, and no difficulty is looked for in liquidating the liabilities out of current assets.

The company has plants at Providence and Pawtucket, R. I., at Passaic, N. J., and Norwich and Sterling, Conn., which are valued at $8,000,000. Liabilities reported amount to $2,300,000 and assets easily converted into cash were set at a higher figure by the company's officers than total indebtedness. The company has a bonded debt of $2,900,000.

The United States Finishing Company was incorporated in Connecticut in 1904 with a capital of $6,000,000, divided equally into common and preferred stock. Soon after the charter was taken out five smaller finishing concerns were absorbed and the combination has grown larger in recent years.

OUT OF INDIANAPOLIS GAS.

E. A. Benedict Doubts, Though, That Citizens Gas Got His Stock.

E. C. Benedict, Director, and until recently the largest stockholder in the Indianapolis Gas Company, said yesterday that the Citizens' Gas Company had not, as far as he was informed, bought control of the Indianapolis Gas Company. He disposed of his holdings a few weeks ago, he said, to a banker in Cincinnati in a transaction involving his entire block of stock.

NAVAL STORES QUITS, AFTER TRUST SUIT

BANKS ARE WELL SECURED

Criminal Case Against the Concern to be Argued in the Supreme Court To-day.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 17.—The American Naval Stores Company has suspended operations. The company is being prosecuted by the Government for alleged violations of the Sherman law. In explanation of the cause of the suspension the Secretary of the company made public a formal statement, which said:

"The American Naval Stores Company has been forced to suspend. The company has not lost a dollar, and its assets, at conservative present values, exceed its liabilities by about $4,000,000, but the credit of the company has slowly become contracted, due almost entirely to the persistent and continued assaults made upon the construction and contractual relations of the corporation by the Government in its suits under the anti-trust law.

"With two of its executive officers now awaiting the final determination of their case by the United States Supreme Court and the Government pressing a civil suit for the dissolution of the company and the destruction of its business, it goes without saying that the company is in no position to solicit new capital and must depend entirely upon its present resources.

"These resources, although large and valuable, with the company's credit contracted and with the marketing of the new crop of naval stores almost at hand, are insufficient to meet its financial requirements. There is no possibility of any loss. Our largest indebtedness is in New York and the East.

"The American and the naval stores industry are among the first victims of an insensuate crusade against the big business of the country."

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The criminal anti-trust case against the American Naval Stores Company will be argued in the Supreme Court to-morrow. A civil suit for the dissolution of the alleged trust is pending at Macon, Ga. In the lower court five individual defendants were found guilty by the jury. Fines aggregating $17,500 were imposed and two defendants were sentenced to imprisonment for three months in jail.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Wheat Lower—Corn Higher—Cotton Declines.

Wheat trading developed weakness late in the session and closed at a net loss of ⅜ to ½c. Corn trading showed a very steady undertone and closed at a net advance of ⅛ to ¼c. Cotton prices at the close showed net losses of 4 to 6 points.

WHEAT.

A steadier feeling prevailed in the wheat market during the first part of the day and prices worked up ¼ to ⅜c. The advance appeared to be due largely to covering and to hesitation on the part of sellers, who were inclined to anticipate a rally from the recent decline of about 5 cents a bushel. There was little in the news which could be classed as bullish, and late in the session the market again developed weakness and closed at a net loss of ⅜ to ½c. The foreign markets were not quite as low as anticipated, but the foreign news was somewhat against the market, including world's exports of 13,472,000 bushels, compared with 13,776,000 last week and 10,768,000 last year. Europe appeared to be anticipating heavy arrivals, and the news on the foreign crop situation was generally favorable. A Broomhall cable from Russia said that the crops have not been damaged by recent severe weather and lack of snow covering and that the weather is now seasonable. A private report from Chicago said that an estimate on the Argentine crop, placing the total yield at 232,000,000 bushels, had caused considerable late selling there, although the authority for the estimate was not given and the official estimate, issued in December, placed the yield at 198,400,000 bushels. Weather and crop advices from the West were of a highly satisfactory nature, and the interior cash demand was said to be slow. Export sales for the day were three loads. The visible supply in the United States decreased 983,000 bushels, compared with a decrease last year of 1,362,000, and the total was given as 62,248,000, compared with 54,380,000 a year ago. A Western authority figured the exportable surplus in the United States for the balance of the season at about 88,000,000 bushels, whereas last year exports from this date were 18,000,000. No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1, elevator, and $1.10⅛, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, 97¼c., free on board, afloat.

CORN.

Trading in the corn market was not particularly active, but prices showed a very steady undertone and closed at a net advance of ⅛ to ¼c. There was comparatively little feature to the cables, but the easier markets in America last week were offset by small shipments to Liverpool and firmness in Argentina. The world's exports for the week were 3,657,000 bushels, compared with 4,035,000 last week and 4,725,000 last year. The visible supply in the United States increased 1,136,000 bushels, compared with an increase last week of 3,137,000 and an increase a year ago of 484,000. Export sales amounted to four loads. Export corn was quoted at 55½c, f. o. b., afloat.

OATS.

Trading in the oats market was inactive and price changes were again narrow, closing at ⅛c net decline to ⅛c advance. Receipts were fairly liberal, but there was comparatively little selling pressure, and the market was influenced by the steadiness in corn. The visible supply increased 10,000, compared with a decrease last year of 515,000. The local cash market was easy; standard white quoted at 37c; No. 3, 36½c; No. 4, 35½ to 38c; natural white, 35½ to 37c; white clipped, 36 to 38½c, all track.

COTTON.

The cotton market turned easier after a fairly steady morning, and while the final tone was steady, last prices were from 4 to 6 points net lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 6 points in response to relatively firm cables, renewed arbitrage buying, and a little support from trade sources. The appearance of clearing weather in the South over Sunday and prospects for continued fair and warmer weather during the first part of the week probably encouraged some of the local selling, which had been held in check by talk of delayed farm work, resulting from the heavy rains of the past few days, and prices eased off to about the closing figures of Saturday shortly after the call. The long range forecast suggesting renewed wet weather before the end of the current week, however, tended to offset the influence of the better weather map, and selling did not become aggressive enough to really weaken the tone of the market. At the same time there was no important support, and after the receipt of a dispatch from Berlin indicating another hitch in Balkan peace negotiations, the selling became a little more active and general. Prices eased off in consequence and closed at practically the lowest.

Most predictions of any material increase in the export demand have been based upon expectations of increased activity on the Continent, following a settlement of the Balkan war. The idea that Liverpool or British spinners were already pretty well supplied with raw material was encouraged yesterday by advices from Arkansas. A spot firm in that section reported that it had received a cable from one of its best Liverpool correspondents stating that their import season had absolutely closed. The talk of a further delay in near Eastern peace negotiations consequently exerted more influence on sentiment than it might otherwise have done. Even so, offerings at no time were general, and perhaps as important a factor on the decline as any other was the selling of May by a prominent broker who had bought July during the morning and was supposed to be executing a swapping order. Southern spot markets were unchanged to 1-16c higher, generally unchanged, and private wires received here during the day indicated no change in the situation, most of them reporting a fair demand, which is attributed to the filling out of March engagements.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products was firmer during the first part of the day owing to lighter receipts of hogs than expected and owing to strength in the hog market. Commission houses were good buyers early, but on the advance longs sold quite freely, and late in the day prices lost practically all the early gain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 30,000, estimated for Tuesday 21,000. Kansas City received 3,000 and Omaha 2,500.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The volume of business in the cottonseed oil market was again small, and values were easily influenced by moderate transactions. The early firmness in lard had a stimulating influence on values, and prices were slightly higher throughout the day, closing net unchanged to 4 points advance. Crude oil was steady, with comparatively small offerings, but the demand was also light, and the volume of business was said to be small. The consuming trade was inactive, and, taking the market as a whole, there appeared to be little to encourage speculative operations either way.

COFFEE.

The outset was 11 to 26 points higher than Saturday's close, owing to steadiness abroad. Prices continued to advance, closing steady at top at a net gain of 34 to 48 points. Total sales, 154,250 bags. Havre was ¾ to 1 franc lower early, but a sharp rally set in and the close was at a net advance of ¼@½ franc, Hamburg closed ½ to 1¼ pfennigs net higher. Rio was 125 reis higher. Santos declined 100 reis for 4s. Cost and freight offers were generally unchanged.

Spot coffee—Rio 7, 11⅜c.

Total warehouse deliveries in the United States were 81,414 bags, against 107,752 last week and 125,132 last year. Of the former amount New York had 57,264 bags.

Receipts at Rio and Santos last week were 80,000 bags, against 107,000 the previous week, 114,000 last year, and 36,000 two years ago.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

The Daily Consular and Trade Report notes the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding them may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, care of the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

10,595. LOCK AND PORT WORKS.—One of the commercial agents of the Department of Commerce reports that preliminary surveys and soundings of a harbor in a foreign country are being made and extensive improvements are projected, including the construction of breakwaters and docks and the dredging necessary to permit large vessels to enter without difficulty. The estimated cost of these works is $15,000,000, and it will take about three years to complete them. It is understood that the Government will assume one-half of the cost of construction.

10,596. MACHINES FOR DRY CLEANING STRAW AND PANAMA HATS.—A prominent retail hatter in a foreign country has written an American consulate requesting manufacturers in the United States of machines for dry cleaning sraw and Panama hats while the customers wait to communicate with him at the earliest possible moment. He is most anxious to get full particulars of such machines, cost, capacity, whether worked by hand, gas, or electricity, and information as to methods employed in connection with such machines. As no such machines are at present known in the city in question, this would appear to be an excellent opportunity of introducing them.

10,597. WIRE ROPES.—A European business firm, which states that it can furnish the best of references and banking guarantees, informs an American consulate that it desires to receive offers, accompanied by catalogues and price lists, and carrying with them exclusive agency rights for all Italy, from American manufacturers of wire ropes. Correspondence should be in English.

10,598. FLOUR-GRINDING MILL.—An American consular officer in a Latin-American country reports that a firm in his district desires offers for a complete installation for a flour-grinding mill, and asks to be put in touch with manufacturers of such machinery.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

The introduction of the automat in the general manufacture of embroideries in this country is expected to result in the production of better merchandise. It has been charged that the biggest obstacle in the way of domestic embroideries in the past was their inferior workmanship when compared with the products of the Swiss factories.

There is little in the proposed reduction of the tariff on hosiery to cause concern to domestic manufacturers, according to one of them. Reports of the conditions that would result from the cut have been greatly overdrawn, in his opinion.

Makers of women's neckwear have been hampered considerably of late by their inability to get sufficient help, either experienced or beginners. According to a trade authority, one manufacturer spent $110 within eight days in advertising for female operatives, with discouraging results.

The proper length for the coats of women's Fall suits this year will be 38 inches, instead of from 30 to 40 inches as previously said. The 38-inch length was officially adopted at the Cloak and Suit Designers' Convention which was held in the Masonic Temple, this city, on Saturday last.

PRINTCLOTH MARKET DULL.

Trading continued quiet and featureless in the local printcloth market yesterday. Some fair sales of 38½-inch, 64-56s, were reported at 4⅞ cents for April and May delivery, and there was some activity in 39-inch, 68-72s, at 5 11-16 cents. This figure was 1-16 of a cent lower than the previous level, and the same fraction higher than the price reported in certain quarters late last week. There was a good call for fancy crêpes, but the general market was unworthy of comment. The day's quotations follow:

The opportunity for study and advancement along the lines indicated is equal to that of the leading commercial or educational institutions.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Market Opens with a Good Demand for Apartment House Property on Upper West Side—Resale of Eighth Avenue Corner Pending—The Allied Real Estate Interests Appoint Committee on Building Height.

Indications of a well-sustained apartment house demand in the upper west side section were clearly evidenced yesterday in the sale of a block front on Fort Washington Avenue for immediate improvement. The locality is in the northerly part of the Washington Heights district, and it has witnessed considerable building activity in the last few years.

The recent deal included the block front on the west side of Fort Washington Avenue between 161st and 162d Streets, which has been sold by Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum to Nathan Wilson. The frontage is 204.5 feet on Fort Washington Avenue and 100 feet on each street. The buyer is having plans prepared to erect at once two six-story apartment houses. J. Romaine Brown & Co. acted as brokers in the transaction.

The plot sold was a portion of the Loyal S. Smith estate, a large portion of which was purchased last December by the Mandelbaums and most of it resold at once to prospective builders. The block front immediately opposite the plot just sold is now being improved with two six-story houses, and on the block below two six-story apartments are being completed.

Mr. Wilson's present investment, including the cost of the projected apartments, will represent about $750,000.

A few blocks to the north, in the Fort Washington section, Lowenfeld & Prager resold the plot on the southeast corner of Haven Avenue and 179th Street. The parcel is 92.5 by 108. It was purchased by the sellers at auction last week for $27,600. Bryan L. Kennelly acted as the broker.

V. Everit Macy Takes Title.

V. Everit Macy took title yesterday to the Fifth Avenue plot, 35 by 100 feet, sixty feet south of Eighty-ninth Street, which he recently purchased from the City Real Estate Company, acting, it is understood, for Edmund L. Baylies. Mr. Macy will erect a fine residence on the site.

Benjamin N. Duke has lately completed a new house on the Eighty-ninth Street corner of the block, while the houses south of Mr. Macy's purchase are occupied by John H. Hanan, W. W. Fuller, and Philip Livingston.

Deal on Morningside Heights.

The vacant lot, 25 by 100 feet, on the south side of 114th Street, 100 feet west of Broadway, is reported to have been sold to an investor for about $19,000.

The lot adjoins the corner and is one of the few vacant lots in the vicinity. Robert J. F. Schwarzenbach is the owner of record.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Negotiations are pending for the sale of 214 West Seventy-ninth Street, a five-story private dwelling on a lot 19 by 100 feet, owned by the estate of the late George W. Crossman.

Eighth Ave. Corner Resale Pending.

Negotiations are reported pending for the resale by Ennis & Sinnott of the five-story flat, 25 by 100 feet, on the southwest corner of 113th Street and Eighth Avenue. The owners acquired the parcel in trade about three months ago.

Breunig & Jaeger sold for Philipp Krausch the two two-family houses, 664 and 666 East 223d Street, near White Plains Avenue, to an investor.

John A. Steinmetz sold for Charles Brown, 980-982 East 179th Street, two one-family houses on a plot 75 by 100, to E. Roth & M. Klein. The buyers will improve the plot with apartment houses. The same broker also sold to W. Rooney for W. J. Deehan, 1,822 Mohegan Avenue, a two-family dwelling on a lot 25 by 70 feet.

The New York Real Estate and Security Company has purchased for investment from Ferdinand P. Kneer, of 546 to 550 East 145th Street, two five-story houses, on plot 74.6 by 99.9, adjoining the southwest corner of St. Ann's Avenue. It has also bought from Anna L. Kneer the five-story house, on plot 37.6 by 100, at 590 East 138th Street, between St. Ann's and Cypress Avenues, and the two six-story houses at 278 and 282 Brook Avenue, each 37.8 by 107.2 by irregular.

Brooklyn.

C. F. Hopkins has purchased from the Midwood Associates a detached bungalow in East Seventeenth Street, near Nottingham Road, on a plot 40 by 100.

The Lawrence Realty Company has sold the four-story brick business building 465 Fulton Street to Charles McFadden and Albert Ruhman, who will remodel the building into a restaurant and café. The price paid is said to be $60,000. William G. Morrissy was the broker in the transaction.

Picture Theatre for 110th Street.

The only plans for new buildings filed yesterday in Manhattan Borough were for the construction of a two-story brick moving-picture theatre on 110th Street, 75 feet west of Fifth Avenue. It will have a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 100 feet, and has been estimated to cost $25,000. Aaron Rosenstein is the owner. Harold L. Young is the architect.

Make Big Profits in CALIFORNIA

Buy An Irrigated Farm in the Sacramento Valley

The most famous and most wonderful spot on this continent, on the latest irrigation enterprise built by the Kuhn interests of Pittsburgh.

There is more net profit in 20 acres of California irrigated land than there is in one hundred acres in the East. Why wear yourself out for a mere living here when California beckons you with its year-round sunshine, and where crop failures are unknown?

Come to the Sacramento Valley, where oranges ripen six weeks earlier than in Los Angeles or Riverside. Come where the climate equals that of Southern Italy—where every man is his own master, and independent—where big money is being made—where the markets are near—the demand for products great—the income sure.

YOU Can Make Big Profits

Sell oranges, lemons and small fruit, and live where it never grows cold—where "bad luck" is unknown.

No frosts, no droughts, no snow, no failure. Crop succeeds crop with unfailing regularity, producing more profits with less labor than is possible in any other State in the Union.

The Terms of Purchase are Remarkably Easy

Let us send you the fine illustrated book, "California, Now or Never," telling all about it.

Write for Book To-day. It Gives You Absolute Proofs.

DR. FRIEDMANN TESTS CURE ON 22 PATIENTS

Many Doctors Watch and Praise Treatments in Bellevue and the Montefiore Home.

ONLY FOUR CASES REJECTED

Patients in All Stages of Consumption Cheerful as They Receive the Vaccine—More Tests To-day.

Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, the German physician who is here to test under Government supervision the merits of his turtle vaccine for the cure of consumption, treated twenty-two patients yesterday. Eleven of those treated are in Bellevue Hospital and an equal number in the Montefiore Home. At both clinics Dr. John F. Anderson, head of the Hygienic Laboratory in Washington, D. C., and Dr. Arthur Stimson of the Public Health Bureau, were present.

It was a busy day for the German scientist. During the early morning he was engaged in renewing his supply of vaccine from cultures in the possession of Dr. William H. Park of the Board of Health. In addition he visited the Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases, at 1,919 Madison Avenue, where more than twenty patients are awaiting treatment, and also looked over the histories and charts of different cases submitted to him.

According to Dr. Maurice Sturm, house physician of the Ansonia and now assistant to Dr. Friedmann, the Governors of fifteen States have written to Dr. Friedmann urging him to visit them and promising to give to him a free hand in the treatment of tuberulosis cases within their borders. Two of the States are said to be Texas and Ohio.

The principal event of the day was, of course, the visit of Dr. Friedmann to Bellevue Hospital. He had gone there on Sunday and inspected the applicants and reviewed their histories Of the fifteen offered for treatment he had selected twelve. When the time came for treatment he was not quite satisfied that one case was really that of tuberculosis. This patient was also troubled with a disease of a gland, which further complicated the situation. After studying the exhibit, a section of frozen gland, the doctor refused treatment, and this cut the number of patients down to eleven.

All eleven cases were treated in the operating amphitheatre of the hospital. It was witnessed by more than 150 doctors, nurses, attendants, and the staff of the hospital. Dr. James Alexander Miller, director of tuberculosis service at Bellevue, acted as master of ceremonies and read out the history of each case as the patient was wheeled in on an operating table. Among those who watched Dr. Friedmann inject the vaccine were Dr. John W. Brannan, Medical Director of Bellevue; Dr. Leopold Stern; Drs. Anderson and Stimson of the Government service, who are superintending the tests; Dr. Serrati of the Italian Navy; Dr. H. M. Kellogg, City Physician of Milwaukee; Dr. G. W. Lowry of Hastings, N. D.; Dr. Hannock of Albany; Dr. Frank May; Dr. Donnell of Birmingham, Ala.; Dr. N. Myklestead of Williston, N. D.; Dr. Millett of East Bridgewater, Mass.; Dr. Stubbert of Lakewood; Dr. Brundage of Brooklyn; Dr. Lopinto; Dr. Knopf; Dr. Grieve of New Mexico; and Dr. George F. O'Hanlon of Bellevue.

Dr. Friedmann was accompanied by his brother, Dr. Arthur Friedmann, and by Drs. Sturm and Benjamin. The patients were wheeled in all ready for the injection. Dr. Miller read the history of each case as it appeared, and a nurse threw back the blanket covering the patient. In each case the injection was made in the left hip. The dose for each patient was from five to eight drops of the vaccine. Dr. Friedmann sponged the hip with an antiseptic fluid, and as soon as the injection was made Dr. Arthur Friedmann sponged the puncture with more of the fluid.

There were ten male patients treated and one female. They ranged in age from 16 to 50 years. The cases treated ranged from incipiency to the third stage. All the patients were remarkably cheerful and all seemed to be happy in the belief that a cure for their disease had been found at last.

It took Dr. Friedmann just thirty minutes to make the eleven injections. After treatment the patients were wheeled back to the ward, where they will be under the careful observation of the Bellevue staff, Dr. Friedmann, and the Government physicians. Any improvement or retrogression in their condition will be carefully noted, and, it was said, no patient will be discharged as "cured" until the two Government officials give the word. Even then the Government supervision will not end, for each patient will be carefully watched by physicians of the Marine Hospital Corps, and they will make reports long after the popular excitement raised by the treatment of Dr. Friedmann has ended. Even if they move to other towns this supervision will be kept up, for the Government desires to ascertain the after-effects of the treatment. At the close of the treatments Dr. Friedmann received an ovation in marked contrast with the reception accorded to him on his arrival in New York.

"Dr. Friedmann's technique was perfect," said Dr. Lowery. "He was most careful as to sterilization, and he made a profound impression upon those who saw him operate. The vaccine was contained in a small vial, and he used apparently from six to eight drops in each case. He exhibited the skill of a true physician in the administration of his cure."

It was late in the afternoon when Dr. Friedmann and his associates reached the Montefiore Home. Of the eleven persons treated, five were women. One case was that of a girl 17 years old with tuberculosis of the wrist. Of those examined by the Doctor three were rejected. They showed signs of improvement under treatment, and he argued that they would recover anyhow from the incipient stage and that his treatment would prove nothing in their cases. In these cases the patients already had gained from fifteen to twenty-five pounds in the last six months. The ages of those treated here ranged from 20 to 30 years.

Among those present at the Montefiore tests were Drs. Anderson and Stimson, Simon Baruch, Wachsman, Alfred Meyer, and the staff of the home. As at Bellevue, everything was in readiness, and Dr. Friedmann was less than an hour in giving the treatments.

Dr. Friedmann at noon visited the Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases at Madison Avenue and 124th Street. He and his party were received by Dr. H. W. Frauenthal, head of the hospital. There are more than twenty patients awaiting treatment there. Dr. Friedmann took with him to the Ansonia the records, X-ray charts, and medical charts of their cases for study. He will treat these cases to-day.

Speaking of the need of treatment for tuberculosis, Dr. Arthur Friedmann, brother of the discoverer of the turtle vaccine, said:

"There are urgent reasons why my brother should be allowed to practice as he will. Think of it! There are men dropping dead upon the streets and in their hotels whom Dr. Friedmann is prevented from treating. These people have come to town from various places, but they cannot be taken into the city hospitals, for they do not live here."

Dr. Arthur Friedmann told of a consumptive who has been besieging Dr. Friedmann at the Ansonia ever since his arrival at that hotel.

"This man has a temperature of 104 and 105, and is walking the streets. That man will drop dead in the street, and we cannot help him. Dr. Friedmann can treat only cases in hospitals and cases under care of a Government physician. There are hundreds of people in New York now who need his treatment and to whom he wants to give it for the benefit of humanity, but his hands are tied. He cannot treat private patients because the city will not let him. He is eager to treat these patients, rich and poor alike, without any charge. It is a crime not to allow him to do so."

SAYS FRIEDMANN SAVED HIM.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, March 17.—Edward Sperry, former real estate man and contractor, now living at Victorville, in San Bernardino County, after a heroic struggle for five years with tuberculosis of the lungs, during which he steadily failed until death seemed but a matter of a few weeks, was inoculated with the Friedmann vaccine on March 3 by Dr. Frank Garcelon, Jr., and on March 12 received the second injection of the four which constitute the simple treatments prescribed by the discoverer.

"I had wasted away from a sturdy, broad-shouldered, splendidly muscled man of 180 pounds' weight to little more than a skeleton," he said to-day. "My weight on March 3 was 104 pounds. I had no appetite, and had to force myself to eat. My sleep was broken, I coughed much and was in that frightful state of lassitude which marks the last stage of the white plague.

"Last Saturday was the twelfth day following the first inoculation, and to that day I had gained 8 pounds. My appetite is excellent. I cough but little. I sleep well, and lassitude is giving way to a feeling of vitality and energy to which I have been a stranger for years.

"That vaccine has done the work. I know it. I can feel the effect in every particle of my body. I can see the triumphant end of my five years of fight for life in sight."

'GOLDEN RULE' CHIEF GUILTY, LOSES OFFICE

Cleveland Civil Service Commission Convicts Kohler of Immorality.

VICTIM OF A PLOT, HE SAYS

Had Been 24 Years in Service—Roosevelt Called Him Best Chief in the Country.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, March 17.—Fred Kohler, famous throughout the country as the "Golden Rule" Chief of Police of Cleveland, was to-night found guilty of gross immorality and misconduct and dismissed from his post by the Civil Service Commission. By this decision Kohler loses his claim to a full pension of $1,500 a year, but will get $65 a month for the remainder of his life.

The charges against Kohler were filed by Mayor Baker, and the trial of the Chief occupied the whole of last week. They related to alleged visits of Kohler to the home of Mrs. May Schearer on Feb. 2, May 23, and June 5, 1912, in the absence of her husband. Testimony of Schearer was given at last week's hearing to the effect that Schearer and two friends caught Kohler in the Schearer house on the night of June 5. Kohler denied the charge, and said it was a trap; that he had gone to the Schearer house in answer to a telephone call, and was there on duty.

He declines to discuss the case to-night or to talk of a widespread rumor that another divorce case may result from the finding. He insists that he is the victim of a plot to get him off the force, and that the enemies that have been after him for years have finally triumphed.

This is the second time Kohler has faced trial, his first having been held two years ago, when he faced charges of misconduct, but was acquitted by the same commission that to-day found him guilty. He has been twenty-four years in the service, and eight years Chief, having risen from the ranks. He did remarkable work with a small force and made a reputation for himself and the city.

Col. Roosevelt, when he was President, called Kohler the best Chief of Police in the country. Had he served one year and three months longer he could have resigned on full pension.

Kohler made his name famous throughout the country by his "Golden Rule" policy of dealing with first offenders and thereby cut down the number of arrests in the city.

In rendering its opinion, the Civil Service Commission said: "Had we authority, we should add to this sentence a permit to this officer to receive the full pension to which a retired Chief of Police is entitled, in view of the term and character of his service."

Mayor Baker issued a statement to-night in which he praised Chief Kohler's record and the efficiency of the Police Department under him and regretted the necessity for his separation from the department under such circumstances. Inspector Rowe, who has been acting head since Kohler's suspension on charges, will remain as Acting Chief until Kohler's successor is appointed. It is reported that Director of Safety Stage has been asked by the Mayor to take the position, which pays $4,000 a year.

Woodbury Says Legislator Approached Him in Senate Contest.

CONCORD, N. H., March 17.—Gordon Woodbury, who was a candidate for election as United States Senator in the contest which ended on Thursday last with the choice of Henry F. Hollis, before a legislative investigating committee to-day swore that a member of the Legislature had offered to sell him his vote and deliver three other votes for $1,000. Two other witnesses testified that they had been approached improperly during the prolonged balloting. Woodbury was an anti-Hollis Democrat, and the support that he received prevented for a time the election of Hollis.

Woodbury testified that a Representative, whom he named, called at his office in Manchester and said if Mr. Woodbury would produce the money he could have four votes which at the time were cast against him. The witness said that he replied that he was not interested, and showed the man to the door.

William D. Young, a business associate of Woodbury, told the committee that the man mentioned by his partner had said to him that he and two others would vote for Woodbury for $200 each.

Representative John S. Wheeler of Manchester testified that the alleged briber met him on a railroad train, and, exhibiting a large roll of bank bills, offered to show the witness how he could make $800 or $900 in the Legislature.

Senator Thomas Chalmers told the committee how private detectives had been employed to investigate the rumors of bribery. One of these detectives, Fred H. Stearns, was called and told of his acquaintance with the accused legislator. This man said nothing to him about the Senatorship. The committee adjourned for one week.

Scores an Instantaneous Success
Congratulations, best wishes, enthusiasm and much selling of Kuppenheimer Clothes marked the inauguration of our new Broadway store Saturday, March 15th.
From early morning until long after the time of closing throngs of interested men and their wives poured into our store.
All who are yet to see this handsome shop and its splendid line of 1913 Spring clothes from the famous house of Kuppenheimer owe themselves an early visit.
Most men have learned to know that stand on a par with the most carefully constructed custom-to-order clothes, and as a consequence we expect the history of last Saturday to repeat itself many times in the future.

Stetson Hats
NATURALLY we boost Stetson Hats, because we know that any man who buys such splendid merchandise of us will buy again, and we want permanent customers. There's the reason—not the least bit unselfish.
Others sell Stetson's too—for the same reason, but we, because we are such Stetson boosters and sell so many, have lots of Stetson styles that cannot be found elsewhere. That is why we say, "Buy your Stetson Hat at Wallach Bros."
